Conditions Abroad Improving.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Resource and enterprise by American business men with faith in the future have kept many industries on an even keel and are maintaining equipment in the face of a general recession was shown today in the monthly report of President Hoover's business survey conference.

Evidence that industries with courageous managers in charge have forged ahead and successfully balanced production and market consumption was cited by Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the conference, as one of the most favorable indications in the present business situation. Mr. Barnes also saw "definite signs of improvement" in a number of foreign countries.

Physical Activities High.

Although admitting that the last month's survey of various lines of industry show that the "sanguine expectations of greatly quickened trade" before the end of the year have not been realized, the Barnes report pointed out that physical activities have been at a higher relative level than the statistics show.

"There is evidence of many industries having adapted themselves to current conditions and having successfully balanced production and market consumption," the report stated.

"Even during this recession the aggregate volume of trade has manifestly been of large proportions and there are indications of individual industries successful beyond the average, either because of special conditions or because of management qualities, courage, initiative and enterprise, which are typically American."

Credit Volume Large.

"The volume of short term credit continues large," the report pointed out in a review of financial conditions. Borrowing by member banks from federal reserve banks increased slightly in November.

In the first eleven months of 1930 construction of public works and utilities was larger by 175 million dollars than in the same period last year. However, nonresidential building was 100 million dollars less, and residential building 771 million dollars less. November figures indicated that residential building "continues to hold the slight gains it has shown in the last few months."

Real Estate Index Higher.

The index for real estate activity in October was the highest since last February and the seasonal upturn is larger than usual. Telegraph business "improved materially" during the latter part of November. Postal receipts in November were 13 per cent under November, 1929. There was seasonal improvement in the anthracite coal fields.

The iron and steel industries operated at a lower level than in 1929 and automobile production remained at approximately 20 per cent under last year.

Great Britain Gaining.

Discussing world conditions, the report stated that "although business in many foreign countries remains depressed, definite signs of improvement are visible in a number of countries included in this survey, according to the latest reports available." Among the countries in which there were signs of improvement were Great Britain, Germany, Sweden, Canada, and China.

Fifteen major industrial groups having 4,712,662 employés in November including the manufacturing industries group, had a decrease of 2.5 per cent in employment during November and a decrease of 5.1 per cent in pay rolls as compared to October, according to a report made today by the bureau of labor statistics of the labor department.

In the manufacturing industries group the decrease was 2.7 per cent in employment and 6.1 per cent in pay rolls.

FIRING SQUADS KILL TWO REBEL CHIEFS IN SPAIN

Four Others Receive Life Sentences.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Dec. 15.—(Monday, 3 a. m.).—Two regiments of the Spanish foreign legion in Morocco are being rushed to Valencia, republican hotbed. The situation is tense here. At 2 a. m. Home Minister Leopoldo Matos officially denied martial law has been proclaimed throughout Spain.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HUESCA, Spain, Dec. 14.—Volleys from rifles of picked firing squads this afternoon officially ended the 24 hour existence of the Spanish military revolution and at the same time snuffed out the lives of two young army officers who, on Friday evening, had set out from the mountain fortress at Jaca at the head of some 300 ragged troops with the intention of overthrowing the Spanish monarchy.

The two infantry officers—Capt. Fernyn Galan and Capt. Garcia Hernandez—were executed at 2 o'clock after a drumhead court martial. Four other officers were condemned to life imprisonment. Those sentenced included Capt. Pedro Salinas and Lieuts. Munoz and Navarro. The fourth prisoner has not been identified.

Officer Tries to Save Pal.

The executed army officers surrendered yesterday afternoon when their army, after covering some 30 miles on its would-be march of triumph, got cold feet and laid down its arms after a preliminary skirmish with loyalist soldiers.

At the court martial neither officer made any defense. Capt. Galan took complete responsibility for the uprising, insisting that Capt. Hernandez did not engineer the movement. The court, however, ignored the plea. The death sentence was carried out in a field two miles away.

The greatest possible secrecy was thrown about the execution. Only a few army officers witnessed the shooting.

Discard Bandages Over Eyes.

Arriving at a flat thorny field, the two men were lined up against a tree a few paces from the firing squad. The usual eye bandages were about to be put on, when both officers protested energetically and the cloths were discarded.

They both remained perfectly calm and made no statements. Hernandez asked for a cigaret and took a few puffs. The regimental chaplain walked up to the condemned men. Capt. Hernandez refused spiritual advice, but Capt. Galan opened his arms to the priest and said:

"I don't need you as a priest, but I embrace you as a friend."

A few seconds later, according to an eye witness, Capt. Galan stood at attention and snapped out the command for his own death. He cried, "Ready, aim," and then raised his arm. Bullets ripped into his body and he fell dead. The grim performance was repeated, but Capt. Hernandez did not die immediately. An officer walked to the body and sent a bullet into his head.

Rebels Fire on Motorists.

The situation still remains serious. A number of escaped rebels who fled yesterday's artillery attack are hiding up in the crags that overhang the roads leading from Jaca to Huesca. Motorists passing along these highways have been shot at. In many towns where fighting has occurred,

League of U. S. Leaders Votes for Dry Repeal

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The National Economic league, which includes in its membership George W. Wickersham, chairman of the law enforcement commission, has voted for repeal of the 18th amendment, J. W. Beatson, its executive secretary, announced tonight.

The league is an organization of 5,500 of the country's most prominent men formed for the purpose of educating and crystallizing public opinion on outstanding issues of the day.

In 1926, 52 per cent of those participating in a poll of its members voted against repeal of the 18th amendment. In this year's poll, Beatson said, 55 per cent of those voting favored repeal. A total of 2,633 votes were cast in the poll which included a great number of questions. Of these 1,440 voted for repeal, 1,090 voted against and 103 did not vote.

In addition to Wickersham, the members of the league's executive committee are: Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, John Hays Hammond, James Rowland Angell of Yale, A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, and Harry A. Garfield of Williams. David Starr Jordan, president emeritus of Stanford university, former Governor Frank O. Lowden, Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant-philanthropist, and Silas A. Strawn, Chicago philanthropist.

The result of some of the other questions was announced as follows:

A majority also voted that the Volstead act be repealed and favored the federal government being empowered by constitutional amendment to control the sale of all intoxicating liquors through federal dispensaries except in prohibition states.

About Alcoholic Content.

Majority negative votes were recorded against permitting courts and juries to determine what alcoholic content constituted intoxicating liquor instead of fixing the percentage by legislation; against permission being given to the states to determine the alcoholic content permissible under the 18th amendment and against a proposed federal statute fixing the maximum alcoholic content but permitting states to fix their own percentage within the maximum.

Sixty-three per cent of those polled opposed permitting the return of the saloon, but 50 per cent voted to permit the serving of liquor in restaurants and hotels with food—this if the present prohibition laws were modified.

FORMER BROKER HANGS HIMSELF IN LOOP OFFICE

The body of a man, believed to have been that of William Y. Coe, 35 years old, former broker, was found early this morning hanging in an office in the Temple building, 77 West Washington street. A card in his pocket bore the name of William Y. Coe.

The body was found by Alex Lesmeski, night watchman, in room 908, the offices of Attorneys James McGloon and Edward J. McCarthy. Coe had hanged himself in a small locker room off the office.

Attorney McGloon, reached at his home, said he believed the man was Coe because Coe had used his law offices almost daily since the collapse of the stock market more than a year ago. Coe, according to McGloon, lost his entire fortune, estimated at $100,000, during the crash. Until last March Coe was vice president of Goddard, Kneessi & Co., brokers, 105 West Adams street.

Hold Up Couple on West Side; Take $1,600 Ring

Glass Bottomed Boat Meets Disaster.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—A fire and explosion sank a glass bottomed excursion boat 15 miles south of here early this evening and drove the 135 men, women, and children with whom it was laden into the sea. The known dead are three; seven are missing. Those rescued total 125.

The craft was the Eureka II, which had left here earlier in the day for its regular Sunday run. It was returning to port after the passengers had spent the day viewing marine life and vegetation through the glass bottom of the boat when an explosion occurred in the engine room and smoke began to pour forth.

Panic Follows Explosion.

Panic developed aboard the vessel, according to the tales of survivors. While some endeavored to fight the blaze others ran to and fro aimlessly. Some survivors accused members of the crew of joining in the panic.

The flames spread through the ship despite efforts of those who kept their heads and strove to fight the fire. Attempts to quench the blaze with the contents of drinking water tanks and any other utensil that came to hand were futile, survivors said, and the hysteria which gripped many of those aboard balked any organized effort.

Driven back foot by foot, the passengers and crew were forced to the rails while the cries of the score or more children aboard added to the confusion.

Orchestra Keeps Playing.

Through the ten minutes or more that the vain attempt to extinguish the flames went on, a three piece orchestra of pianist, saxophone player, and drummer did its best to halt the panic by playing popular pieces but their efforts were of little avail.

Some jumped into the waters while others stayed by the burning craft until the flames reached a gasoline tank and a second explosion, more violent than the first, threw them into the sea. The burning craft listed and sank, leaving the water filled with struggling men, women and children.

The smoke and flame from the ship had caught the eye of D. W. Barrett, owner of the yacht Dorothea, as he was fishing ten miles away and he sped to the rescue.

Pleads to Have Baby Saved.

As rapidly as possible he took from the water thirty persons, all his small boat could carry. He told of the entreaties of those in the water for rescue. One man carrying a child in his arms swam alongside the Dorothea and begged that the baby be taken aboard, he said. Both were saved.

When the Dorothea had been laden to its utmost capacity Barrett brought it into Miami Beach. At his report of the disaster Commander T. V. Klinger of the Fort Lauderdale coast guard station immediately dispatched three fast packet boats to the scene, while a dozen or more fishing boats and pleasure yachts left from here to give what help they could.

No Check on Passengers.

Some of the survivors brought by the Dorothea had to be taken to hospitals to recuperate from their experiences. A definite checkup of the exact number aboard the Eureka II. when the flames broke out was impossible, as there was no passenger list. While it also was uncertain this evening just how many had been saved, it was thought possible that some had been picked up by boats which had not yet reached here.

Two of the bodies recovered were identified, one by papers in a coat pocket, as H. C. Grimm, 60, McCook, Neb., an employé of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad. The other was Clarence Vine, Haverhill, Mass., a member of the boat's crew. The third body was that of a woman past middle age, and weighing about 170 pounds. A wedding ring she wore bore the initials "W. V. L."

Two of the seven reported missing are John S. Haig, Pomona, Cal., and Frank J. Keefe, Providence, R. I.

Tells of Explosion.

Arthur S. Dean of Reading, Pa., a survivor, said he was below decks when the first explosion shook the craft. He said it seemed to him that two more followed immediately after the first blast.

"There was a sudden wave of terrible excitement," he said. "The boat was rocking and it seemed as if it were sinking. I don't know how far we were from shore, though it wasn't very far. There were flames coming out of the engine room and some of the people aboard had been blown into the water by the explosion. The rest of us jumped in to get away from the flames."

Dean said that undoubtedly an ex-

HUNT NEW YORK THEATER MAN IN DEATH VALLEY

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Lost somewhere in Death Valley or in the mountains surrounding it Ralph G. Farnum, Broadway casting agent and actors' representative, with an office in Times square, was tonight hunted by searching parties sent out from Death Valley Junction, Cal., after an exchange of telegrams between the sheriff at the junction and police headquarters here.

Yesterday one of the three burros which Farnum took with him as pack animals when he went alone into the valley fourteen days ago was found wandering down Furnace Creek wash, miles from any settlement.

Despondent, due to sinus trouble, Farnum left here Oct. 29 for Arizona, leaving his secretary, Miss Helen Furst, in charge of his agency here. From Arizona he drifted across the state line into California and two weeks ago set out alone from Death Valley Junction with the burros, sufficient water for six days, and a camping outfit. He said he would return within a few days.

When nothing was heard of him it was supposed he had crossed the mountains to some railroad point until his burro was found yesterday. Late today Miss Furst telephoned that her employer had not returned here. The California sheriff, Coper, was notified and searching parties are being sent out.

Capone Sister Wed; Seize 5 Armed Guards

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Certain exigencies peculiar to his calling yesterday prevented Al Capone from being among those present when John J. Maritote, 23 years old, married Al's young sister, Mafalda. The wedding, described as a "quiet little affair," was held at St. Mary's church, 3010 South 48th court, Cicero, in the recognized domain of the Capones, but far enough from the 22d street sector to be out of the battle zone.

There was only one untoward event in connection with the wedding, and that was the arrest of five gun toters. But the arrests were made so quietly that the social aspects of Mafalda's wedding were not marred in the least. The five gun toters, suspected of being members of the rank and file of Capone's booze army and apparently on guard to prevent any interruption of the ceremony, were arrested by police from the state's attorney's office under the command of Pat Roche, chief investigator.

Three Seized at Church.

Three of the gunmen were picked up on the outskirts of the crowd outside the church during the ceremony. The other two were arrested at 1600 South Austin boulevard, at the apartment of Nathan Vogel, where a reception was held immediately after the ceremony. Another reception was held later at the Cotton club, a Capone resort in Cicero.

Some effort had been made to keep the marriage relatively exclusive among the elect of the alky aristocracy, yet a considerable number of the western suburb's residents came to see and remained to gasp. Nothing quite like this function had heretofore burst upon this neighborhood. So the crowds made the most of the opportunity, and wrenched necks, mashed toes and bruised fingers marked the big shove toward the marquee that covered the red plush carpet up to the church doors.

Ralph Capone in a Topper.

From the silk topper gleaming on the brow of Ralph Capone, Al's brother, who took time off from his dispute with the federal income tax forces to give his sister in marriage, to the white kid shoes of the tiny flower girl, practically every item of the ensemble jibed with the customs of north shore families in sending their daughters to the altar.

Mafalda herself, whose consent to the union, according to outside gossip, was at least partly at the dictates of her powerful brother, was credited with the fact that the phrase "neat but not gaudy" could accurately be applied. Her taste appeared to run less to the flamboyant than that of some of her associates.

Two o'clock, the time set for the

FLYING OFFICER SOLVES N. Y. AIR 'BOMB' MYSTERY

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The aviation unit of the New York police department searched out and explained completely today the mysterious aircraft accident which resulted in a crash of metal through a Harlem rooftop and slight injuries to Mrs. Adell Hrismald.

A patrolman pilot spotted a white biplane on Ward's island. He swooped down and picked up the license number of the plane, NC526. He learned that the plane was registered in the name of Harry Gardner and that its home port was Flushing.

The flying policeman again took the air and landed at the Flushing field where he encountered Edward Reith, a transport pilot. Reith said he had been flying the plane with Gardner and a friend as passengers. At 2,000 feet over Harlem, Reith said, he lost a cylinder and piston as well as part of the cowling. With his engine crippled, he sought the nearest emergency landing field and came down in one of the small cultivated patches on Ward's island.

MILD WEATHER TO STAY TODAY; MAY BE SNOW

Mild temperatures and light snow continued yesterday throughout the Chicago forecast district, which includes most of the north central states, with indications that the same brand of weather would prevail today and possibly tomorrow.

Other sections of the country were less fortunate, however, as a below-zero wave spread over most of southern Canada and northern Minnesota, with 30 below zero recorded early yesterday at Churchill, Manitoba. Another storm centered over the Texas panhandle was causing snowfall over a wide area yesterday, while a third storm was centered along the North Carolina coast.

The damp snow which made walking disagreeable to Chicagoans was ideal for snow balls and thousands of youngsters thronged the city parks while "snow men" appeared over the city as if by magic.

40 Men Blast Out Rock to Free Dog Trapped 5 Days

Mount Pleasant, Ia., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Forty men late tonight blasted out a rock that was the last impediment to the releasing of Bingo, a fox hound trapped in a subterranean prison since Wednesday, but the frightened dog raced back underground and failed to respond to the insistent pleas of his master, Lawrence Mills. The hound became imprisoned when he chased a raccoon into a hole in a hillside and his escape prevented by a sinking of the surface around the hole. Mills said he was certain the dog would respond to his calls after his fright had subsided.

Normal Yule Buying Now Will Aid 1931 Business

Today begins the last full week before Christmas. The deadline for making Yule purchases and getting them ready in time for a week from Thursday approaches nearer and nearer. The shopping centers, moreover, indicate it. The crowds in recent days have been on the job. It looks like a real old fashioned Christmas is in the making.

Buying done before Christmas will have a beneficial effect on conditions after Christmas. Buying now will result in depleted stocks. Stores will then have to order afresh. Manufacturers will have to hire help to fill the orders. Every person thus given a job will begin to buy normally and industry will feel the stimulus of the added buying power.

That's why it should be encouraging to every one to see the stores filled with shoppers. The bigger the crowds these last few days the better Christmas will be and the better will be the times thereafter. Crowds are evidence of normal Christmas buying. Normal buying for normal needs before and after Christmas should be the deliberate program of every one who is able.

plosion of gasoline had caused the disaster.

Al Styles, brother of the captain of the Eureka II., said the boat carried more life preservers than there were passengers aboard and that there was ample time for every one to obtain and adjust one.

"My brother headed the boat toward shallow water which accounts for the small loss of life," he said. According to Styles the boat sank in about 10 feet of water. He fears it will be a total loss.

The Eureka II. was specially constructed for viewing underwater vegetation and creatures and was valued at $15,000. It was built on two pontoons with a well in the middle equipped with glass flooring which could be raised or lowered by machinery.

Baby Survives Unharmed.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Tiny Moonyeene Koonts, 2 years old, chattered happily in the arms of her mother tonight. They and the baby's father were survivors of the Eureka II disaster.

The infant was tossed to the deck of a fishing boat by her father, L. G. Koonts, Miami, who sought to swim to safety after he and his wife jumped from the deck of the burning vessel.

"Save my baby," he called as he thrust Moonyeene on the rescue boat.

The baby was brought to Miami, chattering friendly remarks to the crew. When they arrived they set her safely on the dock. Mrs. Virginia Loew, Miami, saw her and took her to the Miami Herald office.

A few minutes later the baby's father and mother, rescued from the sea by another boat, called at the newspaper office to seek news of her, and found her.

Tells of Panic on Boat.

Fred G. Norman, New York City police sergeant, who, with his wife and their 18 year old son, was rescued from the water, described the scene on the boat as the fire spread.

"My wife, son, and I were on the upper deck when I saw some smoke pouring out of the engine room," he said. "I rushed to the door, where I was met by a member of the crew. I told him, I think he was the engineer, to close the door.

"The whole crew seemed to be crazy.

"People began to rush madly about, screaming "Fire!" Panic reigned. No one gave orders or tried to organize the passengers.

Saw No Lifeboats.

"Two men started pulling down life preservers and distributing them," Norman continued. "There were no lifeboats that I saw.

"A three piece orchestra kept playing like heroes. They were a piano player, a saxophone player and a drummer, and they tried valiantly to save the situation."

"The orchestra was among the last to leave the boat," Norman asserted.

"The crew was among the first to leave," Norman charged. "To the best of my knowledge, there were five members of the crew and the captain."

Yacht Saves Many.

Many survivors were rescued by the yacht Lois Ann, owned by P. W. Miller, Miami Beach. The yacht also brought the bodies of a man and a woman.

Mr. Miller is a retired executive of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, Cincinnati.

"We were on a short cruise today," Miller said, "and were about to sit down for a lunch when we heard an explosion. We could see the fire, by using binoculars, and immediately ordered all speed toward the burning boat.

"Several guests were on the boat, and all of us worked pulling men, women and children from the wreckage choked water into my craft."

Among the survivors were: Alex Gluck, Mrs. George Stewart, Alice C. Alden, Katherine Alden, E. T. Haase, all of Chicago; Alberta Visline, East St. Louis, Ill.; Mabel Packingham, Granville, Ill., and Ed Hale, Indianapolis, Ind.

THRONG ATTENDS FUNERAL RITES FOR NEGRO STAR

'Gabriel's' Last Audience Is at Church.

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—In Harlem, where they refer to the 1930 Pulitzer prize play not by its title but simply as "the company," funeral services were conducted today for the big, genial black man whose own people months ago dropped his real name and called him after the role he played, "Gabriel."

More than 1,000 persons filled the pews and packed the aisles of one of the Negro section's largest churches, where for two hours and a half eulogies were read, hymns were sung, and rituals intoned over the body of Charles Wesley Hill, the "Angel Gabriel" of "Green Pastures," Marc Connelly's drama of the Negro's conception of heaven. Hill was killed by a taxicab Wednesday.

The man who plays the rôle of Jehovah in "Green Pastures," Richard B. Harrison—looking shrunken and older today than he did a few months ago across the footlights—read in a voice that sometimes broke with grief, a tribute to "God's Right Hand man," who helped to create a Broadway success by ushering him on the stage of the Mansfield theater with a joyous, stentorian command:

"Gangway! Gangway for de Lawd God Jehovah!"

"Adam" Conducts Ceremony.

Daniel L. Haynes, one of the best known actors of his race and the "Adam" of the play, was master of ceremonies. At the end of the long service the Negro players, led by the little black cherub who gets a fishbone stuck in his throat at the heavenly fish fry of the first act, filed tearfully by the casket.

Marc Connelly occupied a place of honor in the pulpit, with Harrison, Haynes, and several Negro preachers, while down in a block of pews reserved for them sat the entire staffs of the producer and of the theater in which "Green Pastures" is playing, together with a number of men and women prominently identified with the stage.

An Audience of Singers.

Most of the mourners were of the dead actor's own race. The service comprised long and fiery orations and two Masonic rituals with uniforms, swords, and incense. Hill was never mentioned by any name other than "Gabriel" except in the formal, ritualistic ceremonies.

The two large choirs — the white robed choir and the choir that sings the spirituals in the play — led the audience, every man, woman and child of which apparently could sing, and the volume filled the auditorium with the melodies of the old hymns, while white members of the audience sat with rapt expressions on their faces.

AMERICAN LEGION WON'T ASK PAYMENT OF BONUSES IN CASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The legislative committee of the American Legion, in announcing the program it will sponsor in the present session of congress, today virtually eliminated from consideration proposals for immediate cash payment of adjusted service certificates.

The Legion, however, will put up a fight for reduction of the interest rate to 4 per cent on adjusted compensation loans and for full payments to permanently and totally disabled veterans and to dependents of deceased veterans, the committee announced.

Most important among the measures backed by the Legion at this session is a veterans' hospitalization bill sponsored by Representative Edith Rogers [Rep., Mass.], authorizing an appropriation of $52,000,000 to provide 13,200 beds and committing the government to a policy of providing hospitalization for all veterans, whether their cases are service connected or not.

The committee indorsed several individual hospital bills, including those of Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] and Representative James T. Igoe [Dem., Ill.] for an authorization of $2,000,000 to round out the construction program at Edward Hines Jr. hospital at Hines, Ill., and of an addition to the veterans' bureau hospital at North Chicago, Ill.

KEELEY INSTITUTE REPORTS BUSIEST YEAR EXCEPT ONE

811 Drink Cases Treated in Eleven Months.

Dwight, Ill., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Martin Nelson, secretary of the Keeley institute, a drink cure, announced today that more sobriety seekers were treated here in 1930 than in any other year, except 1907, since the institute was founded fifty years ago.

It was also reported that the ten other Keeley institutes scattered throughout the United States have had an increasing number of patients.

"At one time there were about sixty Keeley cure institutes operating in the United States," said Mr. Nelson. "In 1900 there were thirty. Now there are only eleven. But the eleven remaining are prosperous, going concerns, whereas before a small building often housed a so-called branch. The branches were constantly failing in the old days."

Ten Branches Are Listed.

The ten branches now in operation are at West Haven, Conn.; Des Moines, Ia.; Greensboro, N. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Los Angeles, Denver, Kansas City, Mo.; Dallas; Hot Springs, Ark., and Salt Lake City.

"During 1929 these ten branches treated 16½ per cent more patients than a total of 15 branches in 1920," said Mr. Nelson. "This adequately answers the arguments of prohibitionists that there are fewer institutes today than previously. There are, but they are treating more patients."

Mr. Nelson also denied the assertion of the Anti-Saloon league that present day statistics of liquor cure sanitariums include many dope cases.

Few Drug Cases, He Says.

"We haven't a dope cure case in the institute today," he said. "The average never runs more than five or six a month. Dope cases have been constantly decreasing in the last few years while the liquor cases have been mounting."

During the year up to Dec. 1, 811 persons have been treated at Dwight, Mr. Nelson revealed. This compares with a total of 784 for the entire year of 1928, and surpasses the total of any year since 1879 with the single exception of 1907, when 946 patients were treated in the institute, according to Mr. Nelson.

STATE AND U. S. MOBILIZE FOR POLICE INQUIRY

Hunt Evidence of Link with Underworld.

Chicago's police will be subjected to the scrutiny of both the federal and state governments within the next few months to determine whether there exists a corrupt alliance between the law enforcers and the underworld and whether possible graft resulting therefrom has been reported in federal income tax returns.

Investigators preparing for the dual inquiry predict that when the special state grand jury is called on Jan. 4, captains and others in the police department will be called upon to answer for conditions in their districts. Police captains have already been called to the federal building to answer inquiries about their incomes and federal tax returns.

1927 Banquets Are Recalled.

The calling of the special grand jury was recommended by the regular November grand jury, which charged that there were evidences of an alliance between the police, crooked politicians, and gangsters. This led some investigators to recall banquets given for newly appointed captains early in 1927, after the present Thompson regime began.

These banquets, it is said, were held in loop hotels and several thousand tickets were sold for them. They were promoted by the political sponsors of the new captains and attended by many hoodlums, bootleggers, and vice lords, it is charged.

The proceeds from the ticket sales in excess of the cost of the banquets are said to have been used to purchase high powered automobiles and diamond studded gold stars for the captains. The diamond star and a diamond pin of a north side captain were recently stolen from his office, it is reported.

Golden Years of 1927 and 1928.

Shortly after the beginning of the present administration, which a recent grand jury report declared was responsible for crime conditions in Chicago, slot machines sprang up throughout the city, according to investigators. Indictments obtained against six captains charged the acceptance of bribes for permitting the machines to run.

Gambling houses were numerous and so were horse race handbooks. That these conditions obtained in 1927 and 1928, the golden years of plenty when hoodlums and politicians alike got in trouble with the government over their income taxes, was shown by evidence in the trials of Ralph Capone and Jack Guzik, both of whom were found guilty of tax evasion.

United States Attorney George E. A. Johnson recalled the situation in an address before a meeting in Minneapolis, saying: "When Thompson defeated Mayor Dever for reelection it was on a platform of an open town. The hoodlums and criminals of other states took this literally and there was a great influx of law violators to Chicago."

Booze Traffic Unhampered.

The federal and state investigators declared that at present conditions are not so flagrant with respect to gambling and vice, but that no inroads have been made on the booze traffic. Prohibition agents with years of experience in Chicago estimate the number of saloons, speakeasies and beer flats in the city at 10,000 to 15,000.

It is reported that the state investigators so far have gathered little evidence to support indictment of police officials, unless it be for nonfeasance in office, but that the special grand jury may recommend disciplinary action against captains whose districts are reported rampant with law violations.

The investigators say the hoodlum who bribes a policeman can seldom be induced to talk about it and that evidence of grafting is difficult to obtain. The government, however, can make a flank attack on grafters with its income tax weapon, which has been used successfully against hoodlums, officials and favored contractors.

One of the police officials already under scrutiny of the federal government is Capt. Alfred C. Christensen, recently placed in command of the bureau of missing persons.

Capt. Christensen denied to interviewers that he had been questioned about his income tax returns, but it was learned that he has been interviewed three times. The investigators say they have learned of a two-story brick house at 3031 Hollywood avenue, bought by Capt. Christensen two years ago at a reported cost of $40,000.

The captain said yesterday that the house cost $25,000 and that there was a $17,000 mortgage on it. The records of the recorder's office show the $17,000 figure is correct for the mortgage.

Capt. Christensen's bank deposits have been examined by the federal agents, who refuse to discuss his income. The captain banks with the Edgewater Trust and Savings bank, where his son, W. E. Christensen, is cashier, it is reported. He is reported to have traded in the stock market and his brokerage accounts are under scrutiny. The salary of a police captain, $4,000 a year, is exempt from income taxes.

Policeman for 24 Years.

Capt. Christensen has been a policeman for twenty-four years. He became a sergeant in 1915, a lieutenant in 1923, and a captain in 1925.

His first command as a captain was at the Warren avenue station, where he served during 1927 and 1928 when vice in that district was reputed to be under the control of Jack Zuta and Joe Aiello, since slain by gunmen. Rocco Fanelli, Mike De Pike Heitler, and the Genaro brothers, Johnnie and "Pepe," were seeking to wrest control of the vice in this territory from the north siders, the investigators say, and a series of bombings of brothels in the district was ascribed to them.

The Newport hotel, 2351 Madison street, was one of the places bombed at the time. Policemen were stationed at brothels, not to prevent their running but to watch for bombers, the investigators charge.

Transferred to Bureau.

Two sensational murders occurred in the district at the time and Capt. Christensen was relieved of command and placed on duty at the detective bureau by Chief Michael Hughes.

In 1929 Capt. Christensen was acquitted by the police trial board of charges of neglecting duty. He was put on trial when state's attorneys' detectives raided a gambling den at 4752 Lake street, in the Austin avenue district, which Capt. Christensen then commanded.

This year Capt. Christensen was transferred from the East Chicago avenue station to the "Siberia detail" on North Halsted street after an entry was found in the papers left by the slain Zuta which read, "East Chicago, $3,500." When the detail was broken up he was transferred to command of the bureau of missing persons.

Miss Olga Frances Ulanowski, 1210 North Dearborn street, was crowned Miss Columbia Saturday night as the winner of the popularity contest sponsored by the Knights of Columbus as a feature of the Chicagoland Mardi Gras for the benefit of Christmas charities. Besides the honorary title, the award included a Cadillac sedan. The Mardi Gras lasted for three days, ending at the Hotel Sherman Saturday night in the selection of the contest winner.

PRINTS ON GLASS CLEW TO SLAYER OF CAFE OWNER

Two finger prints left on a glass by the bandit who on Saturday night killed Paul Tulupan during a holdup of the Claridge grill, 1244 North Dearborn street, were being carefully preserved at the bureau of identification last night. Finger print experts were checking them with the thousands on file at the bureau in the hope of learning the identity of the man who killed without reason or compunction.

The killer had eaten in the grill and then without warning he took a sawed off shotgun from under his coat and fired at Tulupan. Taking $30 from the cash register the slayer fled and threw away his gun in the rear of the Windsor theater, 1225 North Clark street. Too much handling of the weapon destroyed any finger print clues on it, so the main hope of tracing the murderer was in the prints left on the glass.

Because of the nature of the crime the police theorized the killer was a dope addict or that the killing was due to revenge rather than with robbery as a motive. Known dope addicts were being hunted.

WHITE ON TRIAL TODAY; AL CAPONE IS DUE IN COURT

Genaro, Stanton, Heitler on Appearance List.

An array of public enemies is expected today. William [Three Fingered Jack] White, Joe Genaro, "Mike De Pike" Heitler, and Danny Stanton have engagements before various judges in state and federal courts and Chief Public Enemy Al Capone will keep three court appointments if he responds to an order to appear before Federal Judge James Wilkerson on an old contempt citation. The scheduled public enemy activity is as follows:

White, who has been in the county jail for two months on a reinstated murder charge, is to be placed on trial this morning on a charge of gun toting. This is due to his arrest last spring in a restaurant with two other public enemies, Bernard O'Donnell and George [Red] Barker, when several revolvers were found on or near their persons. O'Donnell was acquitted, but was immediately indicted for perjury during the trial, and he has fled, forfeiting a $10,000 bond. Barker was returned to the penitentiary, but is seeking his release now through a petition to the Supreme court.

Genaro to Face Lyle.

Genaro, who had been hiding in Hammond, was lured by a telephone call across the state line, where Sergts. Lawrence Brown and Rod Almer of the state's attorney's office were awaiting him. They served him with one of the vagrancy warrants issued by Municipal Judge John H. Lyle against the public enemies, so designated by the Chicago crime commission. He will face Judge Lyle this morning.

Heitler, an old time vice monger, was in the detective bureau showup yesterday with Genaro and Sam Battaglia, recently acquitted of the charge of robbing the wife of Mayor Thompson. Heitler was seized in the loop Saturday. He is on bail on a vagrancy charge. The state's attorney's office did not reveal the charge on which he was arrested.

Stanton Decision Today.

Stanton appears before Criminal Court Judge Philip Finnegan on the extradition proceedings brought in the name of the state of Wisconsin to have him given into the custody of that state for trial on a charge of the murder of Jack Zuta, a Chicago public enemy who was killed soon after the Alfred Lingle murder. Whether Stanton goes to Wisconsin for trial depends on the court's ruling on the ballistic evidence offered.

Al Capone was not found yesterday at the wedding of his sister. His contempt case was advanced for a hearing today and his attorneys, Capt. William F. Waugh and Benjamin Epstein, were notified to produce him in court. The government also wants him in reference to his income tax and one of Judge Lyle's vagancy warrants is unserved.

Lyle Tells of Drive.

Judge Lyle, in an address last night at the Thoburn M. E. church, 64th and Paulina streets, discussed his past activities against public enemies. His issuance of vagrancy warrants and his policy of high bail were appreciated, according to the Rev. John H. De Lacy, and Judge Lyle promised to continue his battle with the forces of evil.

An appeal was made yesterday to Assistant State's Attorney Edwin Duffey for police protection and supervision in an election to fill Red Barker's place as business agent of the Coal Teamsters' union. Union members who petitioned Prosecutor Duffey said that for nineteen years the rank and file of the union had not participated in the election of officers, and no sick or death benefits were ever paid although the members were regularly assessed for them. Barker forced his way into the union, driving out James [Lefty] Lynch, who is seeking to regain his former place, now that Barker is in prison.

STORMS DELAY AIR armada's FLIGHT TO BRAZIL

ORBETELLO, Italy, Dec. 15.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Gen. Italo Balbo's South American flight with a flotilla of 12 seaplanes, which was to have begun this morning, was postponed at midnight until tomorrow or Wednesday on account of severe storms raging over the Mediterranean.

At the same time Gen. Balbo announced the South American flight would be a test for a flight from Rome to New York next year, with the same planes and pilots participating. In this connection he recalled the speech he made at a banquet honoring Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and Roger Q. Williams for their flight from America to Rome last year, wherein he promised that some day he would lead a squadron of planes to New York.

In the meantime fourteen planes tonight rode out the storm on Orbetello lake. Only twelve will make the long trip, the other planes being used as repair or replacement units.

Liner Bound for U. S. Fouls Buoy; Delayed 24 Hours

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The liner Carinthia with 121 passengers sailed for New York today after a delay of 24 hours due to a slight mishap. Soon after leaving yesterday afternoon, the Carinthia's propellers fouled a buoy chain. The engines were stopped and the captain decided to return to the pier, where divers reported after an inspection that no serious damage had been done. The passengers spent the night aboard the ship.

Police Seize Gunmen on Guard at Church.

ceremony, found the seating capacity of the church taxed, and a large crowd milling around outside. Details of Cicero police were clearing lanes and directing the heavy traffic, and crowds of school children were already scrambling back and forth on all fours, to duck under the awning and into the space before the doors. These enterprising youngsters were periodically pushed outside by the guardians of the peace, only to be back within a few minutes, peering up under the canopy.

The first chorus of "ahs" went up at the arrival of a sedan with the six ushers, all in correct formal attire. The bridegroom and his best man arrived almost simultaneously—dapper young Italians, each with a gardenia in his buttonhole.

The pushing and the gasping became more pronounced when other sedans pulling up to the curb discharged a bevy of bridesmaids, fresh-faced young Italian girls, in identical costumes of turquoise blue and shell pink. Their frocks were décolleté, sleeveless models of pink taffeta, long and full. They wore pink duvetyn hats with turquoise satin bands, moire slippers in the turquoise shade, and each carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and sweet peas, with a paper frill, tied in pale blue tulle.

The Matrons of Honor.

Mrs. Ralph Capone and Mrs. Al Capone were matrons of honor. The former, a slim, decided blonde, wore a pale pink chiffon gown with long, full sleeves, and full skirt touching the floor. The latter, a brunette, wore a beruffled sleeveless model of pink chiffon, with tiny shoulder straps of turquoise ribbon and cap sleeves of the ruffled chiffon, edged in silver.

Both wore pink duvetyn hats similar to the bridesmaids', with turquoise slippers, and carried colonial bouquets of valley lilies, roses, and yellow button chrysanthemums.

Even those inside the church knew by the chorus of exclamations outside that the bride had arrived. She stepped from her car with a long wrap of white ermine tossed about her shoulders, half concealing her bridal costume, but as she was given it finishing touches in the vestibule, it was well displayed.

Mafalda Walks to Altar.

Nineteen years old, plump and olive skinned, Mafalda was a pretty bride. A frilled cap of tulle covered her black hair and caught the filmy veil, which swept behind her for a full three yards as she moved toward the front of the church. Her gown was of ivory satin, sleeveless, draped at the bodice and fitted almost to the knees, where it trailed away into a longish train. She wore long white gloves and carried a modernistic bouquet of white gardenias and lilies of the valley.

There was further ado among the crowd outside when her flower girl and boy, small Theresa and Roger Maritote, relatives of the bridegroom, were ushered into the church. Roger was in a white satin suit and tall hat, and Theresa acted the part of a tiny bride in full regalia, including a billowy Kate Greenaway gown of white tulle and a bridal veil.

Five Seized by Roche.

The marriage ceremony that followed was not interrupted by the arrests made by Chief Investigator Roche and his men. The five men taken into custody were rebuked by Roche for the "social blunder" of appearing with guns on their hips. The prisoners are Tony Greco, Nick Dana, William Preifer, Fred Szudegulwgeski, and Joseph Joblonski.

Maritote is a brother of Frank Diamond, listed with Al and Ralph Capone as a public enemy. Like his bride, the gossip went, he was not consulted too much as to whether he wished to marry. The marriage was decided by Capone and Diamond, report had it, by way of strengthening their mutual interests and to avoid a feud between their factions.

The bridal couple will honeymoon in Cuba.

PRISONER KILLS POLICEMAN IN MICHIGAN CITY

Patrolman Charles Glafke, for 18 years a member of the Michigan City police force, was shot and fatally wounded yesterday by a Mexican whom he had arrested as a suspect in a shooting scrape in South Chicago last Friday. The Mexican, Ignacia Zaragoza, 26 years old, later was captured in a swamp outside of Michigan City, a squad having trailed him through the snow. He confessed killing the patrolman, the police said.

Glafke arrested Garagoza shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday morning and went to a police box to call a patrol wagon. When the wagon arrived the crew found Glafke dying by the call box with a bullet wound in his head. The police discerned tracks leading from the spot, followed them, and found Zaragoza.

Insurance Company Official Is the Victim.

In view of a dozen persons in nearby cars, a large sedan last evening at 6:30 o'clock approached the embankment at the mouth of the Chicago river at the southwest abutment of the Navy pier, as if to park. Instead it kept on going to plunge into the river. The water there is 25 feet deep and the car immediately disappeared.

The sedan contained George E. Gallagher, 42 years old, 5529 North Christiana avenue, assistant secretary of the National Life Insurance Company of U. S. A., 29 South La Salle street.

Gallagher's body was recovered in the car when it was raised an hour after the tragedy.

Among the witnesses were A. L. Petit of the central coast guard station, on patrol duty, John Gustaff, 537 Belden avenue, and Miss Peggy Donald, 1432 Winona street. Petit was returning from dinner. Gustaff and Miss Donald were sitting in his car, and Mr. Gallagher passed directly alongside of it.

Unaware of His Danger.

Their stories were that the sedan was traveling at a speed of not more than 15 miles an hour. Dusk had fallen, and its headlights were on. They caught a fleeting glimpse of Mr. Gallagher at the wheel. He was looking straight ahead, as if unaware of his danger. The fall from the embankment to the surface of the water is ten feet, and as the sedan plunged over, they heard him scream.

Petit immediately notified the coast guard station, 600 feet directly south. Capt. John O. Anderson and First Mate Carl Howell ordered a boat out and at the same time notified the police and coroner's office. A motor truck with a derrick was dispatched to the scene. Grappling hooks were attached to the rear wheels and the sedan was lifted to the surface.

In the sedan a woman's black cloth coat was found. This belonged to Mrs. Gallagher and was used as a blanket for Gallagher's dog. Mrs. Gallagher was prostrated when informed of the tragedy. They had been married 23 years. Mr. Gallagher left the house at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, saying he was going to the office to audit some accounts. This was a common practice with him.

George R. Moore, 5344 Bernard street, Mr. Gallagher's brother-in-law, said Mr. Gallagher frequently drove his car to the embankment to look over the lake waters. He and Mrs. Gallagher were there last Sunday, he said.

Robert D. Lay, president of the insurance company, said Mr. Gallagher had been with it for more than 20 years, coming there as an office boy and working himself up through the positions of clerk, bookkeeper, and cashier, to a secretaryship.

One Other Death in County.

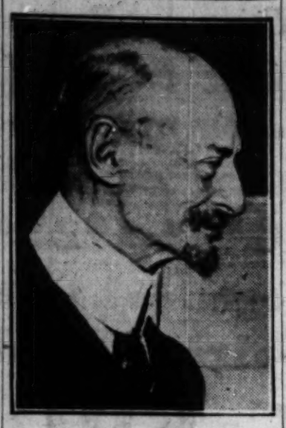

Mr. Gallagher's death and one other raised the 1930 Cook county auto toll to 1,065.

Terrence Cassidy, 21 years old, 7143 Aberdeen street, and James Rodgers, 10 years old, of Oak Forest, were in serious conditions yesterday at Auburn Park hospital as the result of an automobile collision Saturday night at Loomis and 87th streets. Two others, Donald Rodgers, 8, brother of James, and their mother, Mrs. Anna Rodgers, 44, sister of Cassidy, suffered less serious hurts and were taken home.

Leroy Henderson, 37 years old, 1853 North Halsted street, was probably fatally injured when he was struck by the car of Frederick Glenn, 18 years old, 7168 Oak Leaf avenue, Elmwood Park, at North and Cicero avenues.

UNDER KNIFE

DANIEL FROHMAN.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Daniel Frohman, veteran theatrical producer, and president of the Actor's Fund of America, was operated on today at the Park East hospital. Dr. George Schwartz, who performed the operation, said that Mr. Frohman's condition was satisfactory.

Dr. Schwartz declined to state the reason for the operation, beyond that it was an emergency one. However, it was learned at the hospital that Mr. Frohman's admittance card said he was suffering from a dislocated shoulder.

Mr. Frohman was taken to the hospital from the apartment of Miss Fanny Hurst, the novelist. He was believed to have been one of the guests at a tea Miss Hurst had there, but she could not be reached for comment.

Mr. Frohman a week ago celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday as the guest at a dinner given by many theatrical personages. Tonight he was to have been the guest at a dinner given by the National Arts club.

KIDNAP DIAMOND DEALER IN LOOP; LOOT IS $50,000

Salesman Forced Into Car Near Hotel.

Three bandits kidnaped Harry Fine, New York diamond salesman, near the Palmer house yesterday afternoon and put him out of their car on East Grand avenue after robbing him of $50,000 in unset gems. Fine had called on a dealer in the loop and was on his way back to his room in the hotel when he was stopped by the bandits.

Fine, who is in business with his father in the firm of Max Fine & Sons, Inc., 62 West 47th street, New York, told the police that he arrived here Friday after he had sold approximately $20,000 worth of gems in western cities. He made several visits to Franklin Meyers, diamond dealer at 29 East Madison street, but was unable to see him.

On Way Back to Hotel.

Yesterday morning he took his brief case, containing the gems, from the hotel vault and visited Meyers. After a three hour conference he started back for the hotel on foot. As he was walking close to the building line on Wabash avenue, near Monroe street, he was approached from behind by one man and from the side by another.

"Don't move," one of the bandits ordered, jamming a revolver in Fine's ribs. "Don't argue and you won't get hurt."

Fine was forced into an automobile where a third bandit sat at the wheel. His brief case was taken from him and the two bandits sat in the rear seat with him and searched him for other stones. He said that he asked them not to point the revolver at him. After ten minutes the car was stopped and he was told to get out and keep looking straight ahead.

Tells Police of Loss.

He saw the dark sedan turn a corner. He boarded a street car and went to the Bradley hotel, where he reported his loss to the police. He was questioned by Capt. Willard Malone and Sergts. John Gilfeather and Thomas McElin. He said that the stones were insured.

Fine's was the second large gem robbery in the city within thirty days. On Nov. 15 three bandits robbed Jack Salter, also a New York diamond merchant, of $80,000 in unset gems in his hotel room and left him bound and gagged and unconscious. Police believe the same men engineered both robberies.

CHRISTMAS PACKAGE BOMB KILLS MAN, BADLY INJURES WIFE

Shickshinny, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP)—A dynamite bomb delivered in a Christmas package today wrecked the farm house of Joseph Mastpiekas, 49, three miles from here. Mastpiekas was killed and his wife was critically injured. Mastpiekas found the package on his porch bearing holiday labels and trimmings. He took it inside to show his wife.

State police are holding one man, working on the theory that a neighborhood quarrel was the basis of the attack.

Three daughters in the family, who were asleep, were uninjured by the explosion. The eldest ran downstairs to find her father's body had been blown from the kitchen to an adjoining room. Her mother, the girl said, was unconscious on the kitchen floor.

Mrs. Masteikas said the package carried a gay colored picture of Santa Claus. "It must be a Christmas present," she told her husband. Together they began unwrapping it. She remembered nothing else. The seven room farm house was demolished.

Masteikas worked during the winter in the coal mines. A year ago his automobile was wrecked by a dynamite explosion, which occurred as a fellow worker opened a door of the car.

HARRY HAMLIN RAPS TRANSIT MERGER PLAN

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Attorney Harry F. Hamlin, as a bondholder of the north and west side surface lines, voiced a protest yesterday against the proposed financial plan to consolidate the surface and elevated lines into one transit system. He was formerly first assistant United States district attorney and more recently a judge of the municipal court. In addition, he is chairman of the board of directors of the Edgewater Trust and Savings bank.

HARRY F. HAMLIN.

"I am only one of the thousands who hold securities in the Chicago Railways company, and feel that we are being robbed of our money," reads his statement. "The financial setup proposed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. is indefensible. There is no use of talking about all of the security holders being satisfied. I am not, nor are many others who have spoken to me about the deal.

Many Not Satisfied, Claim.

"The bondholders' protective committees acquiescing in this arrangement are composed almost entirely of bankers. The personnel of the committees may be satisfied, but the great mass of security owners are far from being so."

Becoming more specific, Mr. Hamlin charges that the elevated lines are getting too large a share in the new transportation company. He goes on:

"The elevated roads that have barely met their bonds and have paid no dividends on their stock since the creation of the corporation, are to be preferred over the mortgage holders of the Chicago Railways company, which has great earning possibilities; so much so that the chairman of the 'B' protective committee has admitted that the railways company could pay off its entire bonded indebtedness out of its earnings in 10 years.

Cites Special Funds.

"The railways company has a valuation placed upon its property by the city of Chicago of $95,292,482, with a bonded indebtedness of $86,000,000. In addition to this the company has on hand a cash balance in the banks of over $3,000,000, and in special funds over $11,000,000, upon which the Court of Appeals has said the bondholders have a lien. The bondholders' margin of security is ample to pay them in full. Why should they be made junior to the securities of a company having much less equity and whose properties are not in court? My holdings are not large, but they mean much to me. Why should I, of my meager holdings, be asked to swell the value of Mr. Insull's properties?

"With ample security for the bonded indebtedness, I am asked to take for each of my 'B' bonds, four shares of 'A' common stock in the new corporation and the remainder in 'B' stock of doubtful value. Even the capital stock of Mr. Insull's companies, which had never had an earning capacity, is to share in this 'B' common stock almost to the extent of my mortgage.

Charges "L" Profit of 25 Million.

"As nearly as I can figure out, the elevated is making for its security holders a profit of about $25,000,000 at the expense of the Chicago Railways company security holders. It is making this profit by getting face value for something which has but scant value now.

"The scheme of settlement proposed is absolutely iniquitous. An army of objectors will be in Judge Wilkerson's court to protest and I—for one—expect to be there. It is high time for the small bondholders, who put their securities in the hands of so-called protective committees, to take an inventory of their situation and for the others to act who are still free."

Brazil to Move Jobless of Cities to Farm Lands

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 15.—Following yesterday's decrees restricting immigration and ordering an emergency income tax from all government employés for the purpose of unemployment relief, the department of labor today announced an intensive back to the land movement of jobless persons in the cities.

Four Others Sentenced to Prison for Life.

revolutionary committees similar to that at Jaca have been set up.

New disorders in several smaller towns have caused casualties. In the town of Gallur four persons were wounded, two seriously, when revolutionary mobs clashed with the police. At Tauste seven persons were wounded. Troops are patrolling the highway from Huesca to Jaca.

How the two executed army officers engineered the revolt has been revealed.

A "Whisper" Revolt.

On Friday afternoon when they had finished with their drills at the Jaca fortress, the two asked their men to lay down their arms and cease to serve the king. They told the troops that it was their duty to launch a movement to free the country.

The soldiers revolted at once against their other officers. Many townspeople joined them. When Jaca was in possession of the revolutionary band Capt. Galan ordered his men to march on Huesca. The small body gathered strength from other garrisons as it marched along. The rebel "army" actually proceeded 30 miles to Ayerbe, where it arrived early Saturday. In the meantime an alarm had been spread.

The government forces met the 600 rebels a mile from Ayerbe. When the artillery fired, the insurgent threw down their arms, refused to fight, some surrendered. Others fled. The two officers surrendered to avoid further bloodshed.

Fear General Strike Today.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, Dec. 14.—The Spanish monarchy is facing the most difficult situation in its recent history as a plot of nation-wide magnitude is given official cognizance. In an official note tonight the government tells of an attempt to institute "a revolutionary general strike" in all parts of Spain tomorrow. It warns, however, that it has means to overcome any difficulties that may arise and is disposed to use them to the limit. Fear persists, however, that the strike will begin in large cities tomorrow.

Although a government communique tonight insisted the army everywhere was loyal, the impression prevails that government is not certain of its troops in southern cities.

The imminent threat of martial law hangs over Madrid, Barcelona, Saragossa, and other cities and anxiety won't be dispelled until it is discovered whether strikes are actually declared tomorrow.

As a precautionary measure, civil guards and police have been ordered to maintain 100 per cent strength in all parts of Spain. Martial law has already been declared at Castellone and several other smaller cities where republican and Socialist sentiment is strong.

COUNCIL GROUPS ON SUBWAY TO REJECT PROTESTS

Hold Court Fight Cannot Be Avoided.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

It was the opinion of both Ald. O. F. Nelson [46th] and James B. Bowler [20th], yesterday that the aldermanic committee will recommend the subway ordinance without change, to the city council for passage at two o'clock this afternoon. These aldermen are the chairmen of the committees on special assessments and local transportation, which are holding joint hearings on the ordinance.

The amendments proposed by the State street property owners, who desire the subway and will be asked to pay special assessments of $26,744,000 towards the $46,500,000 total cost of the subway will be left out of the plans to be approved by the council, it is said. The battle will probably be renewed in court, when the city asks confirmation of the special assessments.

The predicted committee action is said to have been recommended by one of the city's lawyers. His view is that a court contest cannot be avoided and the sooner it is started the sooner it will be finished.

"State street has not shown anything fundamentally wrong with the plans," said Ald. Nelson. "If we give State street more time, we have no assurance that subsequent trouble will be avoided. I think majority sentiment in the committees favors action when we meet at noon tomorrow."

"That, too, is my guess on the position of a majority of the committees," said Ald. Bowler. "I want to see the subway started. Council action on the ordinance will be deferred until the next meeting, so we will have some time for reflection."

Offers Another Opinion.

The view of another alderman who did not want his name disclosed is: "A turndown of State street property owners tomorrow will be a mistake. If they are right in their contentions it will be a serious blunder. If they are wrong, a turndown tomorrow will be highly indiscreet, increase the force of their battle against the plans, and may put subways off for a year.

"The first asked for adequate time to study the plans before the public hearing of the board of local improvements. Then they were told to develop their suggestions in concrete form. They have done that. I think our plans are better than what they have developed, but they do not know that. They honestly believe their plans are better. We have made no effort to demonstrate to the property owners' committee that our plans are better.

"If we can demonstrate to them, as I believe we can, that some changes they propose are inadvisable, and that we intend to make other changes they ask, they will be forced by their own sense of fairness and reasonableness to refrain from opposing the plans.

"The merchants ask for the privilege of show windows on the train levels of the subway, which I have seen in Boston, New York and Philadelphia. There is no reason on earth why that request should not be granted, yet we have given them no definite satisfaction on that and other requests.

"We have made plans which satisfy all the public utilities—the surface lines, the elevated roads, the North Shore line, the Aurora-Elgin line, the Edison company, the gas company, the phone company, the Postal and the Western Union telegraph companies—which will not pay for the subway; and then make no real effort to satisfy the property owners, who will pay for the subway.

"That isn't fair. If that happens, we will thereby increase the court opposition to the subway ordinance. We will thereby aid them to get a majority of the property owners signed up against the plans which will give them the legal power to defer the subway for a year, when there will be some new aldermen, a new mayor and a new board of local improvements."

Considers Railroad Problem.

This alderman discussed another angle. He recalled that the west side subway, to be built later, has been placed on Harrison street by a vote of three to two of the advisory board. He said that the chief argument for Harrison, instead of Polk street, is that it will better accommodate the proposed railroad station, in which the New York Central is a dominating factor.

The alderman commented that the first railroad objector of the State street subway is the Michigan Central, a part of the New York Central system.

He advised that the president of the New York Central be telegraphed today to come to Chicago on Wednesday morning to discuss his desire to be relieved of paying the road's share of the cost of the State street subway; and whether the road will refuse to contribute to the future subway that will be an adjunct to the new station.

Three Engineers Not Heard.

"Let me express another idea," went on this commentator. "We sent out invitations to the committee hearings. We said we welcomed criticism, yet we have failed to date to call upon David A. Wallace, Edward J. Noonan, and George C. Lenth, members of our own board of advisory engineers, for their views.

"And the committee has never heard their opinions, in writing or orally, upon the subway design. Two of this trio are reported to be opposed to the plans. I think the plans are as good as we can get, but I want the views of these three engineers on record. We are paying well for their services."

ATHENS, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Departing from Athens after a four day visit, Foreign Minister Marinkovich of Jugo-Slavia, declared that Greece and Jugo-Slavia have the same interest in maintaining a status quo in the Balkans. ASKS HOOVER TO CUT RED TAPE ON BUILDING PLANS

72 Millions Laying Idle Since Spring.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Shearing of the red tape which has delayed construction of the Chicago postoffice and other government building projects was proposed to the Hoover administration today as an effective way of furnishing real and immediate help in the relief of unemployment this winter.

The suggestion came from Representative Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee, who pointed out the fact that $72,555,000 is lying idle in the building fund of the treasury department awaiting expenditure on new buildings.

Mr. Byrns summed up his proposal in six words, which were "Spend the 72 million dollars."

Appropriated Last Spring.

The money referred to by the Tennessee representative is not connected in any way with the relief projects now pending in congress. The 72 million dollars was appropriated by congress last spring and is a part of the buildings appropriation made available to the treasury department last July 1. It could have been spent at any time since that date.

Representative Byrns has been especially interested in buildings to be erected at Chattanooga, Tenn., and Knoxville, Tenn. Appropriations were made for these buildings in the last deficiency bill and not even the sites have yet been selected, he declared. In the case of the Chicago postoffice delays have included the obtaining of title to the new air rights site and the preparation of plans.

Scores Government Delay.

"They have got in the treasury today to the credit of the building fund 72 million dollars," said Mr. Byrns. "If the administration is so anxious to provide work and that money has been lying there in the treasury idle why is it that these buildings have not been put under construction?"

It takes an average of four months for the department of justice to pass on a title to a building site after it has been selected, Byrns asserted, while a private attorney performs a similar task in a week or less.

"Then after the title has been approved deeds must be passed," he continued. "Then plans and specifications must be drawn, bids called for, advertisements made and after the lowest bid has been received and accepted contracts must be entered into and passed on by the legal authorities."

The last word on the $21,000,000 Chicago postoffice was that bids may be asked as early as next month, although the date is uncertain. The date, according to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Ferry K. Heath, will depend upon the length of time that elapses before the treasury obtains title for the railroad property site on Van Buren street, completion of the working drawings by the architects, and rate of progress made by the railroads in preliminary construction that must be under way before the government can begin building.

SANTAS' BEARDS, STOMACHS REAL IN 1930 TOYLAND

Tin Soldiers Can March; Everything Moves.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Times have changed since the day of Little Boy Blue. The toy world no longer waits until lights are out and grownups sleep before it comes to life. The tin soldiers walk and shoot, the rag dog runs across the modern nursery floor—it is a lifelike playworld with everything on the move.

The toy center has shifted from the back room workshops of Germany to America and has fitted itself to the modern tempo. Everything is on wheels or animated by cleverly constructed springs. It is the adult world reduced to a smaller scale. The sophisticated child of today refuses make believe without a basis of practical reality, and even the department store Santas must have real beards and stomachs.

Children Tug at Beard.

Santa Claus Todd, dean of this city's professional Kris Kringles, has one of the finest white beards seen outside of a hair tonic advertisement, and he lets the unbelievers among the children tug at it.

It must amuse the little doubters, he was told.

Toy factories are concentrated in the eastern and New England states, and New York City has become the toy center of the world.

More than 65 per cent of the toys sold in the United States, according to the toy manufacturers' chamber of commerce, are now domestic made. Trains and electric toys lead among the boys and grownup dolls head the list of favorites with the girls. There are more than 300 classifications of toy makers in New England and 800 manufacturers who make only dolls.

Manufacturers Specialize.

It is a day of specialization for toy makers. Toys are assembled at central shops like automobiles. Large firms now concentrate on entirely one or two things. The Fred K. Braitling factory at Bridgeport, Conn., makes more than a million pairs of shoes a year for dolls. The largest are less than five inches long. There are overshoes and even house slippers for doll children.

One company makes only doll carriage robes, another manufactures doll's eyes and voice, a third specializes in electric playthings, some devote their time to games and it is that way on down the line with one house making 200,000 doll wigs each year.

There is a factory that has been turning out toy railroad tracks since 1868 and if the tracks manufactured by that one company were placed end to end they would represent ten times more mileage than any real train line of the present time.

Sham Toys Vanish.

The cheap, sham toy has vanished from the shops. Playthings of today are cleverly constructed to simulate as closely as possible the real zeppelins, airplanes, trains, automobiles, musical instruments, and household units of 1930.

There has been no sign of any business depression in the popular priced toys, according to toy department heads in three New York stores. The higher priced playthings, such as $75 automobiles, $50 horses, and $250 doll houses are moving slowly, they say, but they are more for store decoration than anything else.

LACK OF NORMAL BUYING IS BLAMED FOR SLOW RECOVERY

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Undue retrenchment by the consuming public in the purchase of ordinary necessities of life was blamed for tardiness in recovery from the prevailing economic depression in a survey of unemployment conditions made public today by the National Association of Manufacturers through John E. Edgerton, president of the association.

Based upon a study of 939 plants, embracing leading industrials throughout the country, the survey revealed that industry is now operating at 86.81 per cent of normal capacity and that in the last five months employment has dropped only 5.67 per cent.

"Taking all things into consideration," said Mr. Edgerton, commenting upon the results of the survey, "the conclusion is inescapable that the most of the blame for our tardy economic recovery is to be found at the door of the consuming public which has retrenched too heavily in its normal purchase of the ordinary things of life."

REPORT $50,000 RANSOM DEMAND FOR RUM CHIEF

The police of Chicago Heights were undecided last night whether James Ward, reputed a wealthy bootlegger of the southern suburb, was kidnaped for ransom of $50,000 or whether he was taken for a ride to be killed by rival gangsters, according to Chief of Police Harry B. Stafford.

The chief refused to confirm a report that Ward's wife received a demand for ransom yesterday. She went to church in the morning with her three children and she said they prayed for the safe return of the husband and father. On the way home she said she had faith her husband would not be harmed.

Ward was kidnaped Saturday night as he left his home in Chicago Heights. Mrs. Ward saw him struggling with four men who put him in an automobile and they called to her, "You'll hear from us later." Three years ago Ward was kidnaped for ransom but through the reported intervention of Al Capone he was released without any money being paid. He was indicted a year ago as a leader of the Chicago Heights booze conspiracy.

Father and Son Charged with Murder of Family

Williston, N. D., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Warrants charging first degree murder had been issued today against Charles Bannon and his father, James F. Bannon, in connection with the slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Haven and their four children on the Haven farm near Schafer last February. Charles Bannon is in jail here, confessed slayer of the Havens. The elder Bannon is held at Toledo, Ore., where he was apprehended Saturday.

Dry Agents Seize Liquor in Raids on Two Cafes

Prohibition agents reported yesterday the finding of beer and liquor in two cabarets raided last Saturday night. At the Garage cafe, 80 East 30th street, the agents arrested Benjamin Constantino, the owner, after confiscating a supply of whisky and beer. At the Dine and Dance cafe, 509 North Clark street, Eugene Brooks, owner, was arrested when alcoholic drinkables were found on the premises.

JAPANESE PRESS FLAYS CABINET'S 'REIGN OF TERROR'

Protests Censorship and Jailing of Reporter.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Japan, Dec. 15.—[Monday.]—Protesting against the government's high handedness, in particular the harsh actions of the police in restraint of freedom of speech, all the Tokio newspapers this morning publish a sensational joint statement likening the present condition of affairs to a reign of terror, and charging the government's attitude is a challenge to the press and a threat against free speech.

The protest is the result of long antagonism by the police, who in the last year, despite the government's declaration that it was founded on justice and fair play, have caused 1,400 issues of newspapers to be suppressed. The most serious of these concerned publication of reports on the trials of a former governor general of Corea and a former cabinet minister of railways, who are members of the government party.

Jail Newspaper Man.

The action of the press was precipitated by the arrest of Masao Hosokoshi, a political reporter on the newspaper Jiji Shinpo. He was seized on Dec. 7 and held incomunicado for days.

The joint declaration charges that Mr. Hosokoshi, after being subjected to the third degree, was outrageously treated on mere allegations of spreading false rumors of Premier Yuko Hamaguchi's condition.

It has been revealed that Mr. Hosokoshi was not fed except for a bowl of soup for four whole days, and that he was stripped to the skin and given only a thin blanket.

The joint declaration reads in part:

"The frequent and unreasonable suppression of news, and the prohibition of the sale of newspapers is unjustified and uncalled for. In particular the unwarranted arrest and detention of Hosokoshi on the pretext that he spread false rumors is outrageous to the conscience of the newspapers. There is reason to believe that the police employed underhand measures which were motivated by a secret faction within the government in order to obtain information regarding the actions of their foes.

Attack Guile of Police.

"Such an action reveals the existence of a spy system in the government and betrays a lack of justice in the government which prides itself as being based on fair play. Such cunning craftiness on the part of the police has brought on a reign of terror to those upholding freedom of speech.

"The government's attitude is a challenge to all newspapers. They cannot regard the recent actions of the government as due to a display of a lack of commonsense by a few police officials, but as a well schemed method of the government to violate the spirit of freedom. We hereby impeach the government for lack of justice."

If the Chicago Better Business Bureau Is Correct—Then The Davis Price Policy Works And Here Is the Place

For You to Buy!

Finds 99.5% of Advertised Goods Are as Represented

BY SCRUTATOR.

Since the days of Benjamin Franklin it has been a copybook maxim that honesty is the best policy. Business has always accepted it in theory, but sometimes individuals abandon it in practice. As a consequence there exists a considerable body of opinion among consumers to the effect that the buyer must always beware.

In this season of Christmas shopping it is important to spenders to know just how far they may trust merchants and particularly Chicago merchants who are offering goods for sale. Some exact figures on the best of them, those who advertise in the daily newspapers, are available. The conclusion: Of all the goods offered for sale in reputable public print, 99.5 per cent are as represented. It is a 200 to 1 chance that the buyers will get just what the advertisement says he will.

The figure is given by Flint Grinnell, manager of the Chicago Better Business bureau, an organization which is supported by 700 business concerns and is constantly checking up on practices which may deceive the public.

"For seven months," said Mr. Grinnell, "we went through the advertisements and selected all that bore any earmarks of possible gyping operations. We sent shoppers to purchase the suspected goods. A reasonably large part of the suspected ones were found wanting in honesty, but the proportion of the whole advertising that was deceptive in the slightest degree was only half of one per cent.

mal buying now. There is a marked trend toward the elimination even of the small fringe of unethical sellers. A few years ago a good many rabbit skins were sold in the form of expensive fur coats. Now it is almost unheard of for rabbits to be sold as anything but itself.

"The Better Business bureau has been in existence here for four years. We have a staff of twenty-three permanently employed and a maximum of twenty-five shoppers. A total of $30,000 a year is expended in preventing the public from being deceived. Cooperation of newspapers and advertisers is readily obtained. We call the attention even of our own members to things which are undesirable.

Make Maxim Effective.

"Sellers are really making 'honesty is the best policy' effective. Sometimes we have as many as fifty calls a day inquiring about permissible wording of advertisements concerning merchandise. It is encouraging also to find salesmen and saleswomen are being instructed to represent merchandise just as it is."

A considerable amount of small time honesty still exists, enough certainly to justify the buyer in keeping up his guard. But the word of an investigating organization of standing that the advertising merchants give their customers the right deal 199 times while they give them a wrong deal only once is little short of astonishing.

EUROPE PLANS TO CURE HARD TIMES AT COST OF U. S.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The British government will make a debt payment of $94,390,000 to the United States treasury tomorrow.

Of this amount $23,000,000 is on account of repayment of principal, while the balance represents interest. Total payments to the United States since the funding of the British debt now amount to $1,285,750,000, of which $203,000,000 represents repayment of principal.

The amount outstanding now has been reduced to $4,398,000,000.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Propaganda is being mobilized throughout Europe for a revision of the American war debts. Utilizing the Wall street crash and the resultant year of depression in the United States and the repercussion of hard times all over the world, the debtor nations are preparing to make a mass appeal to Washington.

As a curtain raiser for the revision or cancellation of the debts, there is expected to be a special international conference held early in 1931 at Geneva under the auspices of the league of nations to inquire into the basic causes for the world depression, and the interested governments are already preparing their agenda and arguments proving that the slump is directly connected with the war debts.

Drag In German Debt.

German reparations are obviously being linked up with Europe's obligations to the United States because it is realised that Washington would never consent to reopen the question unless assured that some one else will make concessions also. Furthermore, it is necessary to keep the defeated powers, Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Bulgaria, fined up solidly with the continental powers for revision.

Nicolas Titulesco, Rumanian minister to London, started the ball rolling with the announcement that a "hard times" conference is necessary, and since then French political writers and other European mouthpieces have supported the plan wholeheartedly.

The international bank for reparation settlements at Basel was sounded out on the proposition, and it is reported that President Gates W. McGarrah carried a fairly comprehensive outline of the revisionist scheme to America when he sailed a few weeks ago.

Offer Trade Argument.

European reasoning is as follows: The United States is hard hit by the market collapse and resulting industrial reaction, with thousands of large factories unable to find a market for their output. Europe is feeling the results of the crash with bank failures, financial stringency and curtailment of purchasing, together with the inability to surmount the tariff barriers. The sure cure to be offered to Uncle Sam for stagnant world trade is a radical revision or cancellation of war debts, automatically reducing or wiping out the reich's reparations.

This, it is pointed out, would free hundreds of millions of dollars now being paid from government to government to private commerce and to state guaranteed credits, and permit enormous increase in international trade, with America reaping a fair share of the increased business.

It is insisted that political stability will immediately follow economic solidity everywhere, and China, South America and even Russia will react strongly to the new era of prosperity, opening vast markets for America's industrial activities.

America Thought Willing.

It is believed here that American public opinion, hitherto hostile to further debt sacrifices, is ready and willing for complete cancellation if such action would bring back good times through reviving business and confidence.

It is pointed out that a generous gesture by Washington would solve its principal obstacle to relations with the soviets, because if America abandoned war debts and the allies crossed off reparations, the communists could wriggle out satisfactorily from the czarist government's obligations.

It is asserted freely here that amelioration of reparations would be one of the deadliest blows that could be struck against the Hitlerite nationalism in Germany which threatens to strain relations between France and Poland.

About the only difficulty not claimed to be solved by the debt cancellation panacea is the Franco-Italian naval deadlock.

LET SALLY SEND YOU EXTRA HELP FOR HOLIDAYS

Many Need What Work You Can Offer.

Right now is a good time to consult Sally Joy Brown about that extra help you are going to need over the holidays. Monday morning inevitably brings in floods of appliants for positions, many of whom have been jobless for months. The quarters of the Illinois Free Employment Service at 116 North Dearborn street, where all the jobs of which Sally is notified are dispensed to the scores waiting, are invariably packed at the beginning of the week.

Whatever help you need can be secured here, but it is not advisable to wait until the last minute to engage some one. Satisfaction is insured by interviewing the prospective assistant previous to the time when he or she will be expected to start work and making sure that the type of worker needed for each job is on hand.

Many in Need of Jobs.

Both men and women are wanting and needing badly the jobs that will be open around scores if not hundreds of homes in the city during the holidays. Modern housewives long ago dispensed with the idea that they could, somehow, single handed, prepare and serve a dinner of the holiday proportions for their own family and guests. Not only does such an effort leave the cook exhausted and with a badly frayed temper, but the entire family is made uncomfortable by the knowledge of her straining effort for the occasion.

Many calls received at Thanksgiving time testified to the rush that is sure to come for similar assistance at the even more important Christmas affairs. The sooner you put your new maid or cook on the job the better it will be for both employer and employé. Sally is ready this morning to take your call. You can reach her at Superior 0100.

More Needed for Men.

Reports made lately from the Illinois free employment bureau records indicate unmistakably that many more jobs are needed for men. Both the holiday spirit and the necessity of readying up the house and yard should inspire the hiring of many of these men for temporary jobs. They come recommended by the Illinois bureau, and include in their ranks men capable of doing almost any kind of work that can be named. Some of them are among the best trained workers that can be located in any trade or calling, but for various reasons have been unfortunate enough to lose their jobs. You can get this skilled labor for your holiday chores.

HUNT CLOTHING STORE ROBBERS.

Two robbers who escaped with $835 after threatening one of the owners and six clerks of the Hyster Brothers' clothing store, 1557 Milwaukee avenue, were sought by the police yesterday. The holdup men entered the store late Saturday night, pretending they were interested in the purchase of a suit.

Searing Acid Stomach Ends

Mr. C. M. Reads, Merchantville, New Jersey, writes, "After 15 years of searing acid stomach I began taking ACIDINE. From the first dose, about three weeks ago, I have enjoyed my old health back again."

Just another of thousands who are astonished at the way this new prescription ACIDINE succeeds when other known remedies fail. The reason is it is different from other medicines. ACIDINE contains Japtase, which, in laboratory tests, digested 800 times its own weight of certain heavy starchy foods. ACIDINE neutralizes burning acid, soothes irritated stomach and intestinal linings, helps end acidosis.

Eat, drink all you want. When sour stomach, gas, pain, heartburn, bad taste, heavy feeling, short breath, dizziness, belching, nervousness, colds, grassy headaches and sleeplessness trouble you, take ACIDINE. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money.

HOOVER FACING TROUBLE TODAY IN BOTH HOUSES

Senate to Consider Slap at Policies.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—President Hoover is facing trouble tomorrow in both houses of congress.

In the senate, his critics will try to get action on the La Follette resolution, which was offered as a slap at him last Tuesday.

In the house administration supporters may have difficulty rounding up the two-thirds vote necessary to pass the drought relief loan bill in a form acceptable to Mr. Hoover under a suspension of the rules.

The President now seems assured of obtaining the enactment of an emergency construction bill substantially as he recommended it. Whether he will meet final defeat in his effort to prevent an authorization of food loans in the drought relief, seed, feed, and fertilizer loan bill, and to hold down the total appropriation hinges largely upon action in the house. Heretofore the house has usually stood by the administration, but the leaders are somewhat apprehensive about what this branch of congress may do tomorrow when confronted with the food loan issue and also with the question of a $30,000,000 or a $60,000,000 appropriation.

La Follette Resolution Up.

The breach between President Hoover and congress is likely to be further widened if the senate approves the La Follette resolution which was inspired by the President's charge that members of congress are "playing politics at the expense of human misery."

The La Follette resolution recites that "millions of people are in destitute circumstances," and that the President of the United States in a public statement has indicated that consideration for the interests of income tax payers necessitates restriction on governmental relief measures necessary to aid the jobless and their dependents," and concludes by declaring that "it is the sense of the senate that the relief of human suffering in this emergency should take precedence over the consideration of the interests of wealthy income tax payers."

If the Democrats and radical Republicans vote solidly for the resolution it will be adopted. The Republican leaders recognize this and are trying to bring about an agreement by which the preamble containing the reference to the President will be eliminated. If this is done it is more than likely that the resolution will go through with little if any opposition.

Hoover Peeved at Party Leaders.

The understanding is, however, that President Hoover wants the resolution in any form defeated. Its adoption, he realizes, would be interpreted as a rebuff to him. Despite the advice of Republican senators that he should issue no more denunciations of congress it would not be surprising if adoption of the La Follette resolution would be followed by another broadside by the White House.

President Hoover, possibly with an eye to his candidacy for renomination and reelection in 1932, wants his administration defended in congress and resents the willingness of his supposed friends to allow Democrats and radicals in the senate to ride rough shod over his proposals.

Republican leaders in the senate on the other hand, recognizing that the cards are stacked against them and that the Democrats and radical Republicans can win whenever the issue is sharply drawn against the administration, believe that the wisest course is to stir up as little friction as possible in the senate and to rely upon the house to keep legislation in line with what Mr. Hoover wants.

DON'T TRY TO CHANGE LEFT HANDED CHILD, OPTOMETRIST WARNS

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 14.—(AP)—If a child is born left handed, much to the displeasure of the parents, who may try to change its habit to right handed—or vice versa—watch out for the child's eyes. He may become cross-eyed.

Forty leading optometrists of America, meeting here today in the tenth annual session of the American College of Optometry, were told this by Dr. William Feinbloom, Brooklyn, N. Y., research fellow at Columbia university.

Dr. Feinbloom read a paper prepared by Dr. George Oertal, Syracuse, N. Y., who recommended that a child should be permitted to use whatever hand he best adapts himself to.

At the night meeting Dr. Edwin Forbes Tait of Philadelphia, said it takes greater eye energy to see or read something fourteen inches from the eye than it does across the room.

The sessions will close today.

HUNTERS DROWN PASSING DAM IN ILLINOIS RIVER

Ottawa, Ill., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Two hunters who attempted to pass the locks in the Illinois river, near Starved Rock, in a small rowboat, were drowned when their craft was caught in the rapids.

The identity of the men was not learned for several hours, until a beagle dog which was in the boat and swam to shore was identified as belonging to Garfield Ruppert of Peru, Ill., who had gone hunting with Ralph Herbolt, a neighbor.

GOOD FELLOWS FIND HAPPINESS IN GOOD THEY DO

Get Double Pleasure Out of Christmas.

There are only ten days left for you alone or with your friends to adopt some cold and hungry family before Christmas. Do you know of anything that would bring you more genuine happiness on Christmas than the knowledge that you are helping some destitute family survive the winter? Join the Good Fellows today. There's a coupon for your convenience in a nearby column. Help some unemployed man retain a home for his wife and children until he can become self-supporting.

The Good Fellow headquarters in THE TRIBUNE offices at Dearborn and Madison streets can assign you a family whose worthiness has been established by careful investigation. Your contribution will reach this family without a nickel being deducted for overhead. THE TRIBUNE pays the expenses of administering the Good Fellow fund.

Many Good Fellows Enroll.

The allowances for these families are guided by a minimum budget for necessities that is standard with Chicago charities. The expenditures are supervised by trained and experienced social welfare workers.

Thousands of Good Fellows have enrolled to date, finding happiness in helping others. The spirit of cheerful charity is driving from the public mind the pessimism partly responsible for the business depression. A donation of $1 receives the same careful administration as a pledge for $1,000 a month, every penny being spent for food, clothing, shelter, and heat for families who otherwise would lack these necessities.

Another army of Good Fellows is organizing to protect the children in the families of the poor from empty stockings on Christmas morning. They are being assigned by the Good Fellow headquarters to families where a basket of food and some toys for the children will convert Dec. 25 into a holiday rather than a day emphasizing the misery of dire poverty.

Bureau Furnishes Names.

If you want to deliver a Christmas basket, playing Santa Claus to the children of the poor, the Good Fellow coupon printed on this page can be used in applying for the name and address of a deserving family. The families on the basket list are obtained from the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, a clearing house for 200 Chicago charity organizations, through its Christmas bureau, financed by THE TRIBUNE.

The cooperation of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies lessens the chances of some families receiving more than one basket at the expense of depriving others of any basket. Churches, clubs, and companies who are distributing baskets are invited to use the council's files so as to prevent overlapping in the Christmas charity.

KILLS DAUGHTER AND HERSELF ON DAY OF WEDDING

Denver, Colo., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Bodies of Helen Hidinger, 21, and her mother, Mrs. Eugenia Prowant, 48, were found here today revealing what officers said was the slaying of the girl on her wedding day by the mother, who then took her own life.

E. G. Prowant, stepfather of the young woman, said his wife had opposed the marriage of Miss Hidinger to Earl Penna, and also had been in ill health.

The bodies were found in a locked bedroom by police summoned by Prowant. George Bostwick, deputy county coroner, said Mrs. Prowant had evidently placed the pistol close to the sleeping girl's head as she pulled the trigger.

FRANCE WORRIES AS U. S. TOURISTS GO ELSEWHERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 14.—France is seriously worried on account of the continuous decrease in American tourists. Despite efforts of the government to protect the tourist trade by the creation of a special department, this source of revenue has dropped greatly. Statistics show an important increase of American visitors in Italy, Germany and Spain.

According to the figures issued at Washington and just published in Paris, American visitors spent $160,000,000 in France in 1929 against $190,000,000 in 1927, and, although the figures for 1930 are not yet known, they are believed to show a further drop.

The press last night issued an appeal to do everything possible to increase the mutual understanding between the French and the American people to win back the tourist trade which, since the war, was one of the most important factors in French prosperity. Although taxes affecting American visitors were recently abolished, the de luxe trade is missing.

Failure threatens Chicago's $5,000,000 campaign for unemployment relief, Philip R. Clarke, the campaign director, announced yesterday after studying the record of the drive during its three weeks to date. Forty-two per cent of the amount sought, or $2,106,873 has been pledged.

"This is the crucial week," commented Mr. Clarke. "The results last week brought encouragement in one direction and discouragement in another. The campaign has been in progress three weeks and a great majority of returns should be complete.

Funds Campaign Slow.

"We conclude, therefore, that either the drive is falling down or many divisions have been negligent in their canvass. From a study of subscriptions in hand it is apparent that the latter is the case—that the campaign is slow rather than failing.

"The time has come when the attitude of the backward divisions must change or the undertaking will fail. The work of dramatizing this appeal cannot go much further. The story is getting stale. This week must therefore largely decide the issue."

Examine Business Schemes.

The Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday announced establishment of a committee of investigation to pass on the value and responsibility of projects being daily proposed to mercantile establishments on "increasing business." Most such plans are not only unsound but in many instances prove embarrassing and costly to merchants participating.

An emergency lodging house for women, to be called the Sarah Hackett Stevenson lodge, will open today at 2414 Prairie avenue with accommodations for 100 destitute and homeless women. The old residence has been remodeled, furnished with a hundred clean, warm beds, basement shower baths, and a kitchen steam table, at which two hot meals will be prepared each day for all lodgers. Sponsoring the lodging house are the Chicago Woman's club, Chicago Woman's aid, and Woman's City club.

'POOR MISS GERMANY' IN NOTHING MORE THAN A TEDDY STARTS RIOT

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

NUREMBERG, Germany, Dec. 14.—Four hundred Fascisti last night wrecked a performance of "Love Me," a revue at the Apollo theater when "Miss Germany" appeared on the stage depicted as a poverty stricken girl and clad only in a chemise. The scene was entitled "League of Nations of Fashion," and it was not so much the appearance of "Miss Germany" in a chemise to which the Fascists objected as the fact that representatives of other nations appeared in magnificent robes.

Stench bombs were flung and were reinforced by rotten eggs. Live mice were also released. "Miss Germany" suffered from nervous shock and was removed to a hospital. Police reinforcements cleared the theater and halted a second riot in the streets.

CRIMINAL PRACTITIONERS.

In our hunting down of the criminal we ought not to overlook the aids and allies who help him to defy and defeat justice. We are becoming more aware of the part corrupt politicians and officials play in organized crime. It is time to give more attention to lawyers who are habitually assisting criminals to defeat the law by unlawful means.

The worst criminal is entitled to his day in court, to an impartial trial, and to the services of counsel for the full protection of his rights under the law. He is entitled to nothing more. The duty of his counsel does not go an inch beyond this. But we believe no one who is acquainted with the actual conditions of practice in the criminal courts, if he expresses an honest opinion, will deny that there are lawyers who habitually resort to improper and unlawful means to protect their clients from justice. A reputation for successful defense is often based not upon the legitimate ability of an advocate but on his skill and willingness to corrupt justice, to conceal and confuse the truth, to bring to the defense of a guilty man underground influences and unlawful devices.

This is malpractice and, though it is often difficult or even impossible to expose and punish it, judges, prosecuting officials, and the bar should make a determined and persistent effort to do so. We think the lawless practitioner constitutes one of the major problems of the reform of criminal justice in this country.

AN ILL-ADVISED MEMORIAL.

It is not necessary in order to commemorate the public services of one Chicagoan to destroy the commemoration of another. The friends of the late John F. Smulski are doing his memory a poor service in proposing to substitute his name for that of William Caldwell (Saugenash), previously given to a forest preserve. They are looking neither backward nor forward. If they are willing to forget the service of Caldwell they are setting precedent for future Chicagoans to ignore the service of Smulski and remove his name from the preserve in favor of some later individual. There are ways of perpetuating the name of Smulski without doing this injustice to Caldwell, who did a great service to the small community of pioneers from which this great city sprang, bringing peace out of danger. The service of the pioneers made possible the city which we live in today, and it would not be an honor to Smulski to memorialize him by an act which would be ingratitude to another.

The proponents of this method of honoring a man they knew and esteemed have good intentions, but they have not thought out its implications and, we have no doubt, will find another and far better way of showing their regard. But the incident illustrates again the need for more knowledge and respect for Chicago's past and for the men and women who made it and, therefore, prepared the present and future city. Many millions of Americans have found in America a new and better life because of those who came before them and, amid dangers and privations, blood and sacrifice, prepared the security and opportunity which these later generations enjoy. Chicago's history is a part of this, and we ought not to permit ourselves or our children to forget what we all owe to our forerunners. We ought to preserve their memory in appropriate ways, as we are doing for Saugenash, and not heedlessly change names which keep us mindful of the past.

EINSTEIN AS A LION.

Prof. Albert Einstein, coming to the United States, is constrained by the masses of his admirers and embarrassed by the publicity and pressure of their compliments. He is a modest and retiring man, not fond of this lion's game, but desirous of his own peace without distractions. Normally, Mrs. Einstein is able to protect him, but here he is subjected to crowds which will have it their own way, and if he is to be secured against admiration he must shut himself in his closet.

The people are determined that they will have their lion. The process has its own sort of hysteria. It gets a start and becomes contagious. Some human being clicks in the popular admiration for not always fathomable reasons, and thereupon his day is upon him. The demonstration given in one community causes one in another and the thing spreads like a prairie fire. It can be Jackie Coogan, when younger; Lindbergh, Dewey, John L. Sullivan, the prince of Wales, Notre Dame, or once in a while a President. Infrequently is it found focusing upon such an abstraction as a man whose genius is inexplicable.

Other great scientists can walk the main streets undisturbed, with greater personal freedom than any movie actor would want or tolerate of his press agent. Prof. Einstein evidently represents some successful adventure in the unknown, some achievement in the knowledge of the future, some symbol of the future man, and is perceived as such by people who never will know what it is all about, but who feel that a glimpse into the future of the race has been given.

It is suggested that probably because he bent the law of gravitation there is a popular conception of new natural laws. He is apparently rated as an explorer back from strange lands which are about to exercise a tremendous influence upon human destiny. He is a man who has been to Mars.

It's probably all very perplexing to the professor, who is more conscious than any one else that the populace does not know what it is all about. But he is not the first stranger who has appeared in Ephesus.

THE MINNESOTA PRESS LAW.

The Minnesota law which THE TRIBUNE has taken, on behalf of a small Minneapolis paper, to the Supreme court of the United States, authorizes the suppression as a nuisance of "a malicious, scandalous, and defamatory newspaper, magazine, or other periodical."

Thus stated, the law will seem perhaps to the average layman not only proper but desirable. No good citizen approves malicious, scandalous, and defamatory publications. But the gist of a law, the reality of a law, lies in its application. Who is to decide whether a publication is malicious, scandalous, and defamatory and deserving to be suppressed as a public nuisance? The Minnesota law provides that a district attorney may proceed against any newspaper, etc., on this ground and that a district judge may thereupon enjoin the publication if he finds the defendant guilty. The process is that of injunction, a summary process which may suddenly suppress the newspaper without recourse to a jury trial.

No more efficient means of silencing criticism and preventing exposure of corrupt government has been devised than this. If it is a constitutional proceeding, no powerful political machine engaged in robbing the public will fail to put a law of this model into the statutes if it can do so.

THE TRIBUNE believes the Minnesota scheme in effect violates principles of liberty fought for in England and America through the seventeenth century and established in both the British and American constitutions. Behind its respectable façade it is a shield, whether so intended or not, for the protection of politicians in power from criticism and exposure. Honest government, competent government, does not need protection from scandal and defamation. There is the law of criminal libel. There is above all else the facts and the conscience of the people. They are enough for honest government. This has been proved throughout our race's experience. It is oppression and corruption that have resorted to force to suppress expression of thought and discussion of facts. Therefore it has been embedded in our system of government that speech and press shall be free. Only where they counsel violent overthrow of government or the breaking of laws are they subject to restraint.

Believing in these principles and convinced that the Minnesota law is a dangerous encroachment on the freedom of the press, which if sustained will be widely used for the protection of misgovernment, THE TRIBUNE interested itself in the appeal of the suppressed publication to the highest court of review.

FARMERS IN THE POWER BUSINESS.

The American Farm Bureau federation has just adopted a resolution calling upon its board of directors to organize a corporation to lease and operate the Muscle Shoals power plants.

It is difficult to believe that the federation is in earnest. The federation has all it can possibly do to represent the interests of agriculture. Its members, as the federation has emphasized for many years, are barely able to hold their own and can remain solvent only by devoting themselves unremittingly to the business of earning a living from the soil. In the face of that fact the federation is now proposing to branch out into a new and highly technical field, in which the directors of the federation are as inexperienced as they are untrained. Under the circumstances it would be miraculous if the venture turned out to be anything but an abject failure which would cast discredit upon the activities of the organization in its own proper field.

We suggest that the federation examine the record of the trade unions in the management of banks and real estate developments, or the record of various lodges in providing life insurance. These ventures, to be sure, have not been uniformly unsuccessful, but the percentage of failures and losses has been high. The management of a power service, like that of a bank or an insurance fund, requires talent, training, experience, and application. If the directors of the federation had the first three requisites they would still lack the fourth. They cannot serve the agricultural industry of the United States at a critical time while managing a power company. One or the other and probably both would suffer.

Editorial of the Day

THE SOURCE OF RACKETEERING.

[New York World.]

It is true, of course, that the liquor business is not the only cause of racketeering. But it is much the biggest; it finances the largest and most powerful syndicates of lawlessness; it most completely demoralizes the machinery of law; it most deeply destroys public respect for law; it most thoroughly entangles the whole community in the business of breaking down the law. If Mr. Hoover wishes a rough but salient test of the central position of liquor in racketeering, let him consider the meaning which the words "law enforcement" have acquired in these United States. Ask a man if he favors "law enforcement" and nine times out of ten he will think of the Volstead law, and perhaps six times out of ten, perhaps more than that in Chicago and New York, he will answer that he does not favor law enforcement.

The liquor business has drawn funds and political power and brains into the underworld such as it never has known before. The swindling and blackmailing which infest other trades are an expansion of the business of lawlessness in the face of public demoralization. The repeal of prohibition will not abolish all the rackets. But it will be like the destruction of the main army of the enemy, leaving only scattered bands of guerrillas to be dealt with. As long as the illicit liquor industry remains, or, more accurately, as long as the liquor industry remains illicit, the power of organized lawlessness will be greater than the existing power of government in American localities.

CATCHING COLD.

THOSE who hold that getting the feet wet, becoming chilled, and sitting in a draft make them catch cold are finding considerable support in the reports which come from physiological laboratories. These same reports confirm the opinions of complainers who have had to fight for their right to think they were uncomfortable when they were. Some folks tried pretty hard to make them think it was only imagination, and they were really having a fine time, in spite of their supposed cold feet and gooseflesh.

Dr. E. F. Ward used very delicate instruments to determine just exactly the temperature of the skin in different locations and the relation of these temperatures to a feeling of general comfort or one of general discomfort. He found that the temperature of the skin of the forehead and of the neck a little to the side were a good index of comfort.

If the accurately taken skin temperature in these two locations ranged between 87.8 and 89.6 degrees Fahrenheit the person felt uncomfortably cold. On the other hand, when the temperature of these regions was recorded as 95 to 96.8 the person felt warm, had a fever, or was too hot for some other reason. The normal range of temperature of the skin, measured in these regions, was between 88.7 and 95.9 Fahrenheit and the temperature at which there was the greatest feeling of comfort was 92.3.

The mother who judged of whether or not her child had fever by feeling the skin of the forehead seemed somehow to have hit on a good plan. Of course, the method came to her out of folk practice. It grew up in the day when we had no thermometers and we checked on complaints of fever by the feel of the brow.

Some of the mothers also learned that another dependable place to feel was the side of the neck down towards the chest. The method goes wrong if the mother's hands are wet or cold, or if the child has had cold cloths on his head, or has been fanned.

Bit by bit evidence accumulates that the blood supply to different parts of the body and, therefore, the heat of different parts, is subject to constant change. Some of these changes register as discomfort. Some, as liability to disease.

A DANGEROUS DRUG.

Mrs. E. V. C. writes:

1. Is digitalis a dangerous drug? I have been taking it as a heart regulator for the last two months. Since I started taking it my feet swell.

2. Does it affect the general health and circulation of the blood?

REPLY.

1. It is. Almost all useful drugs may be harmful or dangerous. Digitalis is the best single remedy we have in the treatment of heart disease, but, used improperly, it does harm.

2. The swelling of your feet is the result of the heart trouble and not of the remedy. If you have other evidence of unbalanced blood circulation probably heart disease and not digitalis causes it.

HEART TROUBLE.

Sarah writes:

I have an enlarged heart, for which I am dieting. A friend told me goat's milk and Roquefort cheese were excellent food for the heart. Is this correct? Why?

REPLY.

Neither has value in the treatment of an enlarged heart. Dieting is of no direct value in treating this condition.

DUODENAL ULCER.

Mrs. R. S. writes:

1. What is a duodenal ulcer?

2. Can it be cured by a milk diet, or is an operation necessary?

3. Once the person is cured does it ever return?

REPLY.

1. An ulcer in the small intestine near the stomach.

2. Many such are cured by dieting; some require operation.

3. Yes.

INVESTIGATE BEFORE YOU BUY.

Aurora, Ill., Dec. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am contemplating purchasing a used car from a party. 1. How can I ascertain whether it is fully paid for? 2. How can I find out if it is free from chattel mortgage or other incumbrances? 3. Can a man, traveling to Mexico, take his money for expenses or business purposes in gold as distinguished from a check or currency without violating any laws? J. L. F.

1. The best protection is to deal with a reliable seller. If you insist on receiving a bill of sale and on seeing the previous bill of sale you will be in a position to inquire of the previous owner.

2. You can check up on chattel mortgages by examining the indices in the recorder's office.

3. Take the matter up with the passport office in the Transportation building.

VACATION PROCEEDINGS BEGUN.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—Wish to call your attention to the sand company operating across the street from us, which is menacing property on the east side of the street. This company has taken entire possession of the city sidewalk as well as about four extra feet toward the curb for storing sand and gravel. Please advise what action is necessary to eliminate this obstruction. A. M.

Prosecution for the violation of section 3710 of the municipal code resulted in a continuance granted by the court from Dec. 4, 1930, to Dec. 11, 1930, on condition that the sand company remove the fence complained of before appearing in court on Dec. 11. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

SICK BENEFIT CLUB.

Chicago, Dec. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I belong to a sick benefit club and am a paid up member. I developed illness which necessitated removal to Edward Hines hospital, where I have been for the last year. The club refuses to pay the benefits on account of my being in a government hospital. Can I collect by law? If so, what measure can I take, as I have no resources to prosecute? C. H. J.

Your rights to the insurance depend upon the wording of your certificate and on the wording of by-laws.

We've been in Spanish speaking countries lots of times, and all you have to say to 'em is: "No, no, NO! No man-yan-a! No man-yan-a! NO MAN-YAN-A! en el ti-em-po pre-sen-te!" Which means something like "To hell with tomorrow, do it now!" They won't, anyhow, but you have the satisfaction of feeling that you did your best.

DRUMS.

(ANNA MARIE'S SONG.)

Throbbing drums beneath the moon
Thunder in an ancient rune;
Rising current crest and roar,
Pounding on a misty shore.
Drums that thunder, winds that wail,
Gleaming shadows, flushed or pale,
Call me from forgotten years;
Wild remembrance drowns my fears!

Pounding rhythms in my blood
Roar within me like a flood.
Fathers! Mothers! Ancient races!
Flaming eyes and straining faces!
All your passions, all your fears
Sweep upon me down the years.
Life's hot current through me drives;
I am fruit of all your lives.

Look! Your living sons and daughters
Dance beside the dancing waters.
Throbbing drums beneath the moon—
Tides that thunder on the dune—
Waken fevers in our blood,
Roar within us like a flood.
Fathers! Mothers! Passion-chain!

Well, What of It?

RHL: Wonder what would happen if Rudy Vallee failed to get his picture on any more sheet music? I like music, but I can do without Rudy's pictures. The best thing about Rudy is his hair. He has nice hair. But, then, so has a Pekinese. If Rudy has a golden voice, I favor a silver standard. I've quit trying for distance on my radio. I'm trying to find a station that isn't broadcasting the Connecticut Yankees. I understand Rudy is a drawing card. He draws a big salary. And the women think he's a card. He popularized the Stein Song. That's nothing. It's easy to popularize anything that's got a stein in it these days. Except, perhaps, a Goldstein in the back o' the yards district. Prohibition is still an issue, but it's running dry. The business depression is more important. Proving that people would rather eat than drink. And if they are too poor to eat and drink they can still be merry. They can read Cal Coolidge's column. That ought to cheer 'em up. It cheers Calvin up. Two dollars a word would even cheer me up. And God knows I'm no optimist. FESTA.

PROHIBITION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 15, 1914.

LONDON.—The Serbians after a fierce battle have reoccupied Belgrade, according to a Nish dispatch. This news of the failure of the second Austrian invasion of Serbia is the most striking development of yesterday's progress in the war. The official statement of the Austrian army staff in Vienna admitted a general retirement of the Austrian forces in Serbia.

LONDON.—Poland is fast becoming another Belgium in point of suffering while the German and Russian armies drive each other back and forth, occupy and reoccupy cities and villages, and inflict on the inhabitants bombardments similar to those suffered in Belgium and northern France. More than 500 Polish towns have been ruined, according to various accounts.

LONDON.—The steady advance of the allied troops in Belgium continues. A French contingent coöperating with the British has pushed the Germans back along the Ypres canal and to the west of Hollebeke.

CHICAGO.—Joseph Leiter's contention that he was "double crossed" in his attempt to corner the wheat market in 1898 was upheld by a jury in Federal Judge Humphrey's court. The jury returned two verdicts in his favor in the suit against him for recovery of $380,935 in principal and interest on two notes he gave for 905,000 bushels of wheat. The jury took the view held by the defense that the attempted wheat corner was an unlawful conspiracy and that Leiter's notes given under those conditions are void.

DECEMBER 15, 1900.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—While nothing was done with the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in the senate today so far as positive action is concerned, a general agreement was reached on the lines indicated by the conference last night, so that the treaty as amended specifically will nullify the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, will not call for any joint action by other powers, and will permit this nation alone to exercise control over the canal whenever its own military defense is at stake.

CHICAGO.—There was visible quaking about the city hall when it became known that Judge Gibbons, in his supplementary instructions to the grand jury, had charged that body to investigate the conditions prevailing in the city without considering how high in power or how influential might be officials involved. The prevalence of crime and the alleged collusion between the police department and crooks were questions on which the court laid particular stress. An investigation by a body empowered to return indictments will shatter city hall traditions.

CHICAGO.—John A. Fuller, the originator of the modern skyscraper building and the builder of the first structure of this character, died at Mamaroneck-on-Sound, New York.

CHICAGO.—Nothing came to light yesterday to help the impaired standing of the Tattersall fighters and fight promoters with the sport-patronizing public as the result of the bad looking contest between McGovern and Gans on Thursday night. There was practically but one opinion of the affair. It was a palpable "fake," upon the part of Gans at least. The general result of the talk amounted to a denunciation of the conduct of recent fights in general.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 15, 1880.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The cabinet is in bad humor over the fact that Secretary of the Navy Thompson has identified himself with the De Lesseps canal scheme. A member of the cabinet said that the De Lesseps project was a fraud, and he very clearly left the impression that Secretary Thompson had been selected by De Lesseps solely to create the impression abroad that the Panama Canal company has the confidence of the American people and the government.

RICHMOND, Va.—One of the most remarkable scenes witnessed in Virginia since the war took place in Bedford county and it carried those who saw it back to the ante-bellum days. Three Negroes were sold at auction under an old vagrant law. This law requires that after a certain time parties unable to take care of themselves shall be sold to the highest bidder, who shall own them for 90 days.

THE LAKE FRONT.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—It is true, as a Vox Popper remarked, that Lake Michigan is the heritage of the people of Chicago, but the aforesaid people has been dumb enough to spend millions of dollars in beautifying the lake front in Grant park—and then to turn this costly lake front over to a few hundred motorists for use as a parking lot. I am a motorist, and I am not a yachtsman, but certainly to me the sight of the yachts riding at anchor on the lake front is a much more attractive one to contemplate than the same area filled in and cluttered up with automobiles.

Why doesn't the south park commission clear these pikers off the lake front? If they cannot afford to pay for the privilege of parking their cars downtown let them leave their cars at home and use the public transportation systems like the rest of us. As it is, the commission is in the anomalous position of operating a pay parking station, and at the same time competing with itself by allowing a few hundred motorists free parking space on the lake front, the very place of all others where they should not be allowed to park.

GEORGE C. BROWN.

A JEWEL.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 10.—The article in THE TRIBUNE this morning stating that the harbor extending from the mouth of the Chicago river to Roosevelt road is to be filled in makes me sick at heart. When the officers of the Chicago plan commission are for this doubtful improvement I suppose it is lese majeste for a private citizen to protest, but we who take pride in the growing beauty of this our wonderful city cannot regard the loss of the most beautiful feature of the lake front other than as a calamity. One who can stand on the steps of the Field museum and view the harbor, half surrounded as it is by the city, without a thrill is insensible to beauty.

To fill this in so that the shore line may run even and straight, and the south park have title to a few more acres, is stupidity. WILLIAM H. LONG.

THE OLD SALOON.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Having spent the greater part of my life in the brewing industry I believe I am in a position to dispute conclusively Mr. Auten's statement of the enormous profits on beer which the very much maligned saloon keeper derived. The amount to be taken under the most favorable circumstances was $20 to $25 per barrel and in order to do this it all had to be dispensed in small glasses and a great deal of it in so-called "nuts." If the saloon was located in a factory district or in the lodging house vicinity, where "cans" and "schooners" were dished out, it required good management to realize the $5.50 per barrel which it cost. Besides this close margin on beer, some saloons or so-called barrel houses spent from $5 to $50 per day for free lunch, which with the additional cost of cooks' and waiters' wages cut another swath into the saloon keeper's profits. Not one of these villains could have existed if he depended on the profits made on beer, but if he made any money at all, which very few of them did, he made it on 5 cent whisky, which was better at that price than the speakeasies, night clubs and roadhouses dish out at 75 cents per shot today. These saloons fed more hungry men than all the Salvation Army, Red Cross and all other charitable organizations combined.

Ask a Salvation Army lass of prohibition days whether or not the Army derived the greater part of its revenue from saloons and their patrons. While the writer does not desire the return of the former wide open saloon any more than Mr. Auten, he is in a position to know that all the saloon keepers were not as bad as they were painted, any more than all the preachers and reformers are angels. Very few of them became as wealthy as Rockefeller, Ford, or Kresge, and the saloon was the greatest medium of circulating money of any of our industries.

Mr. Auten suggests that if the sale and manufacture of alcoholic beverages should be considered beneficial, it should be openly permitted without any restrictions whatsoever, which would result in the banishment of all crime, sin and disrespect for the law. That is exactly what was promised to us when prohibition went into effect.

But where, O where, is it?

A HARD QUESTION.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—I worked in a place of business in 1909-'10 that handled 125 barrels of beer per month that cost $8 per barrel, and using a 10 ounce [large] and 8 ounce [small] glass, our figures showed average receipts per barrel of $34. From this we paid cost, salaries, high rent, $1,000 per year license, beside giving away $25 in free lunch, consisting of wholesome roast beef and corned beef sandwiches with French fried potatoes. Where can you get a couple of nice sandwiches and two glasses of beer today for 10 cents?

JOHN J. SHANNON.

THE COSTS OF EATING.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—According to your paper, prices on eggs are the lowest in fifty years, sugar costs less than ever before; wheat is one-third its wartime price, and I am told that coffee is rotting in the Caribbean and bursting all warehouses in Brazil—and yet many lunchrooms and restaurants are charging full war prices!

Buttered toast is ten cents. So is any piece of bakery that costs me 1c to bake shop 3 cents. The coffee cups are all in an exquisite hourglass shape with a pushed in bottom so that they hold about three mouthfuls of coffee with a dash of standard grade milk [not cream]. Everything else is in proportion so that eating is absolutely a luxury. Here is a very good chance for thousands of housewives to bring back the "board and room" together with the put up lunch. E. V. T.

AN "L" STATION.

CATHOLIC PAPER CALLS QUEEN'S 2D WEDDING 'A SIN'

Alleges Boris' Bride Was Tricked at Sofia.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Dec. 14.—Why did young Queen Giovanna of Bulgaria cry bitter tears as she knelt beside King Boris in the cathedral of Sofia during their orthodox "marital blessing" last month?

"Because she realized this second church wedding was a sacrilege."

This startling hypothesis has been put forward by the Brussels Catholic daily, La Libre Belgique, once Cardinal Mercier's newspaper. The attack on Giovanna's secondary wedding rite in Bulgaria, after the Roman Catholic church wedding at Assisi, has aroused a sensation in this strictly Catholic country.

Calls Wedding "Marital Blessing."

All rites the orthodox church prescribes for a marriage were fulfilled, the Brussels ecclesiastic daily points out. In a Roman Catholic wedding the climax is the question to both bride and bridegroom whether they consent to marry. In Greece and Bulgaria this question no longer exists. To Bulgarian eyes the high points of a wedding are the exchange of crowns, the prayer to the Lord to bless the union, and the final words of the ritual announcing the couple as married. These three points, La Libre Belgique says, were observed at the "marital blessing" in Sofia.

So King Boris and Queen Giovanna were married a second time in Sofia after having been married a first time in Assisi, Italy, in the Roman Catholic fashion. Bulgaria recognizes Catholic church marriages as valid. The second marriage ceremony in Sofia was therefore useless, La Libre Belgique maintains.

"In all theologies of the world, the useless administering of a sacrament is a sacrilege," the paper continues. "That second marriage in Sofia was superfluous. It was sacrilegious. Even if that 'marital blessing' was not meant to be more than a simulated marriage ceremony to satisfy the Bulgarian people, it was a sacrilege. In all theologies of the world, simulating a sacrament means committing a sacrilege."

Queen Cried; King Angry.

Young Queen Giovanna cried throughout the ceremony because, says La Libre Belgique, she realized she was being tricked into breaking her promises to the pope, and King Boris was visibly annoyed. A trip to Bulgarian provincial towns was curtailed cancelled by the angry king, the church daily reports.

KILLS ROBBER

NICHOLAS DISTELDORF.

Authorities yesterday were seeking to learn the identity of a young robber who was shot to death Saturday night when he attempted to hold up a policeman. The unidentified robber was slain by Detective Nicholas J. Disteldorf of the Woodlawn station. His body was taken the county morgue where numerous victims of recent robberies are being taken to view it in an effort to establish the robber's identity.

Disteldorf had placed his automobile in the garage at the rear of his home, 6000 South Bishop street, and had started toward his house when the robber with drawn pistol accosted him. Disteldorf drew his own weapon and both men fired almost simultaneously. The robber's bullet grazed the policeman's ear, but Disteldorf's struck the robber in the shoulder. The robber turned and staggered away, but fell fatally wounded with another bullet through his body.

Recover $5,000 in Tobacco After 2 Bandits Confess

A truck load of tobaccos, valued at $5,000, which had been hijacked from its owner last Friday was recovered by the police yesterday following a confession by two of the three robbers who stole the truck. The truck was found in a garage at 1625 South Avers avenue, which had been rented to the robbers by Mrs. Eleanor Spellman of that address. She was taken into custody, but denied she knew for what purpose they had rented the garage. The robbers who confessed are Morris Freeman, 24, of 1937 South Avers avenue, and Charles Enzweig, 23, 1136 South Mozart street. The truck belonged th M. Udelovich, 2457 West North avenue.

WHITHER CHINA? 42 YEAR OLD MAN RULES HER FATE

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NANKING, China, Dec. 14.—Gen Chiang Kai-shek, 42 years of age, son of a Chekiang merchant, ex-Shanghai broker, Chinese soldier, may now be saluted with any of the following titles:

"Commander-in-Chief of the Military, Naval and Air Forces of the National Government.

"Chairman of the National Government, Republic of China."

In other words, Gen. Chiang, whose name was not known to his own people, outside of a very small circle, prior to Jan. 1, 1927, has emerged as the most important man among China's 400,000,000.

No man has occupied such an exalted position in China since the election of Gen. Yuan Shih-kai as first president in 1911. When Gen. Yuan was elected president the old empire had just crumbled, leaving him in command of a huge scattered army.

Yuan Pushed Aside Sun.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen, whose propaganda had largely been responsible for the breakup of the Manchus, had been elected provisional president. But as Dr. Sun had neither money nor soldiers, he was quickly pushed aside by the Gen. Yuan, who had both funds and troops. As commander of the army and president of the new republican government Gen. Yuan thus became the most powerful man in the country.

But something happened to Gen. Yuan. He tried to make himself the emperor of a new dynasty. In trying to do this Gen. Yuan politically stubbed his toe and thereby started a new rebellion. Within a few weeks the powerful Yuan was dead.

It was inevitable that the thoughts of the intellectual elements in China should have reverted to the case of Gen. Yuan when the fourth plenary session of the central executive committee of the Kuomintang party recently concluded its sessions in Nanking. The reason for this was that Gen. Chiang emerged from that meeting with the three titles mentioned which make him, on paper at least, the most powerful man in China.

Gen. Chiang had arrived at that meeting only a few days previously, almost directly from the battlefields of Honan where he had defeated his major military and political enemies.

Obtains Chang's Support.

Everything that Gen. Chiang said he wanted the Kuomintang central executive committee to do has been done and the magnet of his power was sufficient to draw the "young marshal" of Mukden, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, all the way from Manchuria to Nanking to attend the all-important Kuomintang meeting. Upon Gen. Chiang's instructions Marshal Chang was made a full fledged member of the Kuomintang and more, he was designated as the party's official representative in Manchuria and representative in Manchuria. In public statements at Nanking the Mukden marshal pledged his unqualified support of Gen. Chiang and the Nanking administration.

With all the other major militarists either defeated or driven back into the border districts the situation thus appears favorable for the future of Gen. Chiang, commander-in-chief of the army, premier and president, providing he doesn't stub his toe as did Gen. Yuan 19 years ago.

Wang Ch'ng-wei, leader of the radical wing of the Kuomintang, participated in the recent rebellion against Nanking, charging that Gen. Chang had ambitions to become dictator. He is still alive and active. From his refuge at Tientsin he continues to make his charges, and it is apparent that Gen. Chiang's foes hope to bring about his downfall by accusing him of continuous use of force to maintain his position. It now remains to be seen whether Gen. Chiang and his Nanking supporters will stub their toes in this fashion or allow the growth of a two party system of government, something nonexistent today in China.

Everything seems to hinge on Gen. Chiang himself. He has announced that the time for high sounding speeches and resolutions has passed and the time for constructive work has arrived. On the last day of the Nanking Kuomintang meeting he announced that his first job would be the eradication of the communists and red bandits which have been terrorizing the provinces south of the Yangtsze river.

REPORT CHINESE REDS MASSACRE POPULACE OF 2 HUNAN CITIES

HANKOW, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Capture of two Hunan province cities with a general slaughter of the inhabitants was credited to Chinese communists in reports received here tonight. Foreign ships plying the Yangtse river near Hansi, reported Lichow, one of the important cities of Hunan, and Tsingshih had fallen into the hands of the Reds, who ruthlessly massacred the population. The Finland Missionary society maintained a mission at Tsingshih, but with only meager information available it was not known whether missionaries suffered in the attack.

Meanwhile Chinese press dispatches reported the communists victorious against government troops in a battle at Ningtu in Kiangsi province. The report said the Reds had escaped into the mountains, taking 1,000 Ningtu residents as captive hostages.

Rush Missionary Aid.

HONGKONG, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A detachment of 160 Cantonese troops today was being rushed to Hainan island, in south China, to protect American and British missionaries who yesterday were reported in danger due to communist uprising. A force of 600 troops already has arrived at Hoichow, on Hainan island, and it was hoped to completely suppress the uprising.

FIGHT TO LIFT U. S. BAR ON CORN SUGAR IN FOOD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—A new drive to obtain the elimination of restrictions against the use of corn sugar in various food products, thereby opening a market for from 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 bushels of corn, is to be launched by members of congress from about 10 of the central states, who will call on President Hoover this week in an effort to gain his assistance. The American farm bureau federation is coöperating with the congressional group in organizing the movement.

The President will be asked to exert his influence to bring about a more sympathetic attitude in the department of agriculture, where officials have refused to permit corn sugar to be on a parity with cane and beet sugar. He also will be asked to view favorably legislation to bring about this parity. Present regulations under the food and drugs act require the labeling of food products containing corn sugar while there is no such requirement with respect to cane and beet sugar.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde held hearings on the corn sugar question last summer but has announced no decision. He must shortly sign new regulations which are being prepared under acts relating to canned goods and soft drinks which were passed in the last session of congress. The corn belt congressmen would like if possible to obtain a modification of the department's attitude before these regulations are issued.

Representative W. E. Hull [Rep., Ill.], who is active in the new drive of the corn belt group, conferred yesterday with Secretary Hyde, presenting to him a statement on the subject.

Search Alaska Snow Fields for 3 in Missing Plane

IDTAROD, Alaska, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Unreported since Thursday, when they took off from here for McGrath during a storm, Pilot Matt Nidnimen of the Alaska Airways company and two passengers were the object of a search today by air and dog team. McGrath is about 125 miles northwest of here. The search planes were piloted by Frank Dorbandt and Ed Young, prominent Alaska aviators. Two dog teams were coöperating with the flyers. Idtarod is on the Yukon river about 125 miles inland from Norton Sound.

BERLIN--EUROPE'S CROSSROADS FOR CANAL TRAFFIC

Revealed as Great Harbor and Shipping Center.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—Meet an almost unknown face of Berlin—Berlin, the great harbor and shipping center!

Berlin as the capital of Germany, Berlin as a manufacturing city or industrial center, are all well known to the world, but even many Berliners do not know that the picturesque canals which meander through the center of their city are part of a system which takes care of almost half the great incoming and outgoing freight of their city.

With the possible exceptions of Mannheim and Duisberg on the Rhine, Berlin is Europe's greatest harbor city for inland waterways traffic. It is the crossroads of a radiating system that stretches to every point of the compass.

Rivers and Canals Welded.

Rivers and canals are welded together. Berlin is connected with the North sea by the Elbe river and the Havel, with the East sea by the Oder and the Hohenzollern canal, with the East sea again at Danzig by the Vistula. This means that Hamburg is only 220 miles away and Stettin 112.

Important regions are tapped by the system to the south of Berlin. By way of the Havel and Elbe, Dresden in Saxony is only 267 miles distant. A little further on is Prague, capital of Czecho-Slovakia. Upper Silesia is reached by the Oder and Breslau is [illegible] miles away by water.

Millions of tons of goods come and go on the waterways network. It is not generally known, for instance, that goods can be shipped via the Elbe from Hamburg to Dresden and thence to Prague, or from any of these three cities to Berlin, and thence to Stettin on the upper Oder river or to Breslau on the lower Oder, or eastward through the Polish corridor to Danzig via the Weichsel river; or that, via the Ems, barges can carry goods from Emden to the Rhine. From the Ems again, there is a direct connection to the Weser on which lie Bremen in the north and Cassel in the south.

Plan Linking Canal.

Some day—when the German government has money enough—the projected "mitteland" canal from the Weser to the Elbe will connect the two great systems, so that water shipping can go directly across country from Mannheim, for example, to Breslau without unloading once. That will mean that the Rhine and Danube regions will come into direct contact with the Elbe-Oder-Weichsel countries.

Sprawled across the German nation like some great octupus, with Berlin as the head and center, the branches and tributaries of this waterways system help solve the difficulties of transportation, particularly for the industrialist. The agriculturist profits, too, but to a lesser extent.

Whatever is heavy, bulky and not speedily perishable, the canals will carry safely and cheaply. Berlin feels the benefits more than any other place, and receives, naturally, the lion's share of the arriving freight. The river Spree and the Landwehr canal carry some ten million tons of traffic to and from Berlin in a year. Most of the stone, gravel and sand is floated into the capital.

"Downtown" an Island.

Actually, the entire "downtown" district is an island, and so are other huge sections of the city. The narrow, stone lined canals, together with the similarly tailored Spree river, loop themselves completely about the busiest sections without disturbing the multitudinous streams of traffic.

Since boat and barge transportation costs much less pound for pound, especially over long distances, than railway hauling, the saving to the manufacturers, builders, and people of Berlin is tremendous.

Statistics of Berlin harbor show a great and steady traffic growth since the years after the war, back to a level that is practically pre-war.

Esthonia Eyes Russia's Food Trade Scheme

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLIN, Esthonia, Dec. 14.—Soviet Minister Raskolnikov's negotiations with the Esthonian government to supply Leningrad with meat, potatoes, butter, and margarine during the winter, are proceeding slowly. The soviets, who offer to barter fruit, textile goods, and porcelain, are also asking nine months' credit for the remaining purchases. Since Esthonia has one of the largest cotton mills in Europe standing idle, the soviets' proposition to trade textiles is viewed unfavorably.

URIBURU TELLS ARGENTINA SHE'S IN DEBT TO ARMY

Reveals Revolt Averted National Bankruptcy.

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 14.—"The country has contracted obligation toward a group of military officers who have staked everything in order to comply with their patriotic duty to overthrow an inept and corrupt régime. I will indicate the nature of these obligations at an early opportunity with a frankness to which our politicians are little accustomed," Provisional President José Uriburu said today in a speech at the military college.

"I shall promise nothing, but I shall tell the country of my desire to see institutional reforms accomplished. If I am defeated I shall retire to my home as did Washington.

Lashes Constitutionalists.

"There is another method open to those who prate about 'legality.' Former President Irigoyen, who, in view of his election by an unprecedented majority, may be termed the personification of legality, is still imprisoned: we yet have time to release him from prison and reseat him in the presidential chair and say to the legality parties: 'There is your legality; do your duty; overthrow him as we did.'

"Gentlemen, I am at the cross roads; you will have an early opportunity to tell me the road to follow."

In discussing the political situation previous to the revolution, Gen. Uriburu said:

"On the night of my entry into the government house, Saturday, Sept. 6, six frightened managers of the Banco de la Nacion rushed in to me saying, 'Unless you declare a bank holiday Monday, the bank cannot withstand one hour's run.'"

Stands Aloof from Parties.

Gen. Uriburu referred to the revolutionary government's aloofness to political parties and then said:

"At first none of the political parties would countenance the suggestion of reforms of the constitution, but later they agreed that some reforms were advisable. In this country we talk of democracy until we are inebriated with the subject. Aristotle defined democracy as government of the many by the wise. The difficulty is precisely to bring about that state of affairs—a difficulty inherent in all countries, and especially so in ours, where 60 per cent of the population is illiterate."

MacDONALD FAILS TO HEAL INDIA'S RELIGIOUS ROW

Hindus and Moslems Unable to Agree.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Efforts by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to compose differences between Hindu and Moslem delegates to the Indian round table conference have failed. Representatives of both religions, who visited Chequers, the prime minister's country estate, over the week-end, announced the failure today.

"We had a very interesting time at Chequers and enjoyed the premier's hospitality," said Reja Narenda Nath, speaking for the Hindus. "Our conversations were most pleasant, but no settlement was reached."

Moslem Admits Failure.

Sir Sayed Sulton Ahmed, speaking for the Moslems, said: "I regret that so far no satisfactory solution has been reached, despite the earnest efforts of the premier."

The chief point of contention between Hindus and Moslems is the question of the reservation of seats in legislatures for the minorities. This question is also the chief stumbling block before the round table conference at present.

SIMON MEETS INDIANS

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 14.—As an interlude to Prime Minister MacDonald's attempts to establish a middleground in the Hindu-Moslem differences, the Indian delegates at the round table conference were guests today of Sir John Simon, author of the statutory commission report, known as the Simon report. Sir John was excluded by the British from the conference partly because of the report's reception in India.

Sir John and Lady Simon received the delegates at Wadham college, Oxford, where Sir John was a student 38 years ago. Between 60 and 70 of the Indian delegates had lunch, and heard Sir John give himself credit for the idea of a round table conference which he had suggested in a letter to Prime Minister MacDonald. The Indian delegates applauded the statement.

"Especially do I rejoice at the wide approval of the views of my colleagues and I that a commission on the future constitutional progress of India would best be discussed in consultation with the ruling princes, and on such lines that an all-Indian federation of India with proper status may be attained," he said.

In reply Sir Ajbar Hydari paid high tribute to the Simon report, and stated that "its contribution is unequaled in value. While we may not agree with all its conclusions yet it has placed before the people of England a ripe wisdom. It is up to us, attending the round table conference, to construct a constitution that will satisfy our aspirations and at the same time satisfy the requirements given by centuries of English experience in parliamentary government."

CHILE'S MILITARY REBELS SET SAIL TO ISLAND PRISON

VALPARAISO, Chile, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A number of persons connected with the recent revolutionary attempt at Concepcion were started today toward the Chilean prison on Easter island, in the Pacific, aboard the steamer Huemul. Gen. Bravo and Col. Grove, two of the leaders, are en route to the island aboard a naval ship.

COAL • HEAT • COSTS • LESS
Coal heat saves $1225* in five years

THERE is no guesswork about the big savings from coal enjoyed by Charles Dorigan. Two years ago he used the fuel next to coal in economy to heat his flat, store, greenhouse, and garage located at 1641 West 63rd street. He ripped out his expensive burning equipment and turned to coal heat. An actual check of the costs shows that he has saved $245 per year. In five years this saving amounts to $1225.
Had Mr. Dorigan tried the third fuel that he might have burned, it is estimated that his cost would be $672.25 more per year than he is paying for coal—$3,361.25 in five years.
His coal bill of $256 a winter is almost half that of fuel B, and almost one-third that of fuel C. In addition, he is getting the most dependable, quietest, safest, evenest heat that money can buy.

U. S. WILL SIFT $8,000,000 LOAN COMPANY CRASH

Beesemyer Charged with Mail Frauds.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Investigation by federal authorities into the tangled finances of the Guaranty Building and Loan association, plundered of nearly $8,000,000 by Gilbert H. Beesemyer, was under way today.

A federal receiver was asked in the petition because "the state building and loan commissioner cannot properly conserve the assets due to the inadequacy of the state law and of his forces."

His Pet Project.

Postal inspectors were investigating charges that Beesemyer used the mails to defraud in promoting his loan company.

Federal receivers will take charge of the Elmer Oil company, Beesemyer's pet project, into which officers said he admitted sinking $2,000,000 of building and loan funds.

Beesemyer, in jail since his arrest Thursday night, is to appear in Superior court tomorrow for arraignment on an indictment charging ten counts of grand theft.

State to Lend to Depositors.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The state department of banks, working day and night, virtually has completed machinery for granting loans to the 400,000 depositors in the Bank of the United States, which was closed last week, it was learned today.

By Tuesday morning, at the latest, it was announced today by Superintendent of Banks Joseph A. Broderick, depositors may begin filing applications for loans. It is expected that all who wish funds will be able to obtain them by the end of the week. The loans will be made by banks which are members of the New York Clearing House association and certain other banks which have volunteered to do so. Such loans will be up to 50 per cent of each depositor's net balance in the bank. The loans will draw 5 per cent interest.

Depositors will not be permitted to choose which bank they wish to borrow from, it was announced today, but will receive stamped documents identifying them and instructing them as to where to obtain the loan. The object of this move is to spread the loans evenly among all the institutions which will make them.

MEXICO CREATES AIR MINISTRY FOR WAR AND PEACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 14.—Beginning today Mexico will have a full fledged aeronautical department just as she has a war department. Not only will the department train aviators, aeronautical engineers and constructors of airplanes, but create a body of air fighters who can be used in war.

As more than two-thirds of Mexico consists of rugged mountains in which, in past revolutions banditry and local discontent flourished, the Mexican war department will give much attention to building up an aeronautical force which may be used in times of war, but which in peace can exterminate mountain bandits.

The last two rebellions were suffocated largely because of the use of bombing planes by the government. With the opening of the highways from Mexico City to the United States border and between the Gulf of Mexico and the Pacific coast, patrolling the highways has also become imperative.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: "Slow Work"

CHAPIN, SLAYER OF WIFE, WILL BE BURIED NEAR HER

Asks Cheapest Casket Be Obtained.

New York, Dec. 14. — [Special.] — Charles E. Chapin, 72, the former New York editor who had served eleven years in Sing sing prison and died last night, will be buried in Washington, D. C., in a grave beside that of the wife he murdered.

In the last letter he wrote Chapin gave directions concerning burial. He asked to be buried in the cheapest casket obtainable and that there be no services either at the prison or cemetery. Three ministers had visited him before he died but he made professions to none of them.

Savings Pay Expenses.

Warden Lawes announced that Chapin's wishes will be complied with. Th few possessions salvaged from the wreck of Chapin's savings as city editor of the Evening World and the pittance that he made as a prison gardener will pay his funeral expenses.

Chapin left the contents of his little office to William Halpin, a turnkey of the cells over the death house where the prisoner lived, and whom he asked to take his coffin down to Washington. Chapin left the effects in his cell to Everett Herriott of the prison staff, who had nursed him in his last illness.

Body Taken From Prison.

Chapin's body was transferred from the prison to an Ossining undertaker pending word from Marion A. Chapin, his sister. At her direction it will be shipped to Washington tomorrow.

Chapin was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment after he shot his wife as she lay asleep. He insisted to the end that he killed her to spare her the poverty that he knew must follow his unsuccessful speculations. He pleaded guilty of second degree murder.

Widow Facing Foreclosure Tries Twice to Take Life

Rather than face the loss of a bungalow on which she had been trying to make the payments since her husband was killed in an accident a year ago, Mrs. Eva Chessler, 27 years old, twice attempted to take her own life yesterday. She had been living with Miss Eve Weltman at 1524 East Marquette road, who found her unconscious at noon yesterday with the gas in the kitchen turned on. After being revived Mrs. Chessler slipped out of the apartment and was found several hours later on the Jackson park golf course, again unconscious, apparently from drugs. She will recover. A 9 year old daughter lives with an aunt at Paxton.

HOLDS BUILDING DROP WILL BRING UPTURN FOR 1931

Shortage Will Create Demand, View.

With present figures indicating that the value of its building permits will approximate $80,000,000 for 1930, Chicago's building volume for this year is the lowest since 1920, when the valuation was $79,102,650, according to E. M. Craig, secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association. Last year building permits were issued for work given a valuation of $199,626,000.

Mr. Craig says that as a result of the 1930 building slump and the decline during the last three months of 1929, builders believe that there is now a sufficient shortage in home buildings to warrant increased construction activity during 1931.

Cites Trend of Recent Years.

"Chicago's building program from 1903 to 1917 averaged annually approximately $100,000,000," Mr. Craig said. "When the nation entered the war, building activity was centered on army and navy construction demands. All other types of construction were sidetracked, resulting in the great shortage in housing and office accommodations after peace was declared.

"This shortage was responsible for the great building boom, which reached a high point in 1925 when there was construction given a valuation of $360,794,250.

Contemplated Chicago construction during the first two weeks of December amounted to $10,125,000, and construction contracts totaled $613,000. The list of both awarded and contemplated building follows:

CUBAN BUSINESS PLANS PROTEST TO OUST MACHADO

HAVANA, Dec. 14.—(AP)—A movement against the administration of President Machado, which was started last week following upon student disorders which resulted in a 60 day suspension of guarantees throughout Cuba, gained momentum today.

A referendum was submitted to the leading business and professional organizations of Havana to decide whether these groups should support the demands of the students, teachers, and alumni of the national university that the president get out. In the meantime the government has started a nation-wide campaign to arrest national university students and professors who signed an anti-Machado document. Many have fled to the interior.

The Workers' National Confederation of Havana has called a special meeting for a vote on the same subject, and workers in numerous professions will be summoned tomorrow morning in a special session to take action in joining in the protest. The action of the National Confederation of Workers, which corresponds to the American Federation of Labor, will be compulsory on all affiliated labor organizations.

DYNAMITE CACHE IS SEEN AS CLEW IN 2 BOMBINGS

Ten sticks of dynamite found in the basement of 430 Rush street, where it was alleged a handbook was operated, led Chief of Detectives Norton to the expectation yesterday of an early solution of the recent bombings at the Furniture Mart and the Sears-Roebuck shipping building. The place was raided Friday night on information that it was a rendezvous for the bombers and yesterday it was learned three men are still in custody.

Arthur Monahan, supposed to be the manager of the cigar store in which the horse race bets were taken; Edward Meyers, presumed to be the boss, and George Wood, colored porter, are the men held. The patrons seized in the raid were released. According to Chief Norton, the prisoners denied knowledge of the dynamite and of the two bombings.

The Furniture Mart, second largest display and office building in the world, was damaged to the extent of about $8,000 last week. A loading platform at the Sears-Roebuck plant was destroyed by a bomb the previous week. A motive was not established in either case.

GASOLINE ALLEY—NOW WE'RE ALL SQUARE

By Royal Command

BY DORNFORD YATES

SYNOPSIS.

Richard Chandos and his wife, Leonie, former grand duchess of Reichtenburg, are visited at their estate near Littai, in Austria, by George Hanbury. A telegram arrives from Nurra Salm, countess of Dresden, an expected guest, stating that she dare not come. Prince Paul, ruler of Reichtenburg, had hoped to marry Leonie and was incensed at her marriage to Chandos. Fearing for Marya's safety, because of her friendship for Leonie, Chandos and Hanbury, with their servants, Bell and Rowley, depart for Vigil, capital city of Reichtenburg, where Marya resides. Because of the enmity of the prince the must enter the country in stealth. They drive to the frontier and leave Rowley with the car at a farm and proceed by foot. A peasant, named Ramon, whom they befriend, leads them over the border by a secret path. They reach the home of Marya unseen and learn from her that she sent no message and that she plans to drive to Littai that night. Realizing the telegram was a ruse to lure them within the prince's confines, they are preparing to flee with Marya when the prince arrives. The men hold the prince and his servants at point of gun and escape in the royal car. They find the border closely guarded that hope of crossing is abandoned.

Chandos remembers Ramon, who lives in the nearby town of Gola. They seek him out. He agrees to hide Marya and Carol, her trusted servant, in his house. Chandos and Hanbury join a traveling circus, where they feel fairly safe from discovery. They are planning to desert the circus and return to Gola when Carol reaches them with a car to take them to Baricke, across the border, where he says Marya is waiting. They recognize the car as Grieg's, the chief of police. Arrived at the inn in Baricke they receive another message from Marya, stating that she is to be pardoned on condition that she remain in Reichtenburg, and that she does not communicate with them and that they must never enter the country again.

Realizing that Marya, endeavoring to save them, has made an arrangement with Grieg to which they could never consent, they return and attempt to cross the border at a different point. Hanbury and Rowley pass, but Chandos is apprehended and taken to jail. Chandos identifies himself to the inspector and proves that Grieg has betrayed his trust. Grieg, who has learned of the arrest, arrives.

INSTALLMENT XIX.
TO HEADQUARTERS.

Grieg addressed the detectives.

"Handcuff this man and take him out to my car."

In a deadly silence the sergeant pointed to the gyves and one of the uniformed police took a pair from the wall.

As the detectives approached I put my wrists together and held them out. When the handcuffs were on they laid their hands on my shoulders and turned to the door.

A moment later we were crossing the hall.

"I am very sorry, sir," said the sergeant. "But what can we do?"

"You can post to Vigil," said I, "and show the chief my statement as soon as ever you can."

We passed to the head of the steps and stood waiting for Grieg.

The man came treading with the violence he always used. He thrust from the doorway and down to the waiting car

With his hand on its door he paused. Then he turned back to the steps and spoke to the police.

"Where is the car you came in?"

The sergeant pointed to lights on the opposite side of the way.

"Your work is done here," said Grieg. He stepped up and seized my arm. "Get back to the jail at Vigil and say that I'm coming on."

The sergeant stared.

"To the jail?"

"To the jail," said Grieg fiercely. "At once. Tell them to have a cell ready and warn the guard."

"Where are you going?" barked Grieg.

"To fetch our hats. They are in the inspector's room."

With that he was gone, while his fellow ran for their car.

I confess that here my heart sank down to my boots. Grieg's order could here but one meaning—that he did not want the detectives behind him upon the road. Such provision was ominous.

I knew, of course, that the sergeant would pick up my statement and take it to Vigil with him. But Grieg's disgrace and ruin seemed suddenly trifling gains to set against the loss of my life. I certainly had my pistol, but now that I was handcuffed I could not reach it without such an awkward movement as even a child must remark. I began to wonder dully how Grieg would go to work. As for Madame Dresden, I must acknowledge with shame that she and her fortunes never came into my head.

Here the car drew out and the sergeant emerged from the hall. Hat in hand, he was plainly about to speak.

"Get on," said Grieg roughly.

The other pursed his lips and went down without a word.

Then a door slammed and the car began to storm up the street.

As its snarl faded Grieg thrust me down to the steps and up to the chauffeur.

"To Vigil," he snapped. "Headquarters."

The chauffeur inclined his head.

Without releasing my arm Grieg opened the door and stepped in. I followed as best I could, and the door was shut.

We jolted out of Sallust and on to a country road. As the car gathered speed Grieg picked up the speaking tube.

"Half speed," he said. "Don't go more than twenty until I say."

As the car slowed down I saw him glance at his wrist.

"No point in overtaking them," he said softly. "And now, my friend, I'll trouble you for that bill."

The sudden, natural demand took me aback. I should, of course, have foreseen it and been ready with some excuse, but, as I have said, I was thinking of other things. Had the police been further ahead I would have cheerfully answered that they had both bill and statement for, though his rage would have been shocking, he would at once have seen that he would have nothing to gain by taking my life, but something to lose, for if he delivered me safe that would be a rebutter to my statement which might be mistrusted, but could not well be ignored. As things were, however, I dared not tell him the truth, for his was the faster car and could have outrun the detectives' before that had gone half way.

"Come on," said Grieg roughly.

I took a deep breath.

"To you," said I, and made a movement to put my hand into the pocket furthest from him.

Grieg laughed and let go my arm.

"Today," he said, "and tomorrow, and the day after that."

As he put out his hand for the paper I jammed the mouth of my pistol against his ribs.

"Not even today," I said thickly.

Grieg sat like a thing of stone, not seeming to breathe.

"Raise your hands," said I, "and take hold of the lapels of your coat. I advise you to move very gently, for the safety catch is up and you know how these things go off."

Very slowly he did as I said.

I could not take his pistol, for the man was lefthanded and carried his on his left, and, since I sat on his right, because of my handcuffs I could not reach so far. There was nothing for it, therefore, but to stay as I was, for I knew that the man was fearless and was waiting to turn the tables if he saw him the ghost of a chance.

As though he could read my thoughts——

"Stalemate," said Grieg quietly.

"Don't you believe it," said I. "If I have to kid you I shall, as you would have killed me. You know as well as I do you meant to shut my mouth. 'Shot whilst attempting to escape.' And now I'll tell you something. That pistol was taken from me when I was caught, but when I had told my story and they heard your voice in the hall they knew you were out for murder and let me take it back."

The fellow shifted a little, but spoke no word.

"And I'll tell you another thing. I'd put my statement in writing before you came. It was on the inspector's table under the blotting pad. The bill was with it—I pinned it on myself. And when the detective from Baricke was with it—I pinned it on myself. And when the detective sergeant went back for his hat——"

I felt him repress a start.

"That's right," said I. "He got it. He'd promised to take it straight to the chief of police. Not tomorrow morning—tonight. The instant he got to Vigil. And then you very kindly sent him ahead."

There was a long silence.

Suddenly——

"This won't help you," said Grieg.

"It'll help the countess," said I.

"I see," said Grieg. "Did you read the letter she wrote?"

"I did," said I. "But I don't come in on deals of that sort."

The man said nothing.

The car proceeded slowly and I sat watching his hands and racking my brain.

We were bound for "Headquarters, Vigil." Unless I could make some move before we arrived my race was as good as run.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Atlantic" is a great picture, I think.

Adapted from the play "Berg," by Ernest Raymond, which was suggested by the Titanic tragedy, it is a gripping, forceful screen drama that captures your interest at first flash and holds it achingly taut to the extreme finish. Not once during its unreeling do you escape the overwhelming sense of horror that creates the perfect illusion without which the piece would have been, of course, "just another shipwreck" movie.

All of the action takes place aboard the S. S. Atlantic which is on her maiden voyage from Europe to America and is in the zone of icebergs when the picture opens. No sooner DOES it open than, through the director's magic, the alchemy of imagination starts working, and you are no longer one of a crowd in a theater—but a passenger aboard a fated ship that is steaming toward her doom in a placid sea through which a cold and lethal monster is to advance upon her. You feel like a disembodied spirit [said she, having no data whatever upon disembodied spirits] which sees all, knows all, and can do nothing. Sadly you go with the carefree passengers about their little businesses, so important at the moment, so silly and futile and meaningless to think about three hours later. Heartbroken you walk and watch with the gallant crew, who know the danger of the berg zone and are preparing for the worst.

"The boat CAN'T sink," say the passengers comfortably—for so they have been told. But captain and crew knew that on the Atlantic anything can happen.

The beautiful boat that seems alive to you sails on over the moonlit sea. Her bands are playing; her passengers dancing, playing bridge, flirting, loving, suffering, drinking—all unconscious and uncaring of the straining eyes of the lookout and the tense prescient vigilance of the officers. Grave young Lanchester, ship's officer [how you'll love him!] is here, there, and everywhere. The captain walks the bridge, his keen eyes weary and his face graven with lines of care. . . .

What is it the lookout sees . . . !

Just a little white something that barely rears a head above the swells—but the captain's orders come fast. Death, lifeless in itself, but capable of taking life, moves slowly, relentlessly upon the quivering Atlantic and strikes her to the heart.

Let the picture show you what happens after that. For a long time the passengers remained unconcerned—"the Atlantic CAN'T sink." . . . Then . . .

The bravery of many breaks your heart. The panic of the frightened gets you where you live. The discipline maintained by the crew, from captain to stoker, arouses a passionate admiration that is mighty near adulation.

Amidst the pandemonium unforgettable instances of valor shine out from every side. The finale is one that brings your heart right up into your throat. All by myself in a projection room I cried through at least three reels.

It's the absence of dramatics that gets you so. Everything—everybody—is so real. What occurs, what is said, what is done appears absolutely inevitable—and true.

Enough. See "Atlantic"!

BEG YOUR PARDON!

Senn High school's three musical organizations will put on a concert at Orchestra hall next Wednesday evening, Dec. 17, instead of Thursday evening, as erroneously stated in the Metropolitan section of yesterday's TRIBUNE.

In yesterday's TRIBUNE Miss Ruth Hanak was referred to as a violinist. She is a pianist.

CIVIC OPERA HOUSE CROWDED BY CONCERT GIVEN BY PADEREWSKI

BY HAZEL MOORE.

A month ago Paderewski drew the largest audience that the Civic Opera house had ever held. Yesterday afternoon he beat his own record. To do so, he and his piano were moved to a specially constructed platform which literally bridged the usually chasmic space of the orchestra pit. This had several advantages besides that of admitting of a hundred or so more auditors on the stage. It offered both audiences a vastly better view of the white haired statesman-pianist, increased the intimacy of the occasion so much that it is to be recommended to all future recitalists in this hall, and afforded a vastly more brilliant resonating background for the piano.

Following his usual titanic custom, Paderewski played continuously for over an hour before leaving the platform for a moment. The program was happily a match for such a might. The Bach-Liszt "Prelude and Fugue" in G minor, a perfect example of the grand manner, was followed by a majestic performance of Beethoven's F minor sonata, numbered 57, the Schumann "Carnaval," and after a brief intermission by a varied group of Chopin.

Of his playing, one can only say that Paderewski played as only he can play, with a tremendous force and a sense of line, of proportion that rises over the occasional lapse of memory, a jangled string, or a misplaced note. Over all other pianists he towers because of this delicate linear sense and the magnificent proportion of his musical conception. Unfortunately this was the second and last appearance of Paderewski this season.

Having exhibited her operatic wares in a number of guest performances with the Chicago Civic Opera company, Mary McCormic moved next door yesterday afternoon to the smaller dimensions of the Civic theater to show her prowess as a singer of songs.

In this capacity she is eminently successful. Her always lovely voice responds more freely to the greater freedom of style afforded the recitalist and an occasional laxity of rhythm is easily accompanied by her pianist.

So yesterday her capacity audience was charmed both by her beautifully gowned self and her way with her songs. Her program opened in orthodox fashion with a group of Donaudy, Pergolese and Catalani, Charpentier's familiar aria from "Louise," "Depuis le Jour," was brilliantly sung, marred only by an insufficient breath control. The group in English following showed her to be an excellent enunciater, for each word reached the back of the hall easily. A group of French songs and a final group of English could not be heard.

Russian Attack Upon Christmas Started; 100 Professors to Aid

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Dec. 14.—The annual campaign of the communist party against the observance of Christmas will be opened on Christmas eve throughout Russia, according to a general order issued by Commissar Yaroslavski, leader of the Red fight against religion.

A feature of this year's campaign at Moscow, according to Yaroslavski, will be speeches by 100 professors who have been assigned by the soviet academy of science to address mass meetings of workers which will take place daily during the holiday. Many Russians observe Christmas according to both the old and the new calendar.

IZZY EINSTEIN TRIES TO PROVE 'RELATIVITY' WITH PROF. EINSTEIN

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The matter of Einstein relativity became today a matter of concern to one of the New York Einsteins, chiefly to Izzy.

There was a time when even Prof. Albert Einstein didn't get as much publicity as Izzy—relatively speaking—when Izzy Einstein and Moe Smith were government dry law sleuths.

Izzy's little boy's name is Albert, so today Mr. Izzy Einstein dressed up his son and went down to the steamship Belgenland to see Prof. Einstein.

"All this talk of relative-ity," Izzy reasoned, "must mean something. Perhaps I am a relative myself."

The professor, unfortunately, had left the Belgenland, so Izzy perforce missed him.

Prof. Einstein was the subject of numerous pulpit discussions today as he spent a comparatively quiet Sabbath.

During the morning he remained in his stateroom, but emerged to attend a concert of the Metropolitan Opera company in the afternoon and made a short address before the New Historic society at night. Between these two appearances he paid tribute at the statue of Enrico Caruso.

Tomorrow Prof. Einstein will meet Rabindranath Tagore. Tomorrow night Tagore will sail for Europe, Einstein will continue his journey by water to California.

THE STAGE

THE Chicago theatrical season goes into a pre-holiday lull this week, but there are four premières in the offing to enrich the list of Christmas playbills. Next Sunday night George M. Cohan will bring his revival of "The Tavern" to the Blackstone. On the following Monday Fred Stone, aided by his two daughters, will appear in "Ripples" at the Illinois. On Christmas night [not eve] "Berkeley Square" will come to the Selwyn with Leslie Howard and Margalo Gillmore in its leading rôles; and "Jonesy," with Thomas W. Ross in the title part, will reilluminate the Playhouse.

The Theater Guild issues this announcement for the information of the subscribers to its Chicago season:

"The rumor that Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will not be presented by the Theater Guild in "Elizabeth the Queen" in Chicago this season is baseless. The play's New York run, which is very successful, will be terminated, and the production will be sent to Chicago and other cities in which the Guild has subscription audiences.

"One story coming from Chicago said the play had not been announced for the Guild's local season, and that the Guild, because of the play's great success in New York, was in something of a dilemma. A mistake. The play was announced for Chicago last spring and announced for a second time this fall. Further, the Guild has been in no dilemma over the matter. In the past it has concluded the New York engagement of a play so that it might fulfill obligations and promises made to its subscribers in various cities.

"The play's Chicago engagement will be limited to three weeks and will be presented this spring."

Six playbills were removed from the Broadway catalogue last Saturday night. They were: Ethel Barrymore in "Scarlet Sister Mary," Maurice Moscovitch in "The Merchant of Venice," "Ladies All," "Schoolgirl," Chic Sale in "Hello, Paris," and "Light Wines and Beer." In addition, "Nina Rosa" and "Bad Girl" suspended performances for a week, with the intention of resuming their runs Dec. 22. . . . For compensation there is only one première on this week's schedule—"Petticoat Influence," an English comedy by Neill Grant, which will appear tonight at the Empire theater with Helen Hayes as its star.

"Strange Interlude" is announced for staging in London early in February, three years after its successful production by the Theater Guild. Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis will have the leading rôles. The play will be offered by the Guild in association with Gilbert Miller. Objections from the London stage censor had been feared, but the lord chamberlain passed the play without demanding a single change in its text.

The company will be rehearsed in New York under the direction of Philip Moeller, and will give several performances before sailing. This will be the third Theater Guild production to be offered in London. The others were "Porgy" and "Caprice."

Charles Hopkins, who produced "Michael and Mary," has bought the American rights to an English play called "Mr. Eno," written by C. K. Munro. The complete title of the piece is "Mr Eno: His Birth, Death, and Life," and its central character is an obscure, humble clerk. The London Observer says of it: "We used to have what was called 'the slice of life,' and now we have sliced life cut very thin and small. The character is put through the sausage machine and his life comes out in two inch portions."

C. K. Munro is known on the American stage by his "At Mrs. Beam's," which was produced by the Theater Guild about four years ago. Mr. Hopkins may have acquired "Mr. Eno" as a successor to "Mrs. Moonlight," which is now running at his New York theater, with Edith Barrett, who originated Madge Kennedy's rôle in "Michael and Mary," as its heroine.

Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, announces a vaudeville show for his third annual Christmas benefit fund. It will be given in the Victoria theater, Belmont and Sheffield avenues, next Wednesday night, and the proceeds will be used for the relief of destitute families. The Radio-Keith-Orpheum vaudeville circuit will arrange the program. C. C.

Gotham Pastor Visits, Defends Our Chicago

Blames Careless Citizens, Politics for Gangs.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

There is no more lawlessness in Chicago than in New York. This was stated last night by the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, president of the Greater New York Federation of Churches, before the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall. He said Chicago's "gang guerrillas" probably are better advertisers of their industry than are New York's "Tammany Tigers," being "more bold and open, but the flaunting of justice here is no more flagrant."

Dr. Sockman attributed the rise of gangland to centralization of wealth and the decentralization of responsibility. The machine age, he said, comes in for a share of the blame, because it has concentrated the means of livelihood more and more in metropolitan centers, but permits people to live outside these centers. The result of this, Dr. Sockman declared, is that the "best people" go to the city and to the suburbs to live their lives.

"This leaves the institutions at the heart of our cities unprotected and unsupported," said Dr. Sockman, as he pointed to current "looseness of life which prepares the way for cyclones of confusion. Looseness of thinking makes the crowd easy prey for demagogues and propagandists. It leads to the perversions of the ballot box and the hysterias of mob psychology."

The New York pastor deplored what he called "the easy going indifference and self-centered trespassing of so-called respectable citizenry." That indifference, he said, is a greater menace to law and order than is gangland.

This view was supported in a sermon by the Rev. Walton E. Cole, pastor of the Third Unitarian church, 5521 West Lake street. Dr. Cole said the real public enemies are the indifferent and cynical citizens.

Permission for gangs to exist is not only granted by racketeering officials, but also by private citizens, Dr. Cole declared. Silence gives consent, he said, and he added that indifference is an invitation. The Unitarian pastor then spoke of the public interest in the careers of gang leaders.

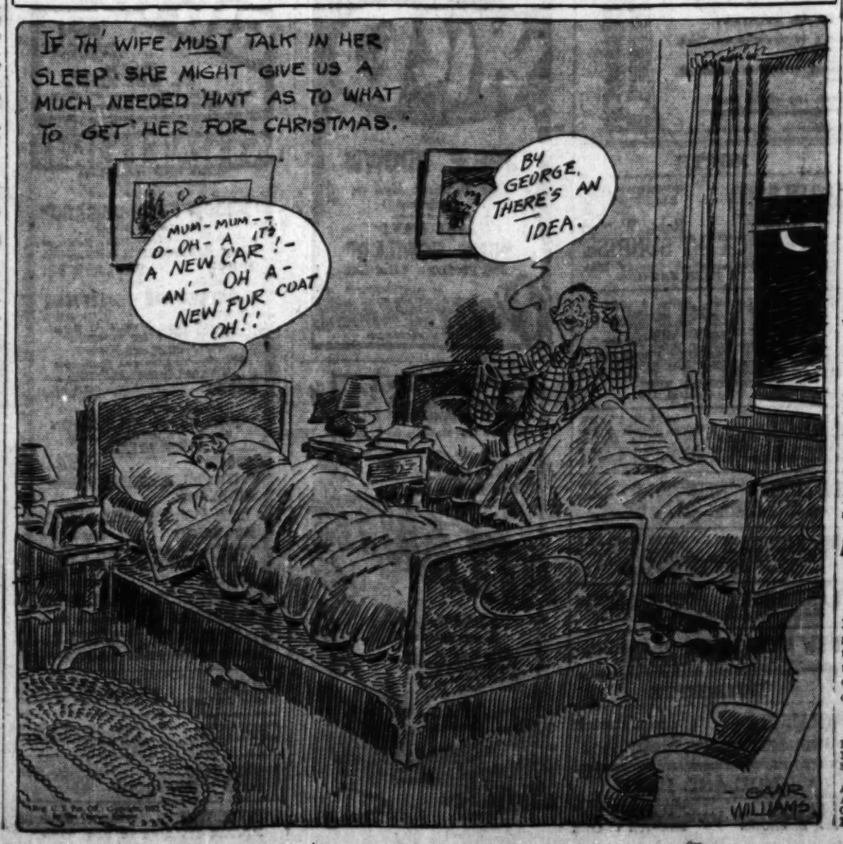

"Civic decency is not as interesting as anti-social racketeering," Dr. Cole declared. "Recently two biographies of Chicagoans have appeared. One was the life of Dr. Graham Taylor, public friend and builder. The other, Fred Pasley's life of Al Capone. I was not surprised to learn at one of the leading book stores, the Capone book outsold the Taylor biography fifteen to one.

"I have no applause for Al Capone and Chicago's assortment of crime leaders. Neither have I any cheers for an irresponsible, thoughtless and cynical citizenry whose money or indifference has built the Capone bank account.

"The decent citizen is accused of thinking about election day for two long weeks each year. The corrupt politician thinks of nothing but the next election all year. Chicago's citizens should begin thinking of the next election now.

"We are getting tired of the clowning at the city hall and its cheap oratory and promises. Somewhere in Chicago must be found a mayor who will not wink at police corruption or talk about things remote from Chicago's needs.

OUR SECRET AMBITION!

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Holland, Dec. 14.—Demand is being made in the Amsterdam courts to rehabilitate Rembrandt, Holland's famous artist, by a lineal descendant of the painter who is at present studying theology at Utrecht.

Rembrandt was adjudicated a bankrupt in 1669. When he died of poverty the same year his discharge from bankruptcy was not granted.

In his petition to the Amsterdam court Rembrandt's descendant points out that fortunes amounting to millions have been made by art dealers, authors and publishers out of Rembrandt's paintings, which is a sharp contrast to the painter's own poverty.

The demand is for a full discharge of Rembrandt from bankruptcy which must be made in the interests of history.

The Amsterdam court declares that it is not now competent to announce a rehabilitation as there are no creditors of the descendant alive.

Here's the Way to Give Yourself a Home-Made Facial

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As I may have mentioned before, it is a strange beauty ill that some eliminative provision has not been made for! If one goes on bearing blemisher malady, it is because one isn't interested enough to find the remedy. Curious, too, how long many of them have been in existence. A new day brings a need for their revival. Take face bleaching treatments and the procedure for making the skin clearer. Women used to employ them to look pale in a day when a pale look got a gal flowers and billet doux and proposals and things.

Now, women want the pale look because the sun tan coloring is not the vogue it was. But they do not want it too pale. Just a return to the normal tint of skin. So they call for a bleaching treatment and can get it in a beauty parlor, if they have the money; at home, if they want to economize.

First, give the face a cleansing, then massage if you have the time. Then, for the bleaching pack, use almond meal and make it into a paste with water. If the skin is oily add a few drops of tincture of benzoin to the paste. If the skin is tanned, add a few drops of peroxide of hydrogen.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

C. H.: RUB CALLOUSES WITH pumice to smooth down the hard skin. Grease the part with vaseline or cold cream to soften it. Soaking the feet in hot water into which a handful of sal soda is thrown may preface the pumice rubbing. My booklet on feet may be had for a stamped, addressed envelope.

The paste is mixed to a thick enough consistency to hold when applied to the face and is neither too watery nor too thick.

Smear it over the entire face and neck, protecting hair and eyebrows. The precaution is particularly urgent if you use the peroxide. It is a good thing to make a mask of medicated gauze with slits for eyes and nostrils and fit it over the paste, after which you put a warm towel over the gauze mask.

Let the mask remain on for fifteen minutes, then remove with a warm wet towel. Give yourself a few minutes more massage, then an ice rub or a rub with an astringent lotion.

Indeed, you do not have to have a coat of tan to experience a nice clean feeling after an almond paste mask treatment. The thorough face cleansing, the massage and the quiet fifteen minutes' rest given over to mask drying, and the action of the meal itself make you feel awfully nice after one.

FARM and GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

PROTECT FLOWER BEDS.

A word of caution about the protection necessary for flower beds the balance of the winter was voiced by members of the Men's Garden club, Chicago region, in their recent monthly round table discussion.

A favorable fall existed for the growth of root systems on bulbous flowers that will be the early blooming harbingers of spring. The recent few days of warm, sunny weather, even brought several gardeners' plants through the soil, with tender shoots that the following frosts are sure to kill off.

August Koch, veteran gardener of the west parks system, reported that many varieties of roses had been frozen down to the ground in the zero weather of November that succeeded a mild, moist period. He said that for spring flowers to bloom abundantly, the bulbs and tubers must be deep in the ground and developing a good root system during early winter. He indicated that many had planted their bulbs in too shallow soil, or that where soil conditions peculiar to Chicago are a handicap, the plants might start through.

Tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, crocus, Dutch iris—these and others must be well mulched at once, if they have not been already, to protect against alternate freezing and thawing which tears down cell tissues. A veteran tulip grower from Michigan declared that a bulb that was frozen and remained so throughout the winter, would thaw out and produce a normal bloom in the spring. Some narcissuses come through a freezing back, but have a tendency to multiply.

Soil conditions become increasingly important in the minds of gardeners in this area. Where crocus or Dutch iris will not last over a year or two on the west side, they will continue for fifteen or twenty years in the south parks and north shore.

Mild weather, where the mercury is well above freezing, also furnishes an ideal time for the first dormant spray on fruit trees, these men gardeners from all walks of life were told. Much of this was being done the past week, while a later dormant spray is effective in early spring as the buds are ready to open.

Will Debate Chain Stores.

Whether chain stores are detrimental or beneficial to the American consumer is to be debated tonight by teams representing Marquette University High school of Milwaukee and St. Ignatius High school of Chicago. The debate will be held in the auditorium of St. Catherine's academy at 118 North Central avenue. The Milwaukee team will uphold the negative side of the question.

Fiance Worries Over His Girl's Former Flames

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am engaged to marry a girl I love, but so many things have turned up since I became engaged to her that I am losing interest in marrying her. Before I met her she had a number of other beaus that she went around with, and one serious love affair. Her past with these men is not very encouraging to me.

"I have tried to break our engagement, but it is not easy to do. Would it injure my chances of happiness if I married this girl? Much depends upon your answer. DOUBTFUL."

If the decision rests with an outsider, Doubtful, you'd better not marry the girl. Let her go free. It looks to me as if she would be in for a rather bad time of it—with you.

When a man begins worrying about the old beaus and love interests of a girl before he met her there's something wrong. Maybe with the girl; maybe with the man. Anyway, to start out without faith in the person to whom you subscribe the rest of your life is getting off on the wrong foot.

The engagement period, it might be remembered, was established for the express purpose of permitting two persons to become more aware of each other's character and habits before entering into the life-long partnership. If the character and habits do not survive the test, better off with the promise.

It might be, in this particular case, that you, Doubtful, are wholly at fault. I note you are deeply concerned about YOUR chances of happiness, which I suppose is quite human. But you've got to think of the other fellow's, too, when you're figuring out happiness for yourself. It works that way, usually, and never more noticeably as in marriage. If you are one of the boys whose self-pride can only be bolstered by the knowledge that you are the one and only and always were the one and only in a girl's life, you'd be letting yourself and girl in for a terrible time in marriage.

But if you'd accept life as it is, and realize that girls often have a number of beaus, may even have a serious love affair before the man comes along with whom marriage seems the desirable thing, you might get yourself straightened out on your present tangle.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Take Dancing Lessons.

"Dear Miss Blake: I don't dance well, but I danced recently with my hostess anyway. Is it proper to ask a girl to dance with you when your dancing isn't so good? My embarrassment was great. ISADORE."

A few private lessons will improve your dancing and relieve you of further embarrassment.

Morrissons, Senior, to Quit Chicago Soon

BY THALIA

THE most surprising, and in a way, the most distressing news that I've heard in a long while is that the James W. Morrissons are going to leave Chicago for good. They have been identified importantly with Chicago for so long that the idea of their not being here is difficult to grasp.

Mr. Morrisson is out of business now, and he hasn't been so well for the last few years, and so they're going to move east next spring, and take a place in the country somewhere in Connecticut. Their plans are not all formulated as yet, but they probably will sell the State street house they've occupied for the last seven years.

Career Would Fill Book; Father Roosevelt's Friend.

Mrs. Morrisson's character and career would provide ample material for a full sized book, as she is one of Chicago's most outstanding and distinctive personalities. Born Mary Foulke, she is the daughter of William Dudley Foulke of Indiana, who was civil service commissioner in the Roosevelt administration. She apparently inherited her intense interest in civic and political matters. Her gentle appearance—she has been likened to "Jo" in Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women" with her filleted hair—belies her ability to battle firmly and almost fiercely in behalf of her convictions. Women's suffrage, civil service reform, war work, and all manner of political questions, national and local, have enlisted her interest and an incredible amount of activity.

In 1911, she became secretary of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, and was president of the Chicago association later. She has filled many offices in the League of Women Voters, and has been one of its most prominent members. Last year, she was a member of the American delegation to the Institute on Pacific Relations, held in Kioto, Japan.

For the last year or so, she has been preparing to go away, although she does not indicate that she is retiring from all activity. "The League of Women Voters is everywhere," she says. She returned on Friday from New York where she had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. John Waddell Chase [Rosemary Morrisson]. Her family includes besides, Robert Morrisson who is married, and three other sons.

Ina Crofton Engaged to A. Stevens Halsted Jr.

News today! Dr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Crofton of 1500 Lake Shore drive and Ithaca, N. Y., are announcing the engagement of their daughter Anne to A. Stevens Halsted Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevens Halsted of Pasadena, Cal. Miss Crofton went to Miss Masters' school at Dobbs Ferry and Les Fougeres in Lausane, Switzerland. She has been studying art and has done some designing of the Junior league's sets and costumes for the children's plays. She is also a member of the Service club. Mr. Halsted is a graduate of Stanford university, and is at present at Harvard law school. He has another year after this one, and so no definite plans have been made for the wedding. Mr. Halsted will come on from the east during the Christmas holidays for a visit with his fiancée and her parents.

The reason that the Junior league had to appeal to the University of Chicago medical laboratories for the educated monkey who appears in the Rusty Gurdy scene of the children's Chanve Souris was that they received so replies to numerous advertisements placed in the newspapers.

Margaret Sinclair, who would have had to negotiate the transaction, was relieved that they didn't because she didn't know how she could very well come with an Italian organ grinder over the league's office's telephone. The monkey behaved beautifully, but he was badly frightened, and was the only one at the performance who didn't have a lovely time.

Society News Briefly Told by the Editor.

In brief . . . Mrs. Lytton Benelle went to two parties on Friday evening, after which she packed her bags to catch the 9 o'clock plane the next morning for the east, to be gone until the 22d. . . . Cyrus McCormick Jr. was in New York on business last week. . . . Charles H. Schweppe and his son, John Shedd Schweppe, sailed for Europe on the Majestic on Saturday. . . . Hal Noble had a breakfast party yesterday morning. . . . Mrs. William H. Scriven is said to be back in Chicago. . . . Alfred Cadman Jr. of the Boston Cadmans is here to work this winter. . . . Margaret Ayer Barnes will tell why and how she wrote "Years of Grace" at a luncheon sponsored by the literary committee of the Women's City club Thursday afternoon.

The only soul Baron John von Eysenbardt knew in Chicago when he arrived here last week was Princess Alexandra Victoria von Schleswig-Holstein, but what with letters to various people, highly interesting conversational ability, good looks, and manner, his invitations are piling up rapidly. He comes here in his capacity of associate to Frank Pardridge of London, the famous antiquarian who had to pass on furnishings or tapestries before they can be placed in the royal palaces, and one afternoon this week he is going to have a group of the people he has been meeting in to his apartment at the Drake to see some of his choice things.

He went to Mrs. F. T. A. Junkin's dinner at the Blackstone on Friday night, the tea Mrs. Horatio B. Hackett had for the Lowell Thomases, and is also to be at Mrs. Charles W. McNear's dinner party last night by Clara Kretzinger.

Myra Hess Returns; Several Others Play in Sunday's Recitals

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It was a pleasure to welcome the return of Myra Hess at the Studebaker yesterday afternoon. She is a pianist who combines imagination and sanity in helpful proportions, with the result of pleasing the intellect and charming the senses to a like degree.

She excels in the delicacies of the piano; Cesar Franck's Prelude, Fugue, and Variation in the arrangement of Harold Bauer were delightful to an unwonted degree. Not that she cannot become forceful upon occasion, as she proved some moments later with the work that has become this season's favorite with concert pianists, the Handel-Brahms Variations and Fugue. Her program was brief as far as names go. There were the two works just named, Bach's Italian concerto, and a Chopin group consisting of one nocturne and six etudes. But in this list there was much to approve.

Next door at the Playhouse a joint recital was being given by Georgia Kober, pianist, and Marcel Roger de Bouzon, lieder-singer. Miss Kober made up her part of the program of groups of short works, almost entirely of modern authorship, and including a suite by the Chicago pianist and composer, Theodora Sturkow-Ryder, which, it is understood, has to do with the moods and whims of a kitten. Miss Kober is a brilliant and authoritative pianist, with much ability at catching and projecting the sprightliness of a musical idea.

Mr. de Bouzon was heard in a group of songs by German composers, in which he seemed more concerned with the emphasis and accent of the words than the vocal and musical values of the melody, a manner of singing which is likely to decree its own laws.

Chicago Musical College Symphony orchestra, made up mostly of students in the like named institution, gave a concert at Orchestra hall under the direction of Leon Sametini. Like the orchestral membership, the soloists were students as well, the list including Leonard Sorkin and Louis Augustine, violinists; Miriam Ulrich, Carl McGuire, and Wanda Paul, pianists—Mr. McGuire was also a composer.

Blocks Suitable for Various Ages May Now Be Had

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Probably in the manufacture of no other kind of toy has there been such a prodigious improvement as in that of blocks.

Blocks play a tremendous rôle in a child's play life, covering a long period of years. They are rich material allowing for unlimited variety and imagination and physical activity. It is now possible to get blocks that are worthy of the name, fitted to each age. And how prices have come down for them!

Starting with our veritable babies, we find the big nursery floor blocks in primary colors—or the natural wood. The littlest children love these huge blocks. And with only two of them piled up they find they have made a tower.

For the ages following the nursery babes, there are excellent blocks, both painted and unpainted, in little wagons. An attractive container encourages the children to put their blocks away and also the fitting in makes one more thing for them to do with the blocks. These vary in size, but are always in multiple units, so they fit in construction.

Less expensive is a cotton bag full of blocks. This gives many blocks at smaller cost. Incidentally, a beehive company puts these out, using its leftovers for the purpose.

Great blocks with pegs to fit them into holes in a board replace nowadays the agonizingly tiny pegboards of less enlightened days. These are made for the often toy neglected baby of one to one and a half years of age.

Does a tulip cart or a steamboat sound like a peg board to you? Yet two engaging affairs in the primary colors use round top pegs so they look like tulips in one case, and use funnels and smokestacks to act as pegs in another.

There's just room left to mention that a large gay ring toss for the fours and fives can be had, and big wooden tape apart and put together trains, and a large gay version of the Russian pyramid, made in America.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Black velvet trimmed with ecru lace would be lovely for this afternoon frock. It is beautifully designed with molded bodice and a slender hipline with low flared skirt fulness. An applied band at the center front of the bodice combines with the jabot frill of the collar to give the figure length by carrying out a vertical line.

The pattern, 2648, comes in sizes 16 to 18 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 4⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ⅛ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Colleges Gain Students as Business Lags

The annual study of Raymond Walters, dean of Swarthmore college, published in the current issue of School and Society, shows the trend exceeded that of the last several years and approached the percentage increase of the post-war period.

Reports from 421 institutions of all types in every state in the Union show totals for Nov. 1 of 578,671 full time students, an increase of 3½ per cent over the full time totals on Nov. 1, 1929. The grand total attendance, including part time students and the summer session of 1930, is 871,184.

Last year the increase in full time students over November, 1928, was only 1½ per cent for 226 universities and colleges on the approved list of the Association of American Universities.

According to Dean Walters, the explanation for the increase of 3½ per cent this academic year "probably lies in the continued faith of the American people in higher education and likewise in present economic conditions.

The study, in addition to recording the full time and part time attendance of 421 institutions listed by the American council of education, gives separately the 25 largest universities in the United States.

Minnesota, 12,490; New York university, 12,147; Ohio State, 10,709.

Michigan, 9,431; Wisconsin, 9,401.

Harvard, 8,446; University of Washington (Seattle), 7,368; University of Pennsylvania, 7,252; Pittsburgh, 7,098.

Northwestern, 6,184; Texas, 5,970; Nebraska, 5,795; Cornell, 5,725.

Chicago, 5,679; Boston university, 5,606; College of the City of New York, 5,312.

Yale, 5,259; Oklahoma, 5,210; University of Iowa, 4,860; Temple university, 4,736; Hunter college, 4,614; Cincinnati, 4,537.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover Jr. has gone to Asheville, N. C., to join her husband, after a week's visit at the White House. She left her three children to spend Christmas with their grandparents, President and Mrs. Hoover.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Storey, all of Chicago, were joint hosts at a tea and reception yesterday afternoon in the Pan-American room at the Mayflower. There many old Illinois friends as well as newer acquaintances in Washington were entertained. The hosts and their guests all went to the tea and dance that Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick gave at the Carlton to present her daughter Katrina to society.

Senator and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin were given a dinner tonight by Associate Justice and Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis. Mrs. La Follette is one of the senatorial brides of this season.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Asks for Castoff Clothes.

"Do you think your readers would have castoff clothing for my family? We just cannot afford to buy it and are greatly in need of it. I wear size 38 and my two daughters wear sizes 13 and 10. We are all badly in need of shoes, too. Mrs. C. O."

I am sure many of the garments your daughters wore last winter will be too small for them now. Won't you gather together any you may be discarding and send them to this mother?

Bright Sayings of the Children

Clara's parents often discuss reincarnation, and the little girl has acquired some of the phraseology.

"Mama," she said one day, "my kitty must have been a paper of pins in a previous state of existence."

"Why do you think so?" asked her mother.

"Because I can feel some of them in her toes yet," was the logical reply.

Trick Tiara Serves for Court and Society

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—I understand that famous court ladies always wear their tiaras when they go to London "to see the queen" after dark, and this season some of them are seen in tiaras at the great balls and most brilliant first nights as well.

A diamond tiara, however, is too regal for smaller occasions and so it has to "blush unseen" in the jewel case, sometimes for quite long periods.

La Cloche has found a way of remedying this drawback. He has designed a transformable tiara for the duchess of Westminster that comes apart to form a parure much easier to wear. It's all in magnificent white diamonds. You see the grand effect it makes at the top of our column. The border of the tiara unhooks to make the diamond necklace in the center.

The beautiful brooch in the lower left corner is the central motif to which the two large pointed diamonds flanking it in the tiara are attached by slender diamond chains.

These jewels may be worn all together or separately. The necklace is smart wound several times round the wrist as a bracelet, leaving the bare neck set off by the earrings.

Food Talk.

Salads are a delight on any menu. They please because they add touches of color and interesting flavor and they satisfy because they furnish the much needed fruits and vegetables. We are likely to overlook salads, especially at Christmas time when our attention is more on the hearty foods, such as roast goose, fruit cakes, plum puddings and candies. Bright colorful salads are a boon and they give a fresh light note which is a decided contrast to the heavy foods.

An unusually nice fruit salad for the Christmas table is made of lettuce, pineapple, red and green gelatin, cream cheese, cress, powdered sugar, rubyettes and emeraldettes. A slice of pineapple is placed on a bed of lettuce. Chop or cut into small dice, red and green gelatin and sprinkle over the pineapple. Then pipe a little rosette of cream cheese into the center of the pineapple. Stick a little bunch of cress into the pineapple to represent a Christmas tree. One or two rubyettes and emeraldettes arranged in the tree for ornaments and some powdered sugar sprinkled over the tree to simulate snow gives a decorative and edible salad. The cress should not be placed in the cream cheese until the salad is ready to be served. Then as soon as the salad is completed it should be sent to the table. The finished salad loses its pleasing appearance when kept any period of time before serving.

Still another good Christmas salad is made of perfect sections of small grapefruit and large oranges. Lay sections together alternately to form a hemisphere, round side up, on the lettuce leaf. If the sections are of equal size the mound should be just the size of half an orange. Separate the sections with thin strips of green pepper. Cut a poinsettia from pimento and lay across the top.

CANDIED SWEET POTATOES.

3 tablespoons sugar.
½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Pare and parboil the sweet potatoes which have been cut in halves lengthwise. After ten minutes of boiling, drain and lay in a buttered baking dish. Dot with the butter. Sprinkle with the sugar and cinnamon. Add the hot water and bake until tender, basting often with the sauce in the pan.

Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 291 calories; protein, 12 calories; fat, 75 calories; carbohydrates, 203 calories.

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame All-Stars, a team made up of former Irish football players, went down in a crushing 22 to 0 defeat at the hands of the New York professional football Giants today on the frost-bitten field of the Polo grounds.

With a crowd of 50,000 spectators, who paid upward of $150,000 at the gate, looking on in bewilderment, Benny Friedman and his husky professional mates made a shambles of their charity game, the last of the football benefits for the unemployed and needy, with the outstanding Notre Dame players from the days of the Four Horsemen.

BENNY FRIEDMAN.

Friedman Plays Leading Role.

From start to finish the Giants had the South Benders at their mercy, and until the withdrawal of the regulars in the second half, the professionals ripped and passed their way down the field almost as they pleased. Friedman tossed his baseball-like passes in inimitable fashion, and carried the ball over twice for touchdowns. He was the outstanding gainer on the field.

Both of Friedman's touchdowns were made in the second quarter, one of them on a bull-like charge through center for 20 yards that left a half dozen Notre Dame men chagrined by their failure to bring him to earth. Another touchdown by Campbell on a 33 yard pass from Moran in the third period; a safety scored in the opening quarter when Harry Stuhldreher was thrown behind is own goal line in attempting to get off a pass; and two placement kicks for extra points, one each by Friedman and Moran accounted for the Giants' 22 points.

Fail to Complete a Pass.

Notre Dame never was within striking distance of the Giants' goal line. The closest the Irish ever got with the ball was 51 yards away when they were on their own 49 yard line in the second period. Notre Dame made only one first down, gained only 34 yards by rushing the ball, lost 22 yards on three successive plays by Stuhldreher and Jack Elder and failed to complete a pass out of nine attempted.

In justice to the All Stars, they were in no condition to be expected to hold their own with a strapping, perfectly trained outfit that has been in competition for months, with its attack perfectly coördinated and every man knowing his job to the letter.

All-Stars Hastily Assembled.

Hastily banded together, without benefit of the hard exercise that is necessary for perfect condition and with only a few days of preparation together in signal drill, it is not to be wondered that they should have been overpowered by their heavy opponents and that they should have been faltering and uncertain in executing their attack. Many of them were summoned from their coaching posts and had only a few hours in which to familiarize themselves again with plays that they had not executed since their college days. Rip Miller the Navy line coach, joined the team only Saturday night.

On top of all this, Rockne's health has not been such that he could drill the men with his accustomed thoroughness, and as a consequence their play was lacking in the finish that one expects of Notre Dame teams, particularly in their blocking and tackling.

The Chicago Blackhawks last night suffered their first licking on Chicago ice when the Montreal Maroons took them on a 2 to 0 merrygo-round ride.

It was the third defeat our lads have absorbed this year and two of the setbacks have been administered by these same ornery Maroons. All of which comes under the heading of sweet revenge, for the Hawks thrashed the Maroons right viciously four times in a row last season.

A crowd of 15,500 saw the game, the largest crowd to see a hockey game in the United States this year.

Both of the markers were made by Babe Selbert, one in 5 minutes and 30 seconds of the second period, when Goalie Gardiner was pulled out of position to give Babe a shamefully easy shot at the open net, and the other was accomplished in 7 minutes of the final period on a long shot from a spot only a few feet inside the blue line.

Fans Cheer Gottselig.

The Hawks lost a chance to regain the National league lead, remaining in a tie with the Boston Bruins, who did not play last night.

The first period was one of those scoreless affairs with neither side scaring the other very much.

Although Goalie Gardiner made 11 stops against visiting shooters and Flat Walsh headed off 14 flips, only two or three shots by each side were close ups that tested the talent of the two goalies.

The customers, deprived of the opportunity to cheer for scoring got to whoop it up for one of the athletes—Johnny Gottselig.

Johnny is the Hawks' leading scorer, as he was last season. He had been out of the game for two weeks and during the period the Hawks took two lickings, causing the members of the Gottselig marching club to contend that their hero's absence was the cause of the reversals.

Maroons Take Lead.

The Maroons started right off like they meant business. Nels Stewart was the first to start things going. He got past the Hawk defense and the only thing that prevented him from tallying was the inaccuracy of his shooting three feet from the cage.

Not a whit discouraged the visitors continued to be most pesty. Then in 5:30 Gardiner left his post fo a point 10 feet in front of the cage to do a little stick work of his own. But he reckoned without the skill of his adversaries. When Chuck got ready to do his finishing work the puck had disappeared. In an instant Babe Selbert had it. A gorgeous arc in front of the open goal followed and the Hawks were trailing, 1 to 0.

Selbert Scores Again.

Some of the prettiest skating of the season was staged by that ponderous gent, Mr. Abel. He dashed down the ice, dumping all before him, but his short shot was stopped.

The third period was seven minutes old when Selbert did his stuff for the second time to make the score 2 to 0.

After a lot of futile skating Selbert got the puck five feet inside the blue line in mid ice, held his breath, and shot. The puck sailed past Gardiner's high kick for his second score.

A little later Des Jardins, Romnes, and Ingram engaged Walsh and the Montreal goalie was knocked out when he saved a goal with his mouth. After first aid treatment for Mr. Walsh the game was resumed and a few minutes later the Hawks were playing six men against four for the Maroons, but were unable to produce.

Portsmouth, O., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The Green Bay Packers won their second consecutive National Professional Football league championship by holding the Portsmouth Spartans to a 6 to 6 tie here today.

Portsmouth was the underdog when the kickoff whistle blew, but the Spartans met the 1929 champions on even terms, and if a pass from Lumpkin, which Joseph caught beyond the goal line, had not been ruled out of bounds the Spartans would have emerged victors.

Both Cautious at Start.

Both sides played a cautious punting game as the first period opened and waited for breaks which never came. Late in the period the Packers started a march from their 35 yard line to the Spartan's 10 yard line. With fourth down and ten yards to go, Lewellen passed to Engleman, who ran across for the first score. Dunn's try for goal was wide.

In the second period Portsmouth came from midfield to the 12 yard line and Lumpkin passed to Joseph over the goal line. The latter caught the toss, but was a few inches out of bounds and the ball went to Green Bay. After an exchange of punts the Spartans began another march from their own 30 yard line with Lewis, Lumpkin and Bennett carrying the ball. Bennett went around left end to tie the score and Lewis missed his place kick for the extra point.

Lewellen Leads Attack.

Lewellen led a series of line bucks and passes which drove Portsmouth back to its own 12 yard line before the half ended. Fleckenstein, substituting for Braidwood, ended this threat at Portsmouth's goal by intercepting a pass from Lewellen.

Portsmouth was deep in Green Bay territory twice in the second half and Green Bay threatened once, but in each case a scoring punch was lacking.

Wealthy Ottawa Recruit to Join Quaker Sextet

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Cooper Smeaton, manager of the Philadelphia National league hockey team, announced tonight that the Quakers had obtained the services of a wealthy recruit from Ottawa's amateur hockey ranks. The new player, D'Arcy Coulson, scion of a Canadian brewing family, was expected here tomorrow. Coulson is the third new man to join the Quakers in a week in the club's effort to build a winning team. Deals for two others, both major leaguers, are pending, Smeaton said.

Charity Gets $20,000 If Pro Game Fills Stadium Tonight

BY ARCH WARD.

Influenced, no doubt, by the precedent of Northwestern, Notre Dame, Michigan, Chicago, and other college elevens, the professional football men are going to play for the boys in the bread line tonight.

The net proceeds of the game between the Cardinals and Bears at Chicago Stadium will be turned over to Gov. Emmerson's unemployment commission. Charity will gain nearly $20,000 if the contest is played before a full house.

Night football indoors is an experiment in Chicago. It was tried many years ago, but never enjoyed much popularity. But there was no Chicago Stadium in those days.

There will be room for 16,000 tonight after space has been provided for a gridiron 80 yards long and almost regulation width. A punt can soar 94 feet without hitting the rafters. Few kicks reach that altitude. We have been told that nobody ever has booted a football to the top of the armory at the University of Illinois, which is 99 feet from the floor.

It has been necessary to adopt a few ground rules, but the game in the main will be played under regular conditions. There will be no attempts to score from the field by drop kicks or place kicks. This scoring weapon has been ruled out, due to the lack of wind and weather conditions which make field goals difficult to accomplish in outdoor football.

"Every cent above operating costs will go to the unemployment fund," said George Halas, co-owner of the Bears, the other night. "I even had to buy a ticket for my wife. No free tickets will be issued except to writers and photographers, who have been assigned to the game."

Notre Dame Honors Stagg.

Somebody once said there was nothing new under the sun. It was borne out by Knute Rockne in a tribute he paid to Amos Alonzo Stagg at the Notre Dame football dinner last week.

Most of the fans who turn out for Notre Dame's games expect to see something entirely new and intricate. They figure no team could parade up and down the nation's gridirons bowling over strong teams Saturday after, Saturday without a magic touch to its play. They have heard so much about the Rockne system that many feel it is a creation all his own.

But as Rockne himself pointed out, Notre Dame's attack is based on standard formations used by men like Stagg before Rockne knew what football was all about. Notre Dame's strongest offensive is a smash at the tackle and end and a cut outside the tackle.

Rockne, of course, has adopted modern variations of the old plays, and his attack is so diversified that an opponent soon becomes groggy trying to figure it out. But Notre Dame football basically is 30 to 40 years old, and Rockne makes no bones about it. His knowledge of football came from Jess Harper, who preceded him as coach at Notre Dame. Harper's football came from Stagg, who learned the game at Yale.

Why Football's Worth While.

There was an incident at the Notre Dame dinner that made a lump come up in the throat of any man with the welfare of football at heart. Here were two coaches—Knute Rockne of Notre Dame, coach of the greatest team of the day, and Amos Stagg of Chicago, coach of a team which wasn't strong enough to win a conference game. But to the 1,200 persons assembled in the banquet hall greatness was not measured by victories and defeats. No man ever received a more whole hearted reception than Notre Dame gave Mr. Stagg.

Whether or not Chicago wins another football game under Stagg it will be too bad for Chicago and too bad for football when he comes to the end of the trail. Nobody has contributed more to intercollegiate athletics.

If the sole purpose of college football were to win games, there might be others who would outshine the veteran of the Midway. If the sole purpose were exercise for the boys, many could do the job satisfactorily. But there is more to football than that. It is worth while only if the player gets something out of the game which he can appropriate to himself, something to strengthen his moral fibre for other battles to come.

If the hundreds of young men who have worked under Stagg in his 39 years at the Midway have not got this out of football it is their fault. Nobody ever had a greater teacher.

Maj. Griffith's Figures.

Before the reformers become too loud about overemphasis of football, it might be well for them to talk to Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics in the western conference. He has figures to support his statement that out of 1,000 schools above high school rank only 25 make enough money from football to finance their athletic programs.

The targets of football reformers usually are schools which have had unusual success. This year the educational centers which have been overemphasizing the game in this section, are Notre Dame, Northwestern, and Michigan.

When they got crowded up against the ropes, all they have to do is lose two or three ball games.

SYRACUSE CENTER WILL PLAY WITH EASTERN ELEVEN

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Milford Bernar, veteran Syracuse university center, was added to the East squad today by Andy Kerr and will leave tomorrow for Chicago, where Kerr's players are assembling preparatory to heading for the Pacific coast to meet the West on Dec. 27 in the Shriners' hospital fund game.

Bernar is one of the biggest centers in football. He stands six feet three inches and weighs 215 pounds. He started his varsity career as a full back, but for the last two seasons has been the snapperback and defensive full back for the big Orange team.

Kid Chocolate to Return to Havana for Long Rest

New York, Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Kid Chocolate, accompanied by his manager, Louis Guiterrez, will return to Havana this week. Chocolate will remain inactive for at least three months. Guiterrez declared he will have Chocolate submit to a thorough physical examination while at home to determine if anything is ailing him. Meanwhile Guiterrez is set on giving the Kid a long rest before having him don the gloves again. Upon his return he will try to arrange for a return meeting between Chocolate and Bat Battalino for the featherweight championship. Another bout he is eager to close is a return match with Fidel La Barba.

Rudolph Defeats Taberski, 125-70, to Hold Billiard Lead

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Erwin Rudolph of Chicago strengthened his hold on the lead in the world's championship pocket billiard tournament tonight by defeating Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y., 125 to 70, in 19 innings. It was Rudolph's fourth successive victory without a defeat.

Trailing Rudolph is Onofrio Lauri of New York with four victories and one defeat, and Ralph Greenleaf, defending champion, with three triumphs in four starts. Rudolph played sensational billiards and put together one cluster of 62 for the high run of the match. Taberski, who had given Greenleaf his first defeat last night, had a high run of 46.

This afternoon, Lauri defeated Arthur Woods of New York, 125 to 70, in 17 innings, and Bennie Allen of Kansas City conquered Thomas Boatman of Portland, Ore., 125 to 120, in 22 innings.

Rudolph and Lauri will clash tomorrow night. In the afternoon Pasquale Natalie of Chicago meets Boatman and Greenleaf plays Woods. The standings:

	Won.	Lost.	High Run.
Rudolph	4	0	67
Lauri	4	1	51
Greenleaf	3	1	104
Woods	3	3	63
Taberski	2	3	46

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Professional football will make its contribution to charity tonight at the Stadium, where the Bears and Cardinals, Chicago's members in the National league, meet for their third game this season. The Bears already have won the city title with two victories over their south side rivals, but their Thanksgiving day battle was decided by a touchdown, 6 to 0. Both have defeated the Green Bay Packers, champions of the league.

According to George Halas, co-owner of the Bears, the net receipts will be donated to charity. The clubs will not share in the profits, and the players will receive only 50 per cent of their customary salaries. The cost of placing a half foot of dirt on the terrazzo floor of the Stadium constitutes the major expense.

Dirt Replaces Ice.

Immediately after the hockey game last night a crew of men began the task of covering 47,500 square feet with dirt. The gridiron will be 80 yards in length, 40 yards short of a regulation field including the end zones.

Indoor football is not new to Chicago. The semi-pro teams each fall have decided their championships indoors and the new armory of the 124th Field artillery at 5200 Cottage Grove avenue, has been used frequently this fall. However, this is the first time professional teams have met indoors in the central west, and tonight's game probably will attract a larger crowd than any other such game. The Stadium was chosen for the game because of the advantages afforded the spectators.

The greatest advantage of the spectators, of course, will be their proximity to the players. Thus they will be able to follow more closely the game, which, in the ordinary stadium, they cannot do. A white ball will be used.

Start Regular Lineups.

The regular lineups of the pros will start the battle. Bronko Nagurski, the Bears' full back, will match his ability against Ernie Nevers, the triple threat ace of the Cards. Lintzenich, recovered from his injury last week in the Green Bay game, will kick for the Bears against Nevers.

Grange and Brumbaugh will be the other backs starting for the Bears. Baker, Belden, and Maples will assist Nevers.

Price, Iowa Boy, to Lead Army Eleven

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Meeting in the baggage car of their special train on the way home from New York this morning, the lettermen of the Army football squad elected Jack Price of North Fort Dodge, Ia., captain of the 1931 football team.

Price has been regular left tackle on the Army team for the last two seasons. He was 20 years old last month, weighs 220 pounds, and is 6 feet 3¼ inches tall. He played through the entire game yesterday in Army's triumph over the Navy.

Attended Wisconsin School.

Price won his appointment as 1928 honor graduate of the Northwestern Military and Naval academy at Lake Geneva, Wis., and entered the academy in 1929. He was a member of his plebe football, track, and wrestling squads. Last year he won a major letter in track as well as in football. His specialty in track is the shot put. In the cadet corps Price is a corporal, the highest rank a member of his class can hold.

Maj. Ralph I. Sasse, Army head coach, in praising Polly Humber, retiring captain, at the meeting at which Price was elected, said that Humber had made possible Ray Stecker's touchdown which beat the Navy by taking out the Navy guard.

Get Ovation in Mess Hall.

There was no demonstration at the station when the team reached West Point as the cadet corps was at dinner, but the cadets made up for the lack of it when Humber led the squad into the mess hall, suspending eating operations to cheer every player.

KRONE, EMINENT DIETITIAN, TALKS WRESTLING, TOO

Thinks His Londos Bout Tonight Is a Wow.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Doc Krone, as most dietitians know, claims the world's record for healthy reducing through diet and moderate exercise. Several years ago the Doc, without the aid of drugs or ill health, took off 180 pounds in 15 months.

Doc is a great admirer of athletes, especially rasslers, and more especially Jim Londos, one of the several world champions, who is hailed by Doc as THE world champion and the "greatest conditioned athlete of all time."

Londos Defends Title.

It just happens that tonight Mr. Londos will defend his title against Mike Romano at the Broadway armory, Thorndale and Broadway. By rare coincidence a portly reporter, at present in the throes of an effort to emulate Doc Krone's reducing record, more or less, was assigned to make Doc submit to an interview, which, we understand, was recorded something like the following:

PORTLY REPORTER—Well, Doc, it looks like a sellout for the Londos-Romano match at the Broadway armory. And, by the way, Doc, when you were taking off them 180 pounds, what was the thing you avoided most?

"World's Greatest Athlete."

DOC KRONE—It sure does look like a sellout. And with a world champion like Jim Londos, the world's greatest athlete of all time on the card, it's no wonder. It's a shame we haven't got a bigger hall, for a lot of folks may not be able to get in. Why, in Athens a year ago Londos wrestled before 65,000 people. When I was reducing, the thing I avoided most was drinking water with my meals. That's deadly. Now, this superman, Londos——

PORTLY REPORTER—Next to drinking with your meals what was the order of other things you scratched off the list?

DOC KRONE—Londos defeated Richard Shikat on the night of June 6 in Philadelphia before 30,000, and every one was delighted with the match. No. 2 of the rules for reducing is to take nothing with alcohol in it. No. 3 is to avoid eating late at night. Of course, you know about potatoes, carrots, starchy foods, etc. Since Londos has become the undisputed world's heavyweight champion he has——

Breaks Attendance Records.

PORTLY REPORTER—How about rye bread?

DOC KRONE—Since Londos became the undisputed world champion he has broken all attendance records in the large cities such as New York, St. Louis, Baltimore, etc. In New York on Nov. 27 last at Madison Square Garden, in a match with Gina Garibaldi, THE champion drew a house of more than 20,000 persons. In all of his recent shows he has turned them away. Rye bread is just as bad as white and white bread is dynamite to a reducing campaign. I always used to carry around a cracker or two to nibble if I got too hungry. The National Boxing association, after Londos' sensational——

PORTLY REPORTER—How about ice cream?

And What a Diamond Belt!

DOC KRONE—The athletic commissions of 33 states are affiliated with the N. B. A., and only six have no jurisdiction over wrestling. Just look at this photograph of the diamond belt—14 carats—that the N. B. A. awarded Londos. Never eat ice cream while you're reducing. A little sherbert is O. K., but don't let it tempt you to proceed to pie or cake. Londos has developed such holds as the Japanese leg hold, a sure leg breaker. With this hold the world's champion has forced many an opponent to quit.

St. Leopold provided one of two upsets in the north division of the Catholic Order of Foresters Basketball league yesterday by defeating Queen of Angels, 27 to 22, in an overtime game at St. Michael's gym. The winner led most of the regulation time, which ended, 21 all.

Barone, Dovichi, and Klumpp, new players, scored the winning points. McDevitt counted once for the losers on a free throw. The other surprise was Hofbauer's loss to St. Eugene, 18 to 9. St. Leopold-Queen of Angels lineup:

Brickies Beat Hellrungs in Cup Play, 7-2

Fifteen hundred fans watched the Bricklayers soccer team vanquished the St. Louis Hellrungs, 7 to 2, yesterday in the opening match of the Intercity Triner cup competition at Sparta field.

Although the field was covered with slush, which hampered both teams, the Brickies demonstrated that they are one of the fastest and highest scoring soccer teams in the middle west.

Five minutes after the kick off the Chicago eleven scored when Coutts took a pass from MacLean and beat Stohlman, the St. Louis goalie, to the net. Cuthbert broke through the visitors' defense and scored on a long kick. Hart scored the first goal for St. Louis a minute later. Just before the half ended the Brickies took a lead of 3 to 1 when Munro, inside right, got up the ball in midfield and scored on a beautiful run.

Cuthbert Scores Twice.

The second half was hardly under way when Cuthbert scored two goals in succession, the first on a long run and the latter on a short kick in front of the goal. The Hellrungs helped their opponents when Nolan kicked the ball into his own net, adding a goal to the Brickies' score.

Greenlee ended the scoring of the Brickies by sending a kick past the goalie, who was out of position.

Hart Leads St. Louis.

In a curtain raiser, Sparta handed the Meyer London aggregation a 4 to 2 defeat.

Baer, Schaaf Fight Friday in New York

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Max Baer, latest heavyweight sensation from California, makes his debut in Madison Square Garden Friday night, meeting Ernie Schaaf of Boston in ten rounds.

Baer has been hailed in the west as a "second Jack Dempsey." His record shows only one defeat in 27 professional starts and 24 knockout victories. He hopes to stop Schaaf in four or five rounds.

There are few other bouts of general interest on the week's schedule. Con O'Kelly, Irish heavyweight, tackles Al Friedman of Boston, at Boston tomorrow night, and Jackie Fields, former welterweight champion, meets Bucky Lawless of Syracuse, N. Y., in a ten rounder at Detroit Friday. Other bouts on the National schedule include:

Purdue Opens Season with Notre Dame

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—Opening against Notre Dame here tomorrow night and the stacking up against Washington university of St. Louis, two-time champions of the Missouri Valley, here Saturday night, Purdue, Big Ten title defenders face a severe test o ftheir basketball ability during the coming week.

Coach Ward Lambert's new combination, with Johnny Wooden, flashy floor guard, and Harry Kellar, forward, remaining as the only regulars from last year's undefeated quintet, is the mystery entry in the Big Ten race, and the two games this week are expected to uncover the possibilities of the team as a title contender this season.

The Notre Dame game will mark a homecoming for Crowe, speedy Irish forward, who is a former Jefferson High school (Lafayette) star. Tomorrow's tilt will mark the first time the two teams have met since 1923, when Purdue won, 39 to 20.

Play on High School Floor.

The unusual interest in the game has led to the shifting of its site to the Jefferson High school gymnasium, which will accommodate close to 5,000 fans, and plenty of tickets will be available, even for late comers.

Don White's Washington five will be another formidable foe in the second game of the season Saturday night. White, a former Purdue star who learned his basketball under Lambert, is beginning his ninth year as head coach this season.

With the exception of Wooden and Kellar, Purdue will be forced to depend almost entirely on sophomores. Robert Dornte and Ray Eddy look like the best forward prospects, although Dick Porter, reserve from last season, may get the call. Charles Stewart and Norman Miner are fighting it out for the center position.

Back Guard a Problem.

Back guard presents the most perplexing problem. There is a possibility that John Husar, rangy football tackle, who has reported for practice after being laid up for six weeks with a fractured ankle, may be in shape for a short appearance against Washington. Other back guard prospects include Glen Overman, reserve last season, and Wayne Snyder and Roland Kurtz, sophomores. Wooden will take care of the other guard position.

Probable lineup:

PURDUE.		NOTRE DAME.
Kellar	F	Newbold
Eddy	F	Crowe
Stewart	C	DeCook
Wooden	G	Johnson
Parmenter	G	Burns

CHICAGO LOSES GORDON, EXPERT ON CONSERVATION

Takes Up New Duties in N. Y. Jan. 1.

BY BOB BECKER.

Chicago and the middle west lose a nationally known conservationist Jan. 1 when Seth Gordon, conservation director of the Izaak Walton League of America, goes east to take the presidency of the American Game Protective association, the headquarters of which are in New York. Mr. Gordon succeeds the late Carlos Avery, who died on Oct. 5.

SETH GORDON.

Mr. Gordon is known throughout the country for his work in conservation, having given 20 years to the fostering of interest and legislation in behalf of game and wild life conservation, first in charge of the game conservation work of Pennsylvania for a number of years and later as conservation director of the Walton league.

Made Pennsylvania Model.

His work in Pennsylvania was largely responsible for the shaping of broad policies which have made Pennsylvania a model for other states in conservation matters. He had a leading part in the establishment of a state-wide system of refuges and public hunting grounds, development of effective predatory animal control system, and sensible but strict enforcement of game laws.

Mr. Gordon goes east to assume his new duties with a complete picture of the conservation needs of the middle west, if this area is to have game and a place to hunt feathered and furred wild life in the future. During the last four years while with the Walton league he has made intensive studies of conditions here, especially with respect to the relationships between hunters and farmers, a partnership that is being worked out to increase game production throughout the entire United States.

New Job a Big One.

The American Game Protective association, whose activities Mr. Gordon will direct beginning the first of the year, is one of the leading conservation organizations in the United States. Although its headquarters are in the east, it is national in scope.

DOC KRONE—Popular prices will prevail at the Broadway armory where the world champion wrestles Milo Romano, the Italian sensation. Even the top prices are in reach of all and there is ample parking space outside the hall. All the exercise I took was walking, sometimes walking as much as 10 miles at a stretch. If you get out to the show I want you to meet the undisputed champion and the other seven wrestlers on the card. All perfect gentlemen who know enough to take off their hats and do very little talking when they are in a man's office or home. Every match on the card is going to be an honest and earnest competition, and I predict the capacity crowd will be cheering throughout the show.

GLOOM REIGNS IN GRAIN TRADE AS PRICES DROP

Winnipeg Levels at All Time Low.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Pessimism dominates all speculative markets and lowering prices were the feature last week, with declines in wheat and all grains in Winnipeg to the lowest levels that western Canada has ever seen.

In the United States, farm board activities in old crop deliveries of wheat supported them at the same levels for two weeks, 81@81¼c for old style, and 81¼@81¾c for new style May. Farm board brokers took the bulk of the offerings, but there was at no time sufficient pressure from sellers to enable them to fill their orders, despite the bearish surroundings.

Speculators say they are not disposed to sell a well supported market. July was under pressure all week and dropped to the lowest level in recent years, with the close at 70@70¼c, a net loss for the week of 3¼c, while old crop deliveries were unchanged to ⅛c higher as compared with a week ago.

Winnipeg December deliveries sank to 54⅞c and May 59c, the close being practically at the bottom, with losses of 4@4⅝c as compared with a week ago. December oats sold down to 25¼, rye 23½c, and barley 24½c.

Argentine Situation Bad.

Agricultural conditions in Argentina are as bad as they are in Canada, with wheat 57¼c, and corn 34⅝c despite crop damage. In Liverpool December wheat finished at 67⅞c, and May at 71⅝c, all being strikingly lower than Chicago. These conditions suggest to the grain trade that unless there is a change for the better farmers will have to raise less grain the world over, as there is no profit in present prices, especially in Argentina, Russia, and Canada, where freight rates are high. There also will have to be a change in America and a greatly reduced acreage was suggested as the main cure for the unfavorable situation. The demand is not heavy for any grain, despite the extremely low prices, but trade leaders believe that were the unexpected to happen, as it frequently does, when depression is acute, a moderately sustained advance might restore confidence. They also say that were the trade sure that liquidation in stocks was over there would be a great improvement in all commodities, but until there is a change in Wall street, operators predict there will be no disposition to load up with grains and that they would prefer to pay higher prices under greatly improved conditions.

Wheat Statistics Bearish.

Wheat statistics remain bearish, but there are indications of a change in the world's available wheat supplies, with fair decreases in the near future. On the other hand, Argentine and Australian crops are being harvested and competition prevails between these countries and Canada, giving buyers the advantage of unusually low prices, regardless of production costs.

Movement of wheat to primary markets is the lightest at this time in more than five years. Millers are taking fair supplies, having bought over 700,000 bu at Chicago the last two weeks. This, however, does not include sales by farm board agencies, which are said to have been liberal. Reports from a Kansas City miller says that farm board operations make it impossible for American millers to

Expert Asks Grain Deals Daily Limit

BY SCRUTATOR.

Dr. J. T. W. Duvel, chief of the grain futures administration, has reported to his superior, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, that legislation should be passed limiting the volume of daily purchases or sales and the total futures holdings permitted traders in the grain markets for speculative purposes.

In Dr. Duvel's opinion a rational limitation of this kind would "inure to the direct benefit of all interests using the futures markets for proper purposes."

Such legislation may be wise. It might help those who are legitimate users of the futures markets, which presumably means those who want to insure themselves against market vagaries of the future when buying or selling; it would almost certainly save money for speculators.

Less Exact Evidence.

As to the actual necessity for limiting the amount of grain futures an individual or a group of individuals can sell, buy or hold the evidence is less exact. The object of it would be to prevent market manipulation. If the federal farm board's corporations, holding one bushel in every eight produced in a normal crop year, can't manipulate a market, who can? It is assumed that no intention exists to force the government out by the recommended laws.

The grain futures report for the year ending last June show that sales of wheat in all American markets were nearly twenty billion bushels. In other words, every bushel of wheat grown was sold about twenty-five times before it was consumed. Men who would attempt now to manipulate, with private capital, such a flood of trade would be a bit foolish.

Something more than a year ago a group of capitalists set out to corner rye, bought twenty million bushels and lost six million dollars on the deal That six millions was a gift made by big speculators to farmers and little speculators. It is true, however, that most of the big speculators who have been in the market of late years carry their positions on the short side of the market. To assume that they run prices down and hold them down is not often true.

Shorts Must Buy Back.

For a speculator who goes short, sells what isn't his, must buy it back. Unless he is merely forecasting accurately what is to happen naturally in the market, his buying-in operations will have just as much effect as his selling operations. The old time speculators who dealt in the millions of bushels took the position they did because they believed they realized before the rest of the world did that grain was too high or too low, as the case might have been. When they were right they won, and when they were wrong they lost.

One the whole, speculation is a losing game. The charges assessed against the speculator are just like the takeout at the racetrack. Perhaps it is not news, but the market costs are not paid by the farmer or the man who eats the wheat; they are paid by the speculators; just as the costs of maintaining a stock exchange and its appurtenances are cared for by people who take flyers instead of investing for income.

There seems ample power in the present laws to prevent the running down of grain prices and sufficient information gathered by the futures administration on which to make this power operate.

November Sales of 50 Chains Decrease 10.58%

New York, Dec. 14.—(AP)—Sales reported by 50 chain store companies for November totaled $331,351,722, as compared with $370,532,692 for November, 1929, a decrease of 10.58 per cent, figures made public disclose. For the eleven months sales totaled $3,662,576,857, compared with $3,683,381,559 for the corresponding period in 1929.

WORLD EXPORT TRADE IS STILL 16% ABOVE 1925

Slump Only Cancels Part of Gains.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The trade of the world moves forward. Periods of depression serve only to cancel a portion of the gains made in times of prosperity. Therefore the people of the world constantly enjoy more of both necessities and luxuries. While American export trade has suffered more than that of Europe during the current depression, still it was American trade that gained most during the prosperous years.

These deductions may be made from the annual summary on international trade issued by the National Foreign Trade council last night. It accounts for the downturn in exports throughout the world by reviewing the facts of increased production during the last five years. But it points out that American manufacturing is substantially holding its own in exports, while Europe, which is our best customer, is just now the steadiest field of international commerce.

"The steady growth of international commerce has been interrupted this year for the first time since 1921 by a net decrease of about 8 per cent in the volume of the world's export trade," the summary says. "But in spite of the present downturn, international trade, as expressed in world exports, is still about 16 per cent greater in volume than it was in 1925.

Export Trade In 1930.

"Therefore about two-thirds of this gain in the tonnage of world trade that had been made since 1925 up to the end of last year will still be retained at the end of 1930. World export trade for 1930, according to figures up to Dec. 1 for nations carrying on about half of the world's commerce, indicate that the export trade of the 101 nations of the world will be about $22,500,000,000, compared with $24,427,000,000 for 1929, both figures being reduced to the common index of 1913 prices.

"A notable fact of the year's business is that European export trade has been less affected by the present depression than that of any other section of the world. The actual volume of Europe's export business has remained very close to what it was in 1929. Though its trade is less than last year's in current dollar values, this is almost entirely due to the fall in prices. In 1929 the aggregate export trade of the 27 European nations had at last reached 99 per cent of its 1913 volume.

"The volume of our own exports has fallen off from that of 1929 by approximately 15 per cent during the first ten months of this year. They are still, however, 35 per cent greater in volume than before the war and about even with our exports in 1926. An encouraging feature, moreover, is that with the omission of the automotive industry, the export of our finished manufactured goods for the first six months of the year shows trade has been carried on at more than 92 per cent of the volume of the same months last year. It is in these products that our greatest sales effort is being made, and so far there is no evidence that this sound position has been changed.

Cites Strongest Element.

"The strongest element of foreign trade throughout the world during the last year has been the part contributed by manufacturing industry. With a few exceptions, manufactured goods of all kinds continue to circulate in approximately the same volume as in previous years. This is particularly notable as accounting for the steadiness in European export trade, four-fifths of which, predominantly of manufactured character, is from the nations of western Europe. Europe once again is carrying on practically half of the world's export trade and has achieved an advance of more than 14 per cent in export volume since 1926.

"The decreases in the world's export trade this year have been almost entirely in the countries which chiefly produce raw materials. This has followed a period of unusual expansion of production in many of these countries, which has culminated this year in a severe reduction of the prices of many basic products. Taking the period from 1925 to 1929 as a standard, the normal growth of population of about 5 per cent and of general consumption of about 15 per cent for such a period has been substantially exceeded in a number of outstanding cases.

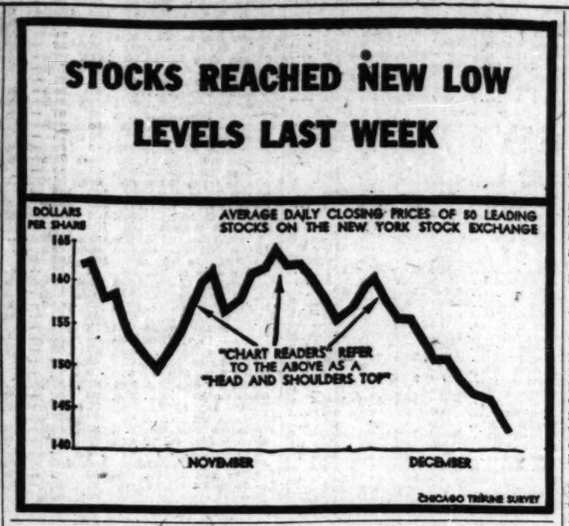

"Surpluses in these products have appeared not merely because of their increasing production but because of other factors of increasing influence. There has been growing competition, tending in many cases to increase more selective buying habits in the general public. The mere increase of production could not have brought about the price recessions of the present year had not some or all of these additional factors operated.

Combined Influence Felt.

"The present condition in world trade is the effect of these combined influences. It is reflected in an inevitable temporary slackening in consumption until the vast resources in buying power, steadily tapped since the war, again resume their normal function in stimulation of trade activity and continued national prosperity.

"World prices are lower, meanwhile, than at any time since the war; even lower than in 1921. They have decreased since this time last year by fully 15 per cent, approximating, as an index of present world export values, a figure less than $1.20 as related to current dollar values in 1913. The recession since 1925 has been from a corresponding world export index price of $1.65 on the 1913 dollar, or a drop of almost 25 per cent in the last five years.

"The most constructive factor of the present year is, however, that manufacturing industry, particularly in Europe and the United States, though deflecting the general reduction in prices, has not substantially reduced the volume of its products entering international trade. This shows that the greater part of the year's losses in foreign trade has been absorbed by the more speculative international commerce in raw materials. This relatively steady market for the products of manufacturing removes much of the danger from the present situation and presages an improvement for the near future."

HALSEY, STUART SEES POSITIVE FACTORS IN 1931 BOND OUTLOOK

A good many positive factors can be noted in the bond market as the year draws to a close, Halsey, Stuart & Co. point out in their quarterly review. In the first place, it says, there is no heavy supply of unsold bonds in the market. New corporate financing in prospect does not run into large totals. Even the market situation surrounding the so called investment type is one that could readily be corrected by even a moderately well sustained demand for bonds of these types.

Commenting on the happenings of the year, the review states that the bond market of 1930 has been noteworthy for two principal reasons: First, for the ready reception to the so called "gilt edge" variety; and, second, for the limited interest in bonds of other types—including scores of well secured issues whose only lack has been wide public recognition.

Sees Slow Recovery.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, in an analysis of 1931 business projects, expresses the belief that next year will be a period of slow business recovery.

"It now seems likely," he said, "that business recovery will begin a combination of many minor improvements, and that it will be accompanied by the developments that normally occur in such a period. These should include rising trends for short term interest rates, bond prices, and stock prices, and advances before the end of the year in wholesale prices and industrial employment.

N. Y. Exchange Equities Sell 30% Below Book Values

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14. — An examination of the equities listed on the New York Stock Exchange shows that more than 30 per cent are selling below their book values and that many stocks, particularly in the oil and rail groups, are selling at from one-tenth to one-half of book values. Before the break of November, 1929, virtually every listed stock was selling well above its book value.

While investment experts now attach more importance to earning power than to book value in their appraisal of a corporation, before the post-war market much attention was directed to book value, and issues selling far above the equity available for the common stock were regarded as distinctly speculative, according to brokers.

With the rise in stocks that began in 1922, however, investors gradually discarded the book value yardstick. Later in the advance the yield criterion was also thrown aside, and finally, in 1929, earnings, too, lost their significance as indices of value, "prospects" alone remaining as the sole guide for the investor.

Now Honor Them.

This year, however, yields and earnings have been restored to an honored position, and there is speculation in Wall street as to whether book values will also regain their significance.

An indication of the extent to which stocks are selling below their book value is furnished by the United States Steel common. This stock, considered the most representative equity in the stock exchange list, has a book value of $204.16, compared with a closing price Saturday of 136½.

Many pivotal issues are selling above their book value, however, owing to their strong banking sponsorship and their popularity among investors, brokers explain. It is in the group of secondary stocks that the largest discounts from book values are found. There are instances of railroad common stocks selling at -twelfth of book value.

YULETIDE SPIRIT IS CHEERY, BUT INDUSTRY ISN'T

Takes Calmer View Now, However.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 14.—From the viewpoint of the markets, the year is certainly not drawing to its close in a spirit of cheerfulness. Hopes that the course of financial reaction would be actually reversed by autumn activities had been abandoned by most people as long ago as midsummer. But it was still believed that reaction would at least be halted; therefore the failure of any autumn month to equal steel production or daily freight movement of the later summer, and the decline of stock exchange prices in October to a lower average even than that of November, 1929, were necessarily discouraging.

On the other hand, the record of pessimism which prevailed at the end of summer, as regarded both immediate and longer financial future, has not continued in the hysterical form which it then assumed. That a calmer view has been taken in the later autumn, even when a well known stock exchange house and a New York City bank went down, supports the familiar principle that disturbed financial imagination can face known facts composedly, but not the unknown.

Effect of Failures.

To the ordinary observer, it is a disappointing if not alarming fact that bank failures should continue, a full year after the Wall street panic. Yet that is not out of line with previous experience in a period of the kind. Unless when confronted with a run of depositors such as compels outside examination of the books, a financial institution which has granted credit unwisely in the excitement of a great speculation will often manage to keep its head above water during a period of months. There were 358 bank failures in the United States during 1921 and 165 in 1908, with liabilities respectively of $113,000,000 and $209,000,000, and the dates of their suspension ranged on each occasion well into autumn of the after panic years. It was on both occasions part of a quite inevitable economic reckoning in both.

Sometimes a bank's position was already weak when financial reaction came, and with it rapid depreciation

LIQUIDATION IN CORN

Corn traders who are bearish liquidated on a declining market during the week with prices forced down well toward the lowest of the season, recording net losses of 3⅛@3⅝c as compared with a week ago. All strong spots were taken advantage to sell by those who believe it is too early to bull corn, as receipts have increased for several weeks and for the last week were nearly double those of the previous week, but were the smallest for the period since 1927.

Bearish conditions as summarized by traders, are prospects for good receipts for several weeks, with corn prices relatively too high as compared with wheat. Mild weather has reduced consumption of corn on farms, and Argentine corn is too cheap as compared with American. Above all, there is the absence of outside speculative buying. Later in the season, when the country movement is through, friends of the corn market predict an increased volume of speculative buying, with a good advance in prices. Closing prices were around the bottom of the week, with December 69⅝@70c, March 72⅝@72⅝c, May 74⅝@74⅞c, and July 76@76⅛c.

Howe Sound.

Would be pleased to have your opinion on Howe Sound as an investment. —J. L. R.

Howe Sound company, incorporated in Maine in 1903, through subsidiaries is engaged in the production of zinc, lead, copper, and silver from mines in British Columbia and Mexico. Lead and zinc form the greater part of its output. The Canadian properties consist of 546 mining claims, comprising 24,456 acres, and 10 timber licenses. The Mexican properties are located in Chihuahua and consist of 408 acres of silver and lead producing property.

In the four years ended Dec. 31, 1929, profits were considerably above those reported in the five previous years as a result of increased production and acquisition of new properties. Zinc was not mined prior to 1925.

Net income for 1929, after depletion charges, was $3,662,476, equal to $7.38 per share on 496,038 no par capital shares. This was a new high record for the company, in spite of a sharp decline in the last quarter, when prices of lead and zinc dropped and operations were curtailed.

In 1928 net income was $2,649,068, or $5.34 per share, against $2,142,116, or $4.32 per share, in 1927.

Although production in the September quarter of this year was greater than a year before, earnings were only 91 cents per share, against $1.90 per share in the September, 1929, quarter.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1930, net profit, before depletion, was $1,639,155, equal to $3.30 per share. This compares with net profit of $2,959,001, or $5.97 per share for the corresponding period of 1929.

At the close of last year current assets were $8,330,874 and current liabilities were $1,713,346, leaving a working capital of $6,617,528. Surplus was $14,269,339.

There is only one class of stock and no funded debt. Dividends have been maintained since 1923 and the annual rate since 1926 has been $4 per share with occasional extras. The stock is medium grade and somewhat speculative.

Trust Funds.

Please tell me what the people who have trust funds of estates and the like will do when the bank that has charge fails.—Mrs. T. E.

If specific assets of the trust can be traced, they will be returned intact. If the assets have been mixed with the general funds of the bank and cannot be traced, this is, of course, a breach of trust, but the right to damages being merely a money claim will be scaled in the same way as the claims of other creditors.

of assets; sometimes, mostly in smaller institutions, the personal ventures of bank officials during the speculative period involved their institution in the subsequent collapse—one-fourth of the national bank insolvencies in 1921 and one-third of those in 1908 appeared from the controler's year-end statement to have had the second cause.

How much effect these very unfortunate bank difficulties have in the long run on the course of finance and industry, can be judged only by the record. But they were part of the reckoning which the Wall street panic of six months or a year before had foreshadowed in the light of all experience. It is Wall street's quite invariable habit, when one of those convulsions has occurred, to insist that what has happened was merely "readjustment" on the stock exchange, with no foreshadowing of events in the outside world. But actual results have always been the same.

Compare with Past Events.

No prudent person, whatever his general ideas may be on the question, will at such times fix the date when finance and industry will emerge, even temporarily, from darkness into sunshine. The most that can be depended on, by way of taking the longer reckoning, is to measure the existing situation by the character and sequel of similar past episodes.

Much mischief has been done already by the yielding to mistaken notions that an economic reaction of a character such as that which began last year is destined in ordinary experience to wear itself out in the course of a few months. If that idea had any sound basis in our financial history, the inference from recent events and recent markets would certainly be most unpleasant. If, on the other hand, it were to be the basis of judgment that similar doubts, discouragements, and uncertainties existed at the end of the year which followed the breakdown of 1920 or 1907 or 1893, we should at least know where we stand.

Kroger Grocery Chain to Adopt 13 Month Calendar

The Kroger Grocery and Baking company announces that beginning Monday, Jan. 15, it will use the thirteen month calendar and will operate under thirteen periods of four weeks each, each period consisting of twenty-eight days. The announcement pointed out that the arrangement will aid in making more accurate comparisons of sales, will eliminate split pay rolls and will aid in establishing the basis for a more accurate cost system.

WHOLESALE DIST. RECEIVES FILL-IN BUYING FOR XMAS

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

Brisk business in fill-in orders for the Christmas season trade was reported last week in some quarters of the wholesale district. Many of these Christmas lines ordinarily would have been purchased three or four months ago, but retail merchants then cautiously withheld such buying because of the general business uncertainty.

Usually the wholesale trade during the pre-holidays buying rush is quiet, for the obvious reason that retail merchants are occupied by the yuletide business. Wholesale houses, however, are expecting a brisk pickup about the middle of January after the "after Christmas sales" have cleared the retailers' shelves.

Furniture Market Near.

Meanwhile both the Merchandise Mart's furniture division and the Furniture Mart are making ready for the annual winter market beginning Jan. 5. Several thousand furniture buyers are expected to be in attendance, with the new Merchandise Mart anticipating its share of patronage as an added attraction Chicago now possesses as the nation's largest furniture buying center.

The infants' and children's wear group in the Merchandise Mart will add Melcher & Landau, Inc., to its number on Jan. 1, according to announcement. Melcher & Landau, Inc., is a prominent New York wholesale firm.

I. A. G. M. Convention.

Chicago will be host to the annual convention and textile and machinery exposition of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers, which will be held at the Stevens hotel on March 3, 4, and 5. Chicago was selected for the 1931 convention because of this city's conveniently central location for the majority of exhibitors. The date of the convention was moved from May up to March to allow a more timely relation to the opening of piece goods lines, the announcement stated.
